

Christmas Lights To Blink Next Week

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce invites all town residents, their families, and local business people to the Lighting Ceremony on Thursday, Dec. 8, at 7 p.m. at the Winchester Common.

On this date, the official Christmas season for the town will begin with the shops serving special treats to their customers, local school children singing and a special appearance by Santa Claus.

The Chamber of Commerce has once again undertaken the task of organizing the lighting of the town's center with the able assistance of the Dept. of Public Works and the Winchester Rotary Club. Donations to pay for the lights are coming from Chamber members. Contributions are still needed. If interested in helping to support this program, send a check to the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, 573 Main st.

When Will The Bridge Open?

State Hopes To Finish By Week's End

BY LIZ WILLEN

Last Saturday should have marked the opening of the Swanton st. bridge.

Swanton st. should have again become a through-way, and the opening should have marked the end of a year-and-a-half of frustration and inconvenience for residents.

However, instead of viewing a weekend ribbon cutting ceremony at the construction site, residents instead gazed upon the all too familiar sight of fluorescent barrels, dug-up ground and tractors.

It's a scene people have gotten used to since construction began on the bridge almost two years ago. The $240,000 construction project should have been completed on Nov. 26, a date Conway Construction Co. predicted in mid-September.

And while state DPW officials cite a gas leak and a delay in the delivery of a controller for traffic lights as the reason for postponing the opening, residents and merchants in the area cite their disgust at yet another delay.

"Two years to build a bridge is absolutely ridiculous," said "Moose" Bellino on Tuesday, while trying eggplants and sprinkling cheese on a sub at Bellino's Pizzeria on Main st. "The famous question has been when is the bridge going to open and the famous answer has been next week."

Bellino said he is still waiting for the famous answer to be accurate. "I don't know when they're going to open — but believe me, I've been waiting months. And you better believe this has hurt business — any of the merchants in this area who tell you that it hasn't are lying."

Bellino says he plans on giving free coffee and doughnuts to all of the workers on the project when the bridge opens.

"If it opens," he adds, "All summer we thought it would be open by the fall. Then all fall we waited — then last weekend — who knows anymore?"

As a matter of fact, no one seems to know anymore, or is willing to predict a definitive date. Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh said a ceremony will "hopefully" take place at the end of the week. And Bill Pizzano, director of public information for the state DPW, also said the bridge should open at the end of this week.

"The only thing that's left is the delivery of the controller," he said. "That will be installed as soon as it arrives, and unless there is a major storm, or unless any bugs are found after inspection, we should be able to open it." Pizzano did not predict when the controller would arrive, although he did say it was expected any day.

"We can't open the bridge without controller electric equipment," he added.

Pizzano's explanation is small comfort to the management of Andrea's Pizzeria at the corner of Main and Swanton sts. "This has been a real pain in the neck," said Chris Harikos. "They only work when they feel like it — and then they read the newspaper. Customers keep coming in and asking us when they are going to open — believe me, we want to know the answer ourselves."

Town officials have also been impatient with the progress of the project. "The left hand just doesn't know what the right hand is doing here," noted a frustrated Selectman Michael Saraco, who has questioned the project's progress week after week.

"We've heard several different dates and I'm tired of this," he added.

And Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell suggested inviting Sen. Richard Kraus and Rep. Saltmarsh to a meeting to explain how the work has proceeded.

Meanwhile, Saltmarsh noted that the delay would only be a short one. "These things happen and I'd rather wait and have the job done right," he said.

And Pizzano noted that every other aspect of the job is complete. About 5,550 cubic yards of fill was dumped on top of the abandoned railroad line this summer, building an embankment between Main st. and Swanton st.

A retaining wall to shore up the building housing Andrea's Pizzeria was finished in September, and the sides of the embankment have been graded, seeded and loamed.

Conway Construction Co. crews have paved the newest section of Swanton st. and sidewalks have been laid on the Main-Water st. corner near Bellino's Pizzeria, as well as directly across the street on the Swanton-Main corner.

The new traffic lights are up on the intersection's four corners, but they are not wired yet.

But the long-awaited bridge still isn't open, and Spruce st. residents like Chet Murphy will have to continue traveling their familiar detour route — Spruce st. to Swanton st. to Loring ave. to Cross st. and finally to Main st.

"So many times I wanted to go get a pizza, but I changed my mind because it was too much trouble," Murphy said. "I made peanut butter and jelly and put ketchup on it and pretended instead."

If and when the bridge finally opens this week, Murphy will be able to drive directly over the Swanton st. bridge to get the real thing.

WHA IN CONTROVERSY — The Winchester Housing Authority apartments on Westley st. are well-maintained, but that's about all the Housing Authority is doing right according to a League of Women Voters study.

Under Fire LWV Report Blasts Housing Authority The Charges The Answer

By DAVE LEECO

The Winchester Housing Authority is ignoring the housing needs of everyone but the elderly — and even the elderly residents of the WHA's two apartment complexes are treated like children without stature or dignity.

Those are the conclusions of the League of Women Voters, which just completed a study of the Housing Authority.

The results of that study have angered League members so much that they are considering bringing a complaint against the WHA to the state Executive Office of Communities and Development, the agency that oversees local housing authorities.

But according to Housing Authority members, the study gives a skewed view of the WHA's actions.

The WHA members said, is interested in bringing in low- and moderate-income housing, but is stymied by a lack of state funds and a feeling in town that the only public housing needed is for the elderly. Tenants, except for a vocal few, feel they are treated well, the members added. (See separate story.)

The League's study, discussed during two meetings last week, was intended to

Housing Authority members say the League of Women Voters' study isn't much more than a quick, and sometimes inaccurate, glimpse into the work their board does.

While the LWV blames the lack of new subsidized housing in town on the attitude of the WHA, the Housing Authority members respond that without state funds, they can't build new housing. And state funds are almost non-existent.

And while the LWV finds tenants dissatisfied and feeling oppressed by the Housing Authority, WHA members say they have a good relationship with 90 percent of the tenants.

Housing Authority Chairman Mary Murphy did not return messages left by The Star on her answering machine, requesting a response to the League study. For that matter, Murphy did not return messages from the League when members were doing the study.

But three other WHA members interviewed said their board isn't as bad as the League portrays it.

One member, John Regan, pointed out that the League's research was limited —

Lawyers To Negotiate On Consent Form

Court Waits Before Deciding On Lie Detector Test For Two Suspect Cops

By ZOE CARTER

A court decision as to whether or not two Winchester policemen must sign a waiver and consent form before taking a lie detector test as part of an investigation into a Surrey rd. theft has been postponed until next week.

Police Chief John McHugh asked officers Theodore Yeancopolis and Lon Elliott to take a lie detector test as part of an investigation that began in June when a sliding glass door was stolen from a construction site. A truck was seen leaving the site accompanied by a police car after the complaint was called in.

Lawyers representing the two policemen and the town of Winchester will meet with an assistant attorney general on Monday in order to negotiate the changes in the waiver form that the policemen are required to sign before they take the lie detector test.

Both policemen filed suit in the Middlesex Superior Court in order to avoid signing the waiver. According to Yeancopolis' lawyer, Donald McNamee, the officer would be "totally and completely deprived of his constitutional due process rights" if he signed.

"We're quite prepared to accept some kind of waiver," McNamee told the judge in court Tuesday morning. "But the form that was suggested by the town was too broad."

"My client is eager to take the test," he added.

Judge Mel Greenberg seemed to be sympathetic to the concerns of the officers and he suggested a private polygraph test be given within the department rather than by the Massachusetts State Police who require the waiver.

If the officers do sign the waiver as it stands now, they would not be able to sue the State Police even if the test results inaccurately showed that they were lying and cost them their jobs.

"The person taking this test may be totally innocent and therefore would like to protect their rights," Judge Greenberg said. "The request of the officers is not unreasonable."

Town Counsel Douglas Randall, representing the town of Winchester, disagreed and repeated his preference that the State Police administer the test.

Although the incident occurred last

June 3, Chief McHugh has not filed any formal charges but has merely requested that the officers take the lie detector test — and sign the waiver. According to Elliott's lawyer, Edward Leach, McHugh is applying pressure on the officers in hopes he will uncover gossip relating to the incident.

"We're disturbed that the chief made allegations without filing formal charges," Leach said. "If they had any evidence of criminality, they would have presented it. In my opinion, the chief is putting undue pressure on him because of the gossip he (Elliott) might have heard."

"Elliott is an inexperienced officer," Leach added. "He is the youngest one on the force and he doesn't have civil service tenure like Yeancopolis does."

The request for a lie detector test is part of an investigation into the theft of a $600 sliding glass door from a construction site at 28 Surrey rd. The theft occurred on the night of June 3 when Yeancopolis and Elliott were assigned to the Carriage Hill area of town. A report of suspicious activity came in at 2:30 a.m. but for 12 minutes the two officers were not able to be contacted by the police dispatcher.

According to the affidavit filed by McHugh, a truck was observed on the construction site and after the call was made to the station, the truck left the site accompanied by a police car. Later police discovered that the sliding door was missing.

Both Yeancopolis and Elliott agreed to McHugh's request that they take a lie detector test but they stated that they were doing so under duress. Lawyer McNamee points out that in the waiver form it specifies that the form be signed "without force, duress, threat (or) coercion."

Yeancopolis faces discharge or other disciplinary action if he declines to submit to the polygraph examination, McNamee wrote in his statement to the court. "Signing it is obviously not voluntary."

If the lawyers agree to a modified version of the waiver form the officers will be both signing the form and taking the test.

If the lawyers cannot come to an agreement with Counsel Randall and the attorney general, the case will return to court.

Quincy Pair Sentenced To Walpole For March Pharmacy Robbery, Shooting

By LIZ WILLEN

Two 32-year-old Quincy men have been convicted of holding up a Winchester drug store and attempting to murder three policemen last March.

After a two-day jury trial that ended on Friday night at Middlesex Superior Court, Steven Ennis and Peter Bush were both found guilty of armed robbery, assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to murder.

Ennis was sentenced to between 20 and 30 years in Walpole State Prison and Bush was given 15 to 20 years. Both Ennis and Bush have been at Walpole since they were arrested after the March incident.

Their arrest was the culmination of a high speed chase through Winchester and Woburn that ended when a police cruiser crashed into the suspects' car. During the chase, shots were fired at Officer James Gray from Winchester and two Woburn officers.

Gray was slightly injured when a bullet grazed his head. Ennis was shot in the leg by a Woburn police officer before the pair were arrested.

"There is absolutely no doubt in my mind that Ennis wanted to kill a police officer," said Lt. Joseph Perritano, noting that justice had been served with Judge Robert Barton's sentence.

"I'm glad that these men are away where they belong — not out shooting at police officers," said Chief John McHugh, who said he was still relieved that no one was injured on that eventful night in March.

"You always think about what could have been after an episode like that," added McHugh.

It was only because of a sheer stroke of luck that what could have happened didn't. According to Perritano, the .357 Magnum Revolver that Ennis used to shoot at Gray could have "devastated him." Instead, it only grazed his forehead.

A photograph submitted to the court as evidence depicts a pale, shaken Gray, with a red gash on his forehead where the bullet grazed him. And Gray himself testified in court, reliving the frightening moments between the time a radio message revealed that two armed men stole drugs and money from O'Neil's Pharmacy on Washington st. and the ensuing car chase that resulted in his being shot at.

Gray testified in court, along with Woburn police officers Richard Macinanti and Paul McGee. The defendants never took the stand.

"It was a good case — we had a lot of evidence," noted Lt. Joseph Perritano. "The owner of O'Neil's testified, and we had a ballistics expert who testified that the gun used by Ennis (a .357 Magnum Revolver) was in good working condition. He also proved that the gun had fired the slugs."

"The district attorney did a very good job of pointing out that both Bush and Ennis knew exactly what they were doing when they shot at the police officers," added Perritano.

During the robbery, which occurred at about 12:20 p.m., Ennis and Bush wrestled the owner of O'Neil's to the floor and ordered him to open the safe. They took $800 and a garbage bag filled with a quantity of drugs before taking off in a yellow Volkswagen Beetle.

At the time, Gray was in his car at the intersection of Cross and Washington sts. when he heard about the armed robbery. He received a description of the getaway car and the two men from a witness who saw the armed men leave the drugstore.

Gray looked out for the yellow Volkswagen Beetle he was told was headed up Swanton st. The suspects apparently did not know the Swanton st. bridge was out and after they were forced to cut up Loring ave. to Cross st., Gray pursued them up Cross st. and then north on Main st. towards Woburn. He turned on his blue lights and siren and the car finally stopped in front of Louie's Pizzeria on Main st. in Woburn.

Gray then approached the car with his gun drawn. When he got about 10 feet away, Ennis got up and pointed the gun at him. As Gray ducked down to shoot, the car window broke and he heard a pop — and he felt something hit the right side of his forehead.

It was the bullet. As Gray positioned himself to shoot at the fleeing Volkswagen, he spotted three children in front of his line of fire. Instead of shooting, he returned to his cruiser and followed the suspects into Woburn center, passing cars at almost 65 miles an hour.

When the Volkswagen passed Woburn Officer Paul McGee, who was directing traffic at the intersection of Main st. and Montvale ave. Ennis fired again — and missed.

Staffing For Kindergarten Unresolved Class Size Plan Dropped

By LIZ WILLEN

A solution to the annual argument concerning the size of kindergarten classes in Winchester is something parents, teachers and administrators have been waiting a long time for. And they're just going to have to wait a little bit longer, until the School Committee reviews its budget.

Citing a lack of money as the reason, the School Committee did not approve a proposal introduced by Acting Supt. Robert Forest that would have insured a ratio of one kindergarten teacher to every 22 pupils. Right now, the ratio is 25-to-1.

That ratio has been a source of controversy all year, and many parents have voiced complaints about class sizes and teacher ratios. At the Lincoln School kindergarten enrollment is 59, in two classes each with the same teacher and full time aide.

Under Forest's plan, the group of 59 students would have three teachers in three sections. Classes with between 23 and 29 pupils would have a teacher and an aide, and classes over 30 would get two teachers.

The numbers Forest cited seemed very attractive to parents who have been irate over large class sizes and looking for a solution. However, the School Committee decided it was not quite ready to implement the solution because members are afraid they simply cannot afford any measure involving money.

By a vote of 6-1, they decided to wait before approving the $9,750 proposal, agreeing that they should see the entire budget first.

Despite postponing their approval, School Committee members agreed that Forest's proposal seemed sound and convincing and might be feasible later on.

And parents in the audience voiced their support of the plan, after Forest himself pleaded with the School Committee to accept it.

"We've heard a lot of concern expressed about kindergarten staffing and we've surveyed other towns about class size," he said. "No other system used a formula as high in enrollment as Winchester before creating a third class."

"This is something that should have been dealt with way before and something I really want," Forest added.

Donna Landry of the Lincoln Parents' Assn. told the School Committee that Forest's plan was "terrific," and Neil Hurley, a concerned parent, called it "well worth the investment."

However, after listening to a report on the budget by Finance Committee Chairman Dan Ciotti before they voted on the proposal, the School Committee agreed that they were not ready to make that investment and spend money they were told they did not have.

Still, there was a general feeling that Forest's plan was a good one — and one that might be considered again in the future.

"Your plan is reasonable and the cost is modest," School Committee Chairman Constance Papas told Forest. "However, I think it's important to take a look at the budget before we make a decision."

Taking a look at that budget was not exactly comforting. Ciotti bluntly told the School Committee that there were absolutely no new sources of revenue in town. "We are adamant about delivering a balanced budget to Town Meeting this spring and there are going to have to be cuts," he said.

Vandals Damage Cars At Lynch School

A School Committee meeting at the Lynch School on Wednesday night was interrupted by vandalism to the cars parked outside.

Despite the presence of a police officer on duty at Acting Supt. Robert Forest's request, one car was pushed down an embankment and into a ditch and two other vehicles were vandalized.

Police did not discover the vandals, nor do they know if the damage was caused by the same persons who broke into the cars of Lynch School administrators the week before.

"I just don't understand this," said Forest, after Officer Carl Fuller interrupted the School Committee meeting to warn the audience of the vandalism. "We requested to have an officer on duty tonight and something still happens."

Although Officer Carl Fuller was on duty, he had been checking the front parking lot off Brantwood rd. when the damage was done to cars parked on the side.

One member of the audience at the meeting discovered that her 1981 Honda had been pushed into a ditch, after the radio knobs and a lighter were removed.

Another, the owner of a 1976 Toyota, found that her car wouldn't start after discovering that the gas cap was missing and the gas was siphoned out. A flashlight was also missing from the car.

A Mercedes-Benz owner reported a cigarette lighter, the air-conditioning knobs and the radio knob removed from her car.

Police have received several reports about missing gas caps and other incidents of vandalism to cars in the Lynch School lot this fall.

"We've had several incidents before, but this was unbelievable," noted Forest, who said he had discussed the vandalism with Police Chief John McHugh.

Open 7 Days A Week

Wednesday, Nov. 23

• A Wedgemere ave. youth was placed in protective custody for operating a motor vehicle to endanger and being a minor in possession of alcohol.

According to a report filed by Officer Eric Benson, the youth was traveling south on Bacon st. at a high rate of speed and driving very close to the center line when he passed Benson. He was followed and stopped on Oak Knoll, where police inspected his car and removed several cans of unopened beer. The youth was brought down to the station and later bailed.

• Three Winchester youths admitted to using a large pipe to knock cinder blocks out of the bathroom at Leonard's Pool so they could play street hockey. According to a report filed by Officer John Alford, the 14-year-old youths were discovered in the bathroom after police received a report of vandalism there. Their parents were all notified and the youths agreed to pay restitution for the amount of the damage.

Thursday, Nov. 24

• A vacant home on Simonds rd. was broken into sometime on Wednesday night and a disposal unit and a washer and dryer were stolen. According to a report filed by Officer F.C. Cammon, the living room window had been pried open by a screwdriver, and police found footprints and pry marks. However, they did not find the intruder.

Guests at the party told police that the man had been punched repeatedly about the face. The injured man told police he had been jumped by three individuals, but no arrests were made. He was treated at Winchester Hospital for lacerations of the left eye, a broken nose and severe swelling.

• A South Boston man was charged with leaving the scene of an accident and operating under the influence of alcohol, after a pickup truck and a Buick sedan collided on Mt. Vernon st. and the pickup took off.

MDC police, who were notified about the incident, later placed the South Boston man in protective custody at the Falls station for driving while intoxicated. His vehicle was towed to a Stoneham auto body shop the next day, and Officer D.W. Fisher was able to match pieces of the grill and body lettering from the accident.

The operator of the pickup truck, Robert Neumyer of South Boston, was issued a citation for leaving the scene of an accident and operating under the influence.

• A Chapin st. resident reported his 1964 Autocar dump truck was entered, ransacked and damaged. Tools worth over $500 were stolen.

• A Grove st. resident reported the tires on her Pinto were slashed.

• A Plato terr. resident reported that someone damaged his front lawn by driving a motorbike across it.

• An Olive st. resident reported the pickets on his front fence stolen.

• A Church st. resident reported that eggs were thrown all over his home. Police still have not cracked the case of the mysterious egg throwers — and incidents of egg throwing having been turning up all over lawns and homes.

Sunday, Nov. 27

• A Rangely Ridge rd. resident reported that unknown youths rang his front door and demanded to be let in before disappearing. Police did not find the ringing runners.

• A Pond st. resident complained about speeding cars on Pond st. and Chesterfield rd.

Friday, Nov. 25

• Two Woburn youths were placed in protective custody after police received reports from an MBTA driver that they assaulted a third youth on a bus at the intersection of Main st. and Mystic Valley pkwy.

According to a report filed by Officer Eric Benson, the two Woburn youths were found walking south on Main st. They were stopped and placed in protective custody after Benson noticed a strong smell of alcohol on them. They were later released.

• A Copley st. resident reported that a Raleigh dirt bike worth $120 was stolen from his home.

• A Lesley rd. home was broken into sometime during the afternoon when an intruder entered through a cellar door at the rear of the home. According to a report filed by Officer Paul Deluca, three bedrooms were ransacked along with the living room, dining room and basement.

Bedding was removed, along with a color TV and stereo speakers. Police also discovered fingerprints on the outside of the storm doors which had been left open. However, the intruders were not discovered.

Saturday, Nov. 26

• A Jamaica Plain man was injured after arguing with guests at a Plymouth rd. party. According to a report filed by Officer Jonathan Dean, the man was bleeding profusely from the head when police arrived.

Give The Gift Of A Ski Trip This Year From Rec. Dept.

Are you looking for that special gift to give this holiday season but are bothered by big crowds, lack of parking spaces and exorbitant prices? If you are, the Winchester Recreation Dept. has just the thing. Handsomely dressed ski trip gift certificates are available for those who would like to give a trip or two as a gift.

Winter ski trips are being planned for students in Grades 7 through 12 for January, February and March. All trips include lessons and rentals for any individual who would like to enjoy skiing at any ability level. And the price is so economical, you won't want to pass it up.

On Friday, Jan. 13, Crocheted Mt. features night skiing and man-made snow. The bus will depart from the Manchester Field Parking Lot at 3 p.m. There is a free lesson for all who would like to experience the fun of skiing.

On Saturday, Jan. 28, the day trip will begin at 7:30 a.m. departing from Manchester Field Parking Lot. The trip will include a free lesson. Crocheted Mt. has 26 trails and seven lifts which will accommodate beginners to advanced skiers.

In February, two trips are planned.

Thursday, Feb. 9, is a Senior High Release Day trip to Wachusett Mt. This trip is for students in Grades 9 - 12 only. Mt. Wachusett has expanded the mountain to offer a number of trails available for all levels of skiers. It also offers night skiing and man-made snow to insure proper skiing conditions. Bus will depart at 12:30 p.m.

Also in February will be a Vacation Day Trip to Crocheted Mt. for all students in Grades 7 - 12 on Wednesday, Feb. 22. Buses will depart at 7:30 a.m.

On Thursday, March 8, a Junior High Release Day Trip to Wachusett Mt. is offered for students in Grades 7 & 8 only. Bus will depart at 12:30 p.m.

On Friday, March 16, all students in Grades 7 - 12 will depart for the "Last Chance" ski trip to Crocheted Mt. for night skiing. Buses will depart at 3 p.m. A free lesson is available.

This is a great opportunity to join the many students who have experienced the fun of skiing. Come in and sign up now before they are full. The Recreation Dept. is located in McCall Jr. High School. For further information, contact the Dept.

Borggaard Wants To Change TM Decision

New Police Station Proposed

By DAVE LEECO
Some town officials haven't given up the idea of getting a new police station, even though a proposal to build a new police-fire station was shot down last spring.

Planning Board and Town Meeting member Clarence Borggaard is pushing to get a new police station built on the former Wadleigh School site across from Town Hall.

Borggaard thinks his idea will win the town's approval because it will avoid the problems that caused the failure of the last plan to replace the town's 70-year-old police and fire complex.

A committee looking into a new police-fire station last year found only one site large enough and centrally located enough for a combined station — one corner of Manchester Field. But that plan was scotched by the School Committee, which controls the property, because the committee members didn't want to give up park area and feared fire trucks leaving the station would endanger school children.

Without another site, and with the present station badly in need of repair, Town Meeting voted last spring to renovate the station at a $1.8 million cost.

Borggaard said his plan — to build a new police station and leave the Fire Dept. in its present quarters — would win approval more easily than the committee's suggestion.

If the plans to renovate the existing station are to be changed, they will have to be changed quickly. According to the assistant to the town manager, Rick White, the town is nearly ready to send the renovation project out to bid.

But the tight schedule hasn't dissuaded Borggaard from trying to get his plan through.

"My idea has been well-received, but people say to me, 'It's too late, Clarence. Town Meeting has already voted the money (for renovation),' " Borggaard said. "But what man has done, man can undo."

Because the town would only be building a police station, not as much land would be needed. So, more sites — including the Wadleigh School site — would be usable for a station, Borggaard explained to selectmen last week.

And since the Fire Dept. would not be housed in the new building, he continued, the safety hazards that caused the School Committee to vote "No" wouldn't exist.

And most importantly, Borggaard said, a new police station "will give us something the police force can be proud of and we can be proud of."

Selectmen were impressed enough with Borggaard's suggestion that they set up a meeting between their board and the Public Safety Building Study Committee within the next few weeks.

Borggaard pointed out that when the town built the police-fire station in 1913, the town was concentrating on building a fire station. "By virtue of a semi-colon in the Town Meeting warrant, they put the police in there too," said Borggaard.

As a result, he continued, although the station is adequate for the Fire Dept.'s needs, the Police Dept. has outgrown its quarters.

Borggaard was backed up by former Fire Capt. Michael Connolly, who commented, "For the Fire Dept., it is a fine building, an excellent building. For the police it is not."

Borggaard said the Wadleigh School site, located across Washington st. from Town Hall, would be an excellent place for a police station — close to Town Hall, right in the center of town, and visible to all as a symbol that "we're proud of our town."

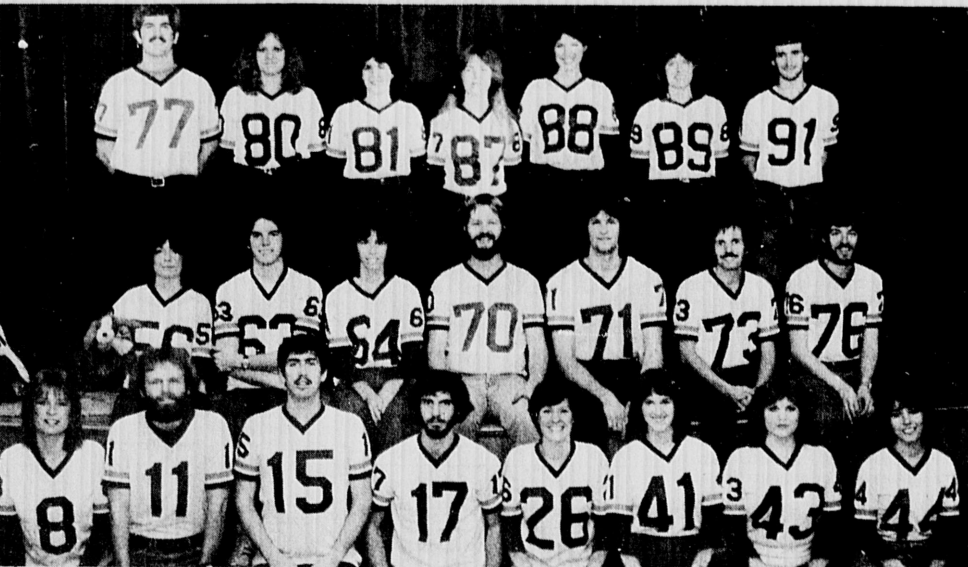

The site, which is now a park, is wasted land, continued Borggaard.

"It's called a park, but it's no park — it's an abject failure of a park," said Borggaard. "There are two benches, and no one sits there. Nobody plays there. An occasional child cuts across it to get to school, and that's about it."

Borggaard said that a police station could fit in well with the surrounding neighborhood. Police stations in Weston and Wellesley, he pointed out, are examples of stations with a residential character to them, with landscaping and flowers.

"Let's see if we can do this, and do it right," said Borggaard. "Make big plans, and stick to them."

The Team

MUSICAL SHOW — The Team, an original musical production, will be presented for high school students at St. Mary's Parish Hall on Sunday, Dec. 4, 7 to 9 p.m. The cast of 22 has performed more than 150 shows for churches of all denominations and has enjoyed many repeat engagements. In a series of skits and contemporary songs, The Team will present the gospel of salvation and other biblical teachings. Sponsored by the St. Mary's Religious Education Office and CYO, this event is free and open to all Winchester high school students.

Stockman Slashes Hospices Medicare Rates Hospice Home Care In Question

By ANNE MARIE REIDY

A budget-slashing move by federal budget manager David Stockman may mean that hospices across the country, including the Arlington-based Hospice Care Inc., which serves Winchester, will not be able to offer the 24-hour home care services beginning this March as they had planned.

"If Stockman's decision sticks, and he takes away $1 of every $5 we were projecting, we would go broke within a month," said Hospice Care administrator Ed Dolan. "Knowing that, we wouldn't even try (to offer 24-hour comprehensive care)."

But Stockman's budget-slashing may eventually mean taxpayers will pay twice the costs for caring for the terminally ill. And it might mean legal action by the national and state hospice organizations, to try to force rates set at a feasible level.

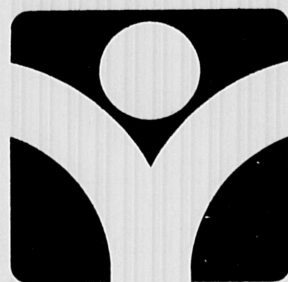

The hospice movement, less than 10 years old in this country, is aimed at helping terminally ill persons live out their lives as fully and as comfortably as possible. It is considered by many a more humane approach to care for a patient who can no longer be offered hope of a cure. Since 1975, 1,200 hospices have sprung up in this country, 40 in Massachusetts.

"A hospital is designed to be sterile, a place to cure people," Dolan said. "It is not designed to be warm and comforting, or to involve the family."

In addition, according to Dolan, experts estimate that services provided by hospices in a patient's home cost far less than the same services in a hospital—in some cases, up to 50 percent less.

One year ago, Dolan said, Congress passed a law allowing Medicare to reimburse hospice services for 24-hour care provided to clients in their homes rather than hospitals. Medicare coverage under the new law includes a full range of services such as social workers, home health aides, homemakers, medications, 24-hour attendants and counseling.

"The whole reason Congress passed this law is that it saw this would be a major savings for Medicare," Dolan said. "It is estimated that, across the country, it

Hospice Care

Serving Arlington, Burlington Lexington, Winchester and Woburn (617) 648-3172

would save 50 percent of what it costs now to care for the terminally ill.

"It was the only expansion of Medicaid benefits Congress passed," Dolan pointed out. "And it was as much a cost-savings measure as humanitarian."

Most hospice patients are cancer patients, and about 65 percent nationwide are eligible for Medicare, according to Dolan. Before passage of the expanded Medicare coverage, when these patients needed fulltime care, counseling, social work, 24-hour nursing or health aide care, the patients would have to be admitted to a hospital, or pay the costs of home care themselves.

"We did a six-months feasibility study when the new law was passed," Dolan said. "For routine care, our costs would be $66 a day. That would cover home medications, health aide care, medical supplies, house calls by doctors, and so forth."

In a crisis period, home care could cost up to $112 a day, with continuous nursing, as well as the regular care provisions. If a hospice-covered patient were unable to be treated at home, he could enter the hospital, and continue to be cared for by his regular hospice nurses, doctors and support staff, at a $275 a day rate, under contracts still being negotiated with local hospitals.

The Dept. of Health and Human Services, the federal agency that runs Medicare, set the rate for non-crisis care at $53 a day, low for the costs in this area. But, Dolan said, "putting it all together, it looked like we would break even on what we made and lost on the different types of care."

But Stockman's cuts would reduce the daily-care rate to $43 a day, and reduce the other care rates comparably, for about a 20 percent overall rate cut.

Hospice administrators heard about Stockman's actions two weeks ago at a national conference for those who run the programs that care for terminally ill and help their families cope with the situations.

"The proposed regulations and rates were published in August, and they invited public comment through Sept. 21," Dolan said. "Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler signed what she thought were the final rates (a week ago) Monday, and then went to Egypt."

"The rates went to Stockman's office, and he made the cuts," according to Dolan. "Now they go back to Heckler for a final decision. We're appealing to her to reverse Stockman's decision."

If Stockman's cut-rate reimbursements stand, it means that Hospice Care will not expand its services to include the 24-hour care, or hire the additional staff to cover those duties. It also means the hospice will not be able to take on 40 or so additional patients.

"We serve about 60 people a year now," Dolan said. "We look for people with a six-months' prognosis, but in reality, the average we serve a client is two months."

Dolan, active in the state and national hospice organizations, has already contacted Sens. Edward Kennedy and Paul Tsongas, Massachusetts representatives, Heckler, and Stockman himself.

"The representatives were concerned about the cuts; they were news to them. They all felt (the rate cuts) undercut the intent of the legislation," Dolan said. However, the legislators no longer have any legal authority over the rates; they are now an administrative matter, Dolan added. "Stockman is hanging tough on it."

Dolan said the local, state and federal hospice organizations are considering legal action. "Clearly, it guts the benefit," Dolan said. "And secondly, by the law (passed in August 1982) the regulations were to be published by Sept. 1, so the program would become effective Nov. 1. They're still not published."

New Options For Savers Available At Local Banks

By ANDREA ANGERA

Consumerism has hit the savings game.

With the recent deregulation in the banking industry, a plethora of options has opened to the saver who shops around.

The passbook saver who used to be the "backbone of banks is gone," according to Eugene Ziculis, assistant treasurer of the Cambridgeport Savings Bank. The days were when "banks used to tell people what to do," continued Ziculis. Now a consumer can come in and virtually tailor a savings account to their needs, he said.

To accommodate more depositors, many banks have taken a supermarket approach by offering money market accounts, certificates of deposit (CDs), and NOW accounts that have flexibility in combination with maximum yields.

To take advantage of all this, consumers must have an understanding of which route is best to travel with their money. "The future of banks is providing knowledge of all the alternatives, so customers get the most benefit," said Leonard Perry, marketing vice-president of Shawmut County Bank.

Getting the most benefit from savings, however, is not so simple.

A "brighter consumer" must evolve, said Ziculis. As the situation stands, even "the little guy can get good interest rates," asserts Ziculis, if only he becomes an educated shopper.

The two primary enticements banks have for luring new depositors are higher interest rates and service. Some banks prefer one bait to another, while others try to pair the two.

"A majority of customers do not think about it (interest rates), they are interested in service," said Carol Byrne, a customer service representative at the Arlington Five Cents Savings Bank. This service-oriented attitude towards banking is shared by the Winchester Savings Bank, which views itself as a "people's bank." Not only are we the biggest bank in town, we offer the most personal care," said a customer service employee at Winchester Savings Bank.

On the other hand, the Cambridgeport Savings Bank ascribes to the belief that the highest possible rate of return, as well as good service, will draw customers. The bottom line for many people, said Ziculis, is that it is not service but the "highest rates that help make ends meet."

At the Shawmut County Bank in Winchester, acting manager Lois D. Garneau said their balance of good rates and a variety of accounts gives Shawmut County a unique blend, which enhances a saver's options.

As a consumer, this means there are a multitude of "good buys" to be had in the saver's marketplace. Buys which not only provide a higher level of financial security and freedom, but literally pay for themselves.

Dr. Haggerty Is Spanish Teacher Of The Year

At a recent Annual Convention of the Massachusetts Foreign Language Assn., Dr. Joyce Haggerty of 27 Fairmount St. was named Massachusetts Spanish Teacher of the Year.

The award is granted by the Spanish Heritage Assn., (Herencia Espanola) and was presented to Dr. Haggerty by the Honorable Andres Drake, Consul General of Spain to New England "in recognition of her outstanding contribution and dedication to the promotion of the Spanish language and culture in the State of Massachusetts."

The award includes an all-expenses-paid trip to any city of the recipient's choice in Spain for one month.

Dr. Haggerty, an associate professor of Spanish at Framingham State College, holds a bachelor's degree from Regis College, a master's from Middlebury College, having attended the Middlebury program at the University of Madrid, and has a Ph.D. from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

The award is based on the criteria of excellence in teaching, contribution to the candidate's college and to the profession.

Dr. Haggerty recently chaired the 65th Annual Convention of the American Assn. of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese held at the Park Plaza Hotel in Boston.

She is Chapter Coordinator of the National AATSP and edits a section of the literary journal "Hispania" and also the organization's "Newsletter."

She is a past president of the Massachusetts Bay Chapter of the AATSP, has co-chaired its National Spanish Exam and annually chairs its local Awards Assembly held at Framingham State College.

Two Of Schoolchildrens' Best Friends Die

Brandy Showed Manners At Two Schools

Present and former students at the Washington and Ambrose Schools lost a good friend and pet when "Brandy" died in her sleep on Nov. 12.

Brandy attended school as a visitor at both the Washington Elementary School on Highland Ave. and the Ambrose Elementary School on High St. She began her school days at the Ambrose School after the Washington School closed.

Brandy came to school each day accompanied by her owner, Herb Leabral. Leabral is the head custodian at the Ambrose School, and was head custodian at the Washington School until it closed.

She displayed school manners at all times and was an asset to her surroundings.

Brandy was getting old and developed a weakened heart, but with the care of Dr. William Johansen and her owner lived longer than expected.

She will be missed by all and not forgotten.

Khatali Gave Look At Life In The North

The former American and Canadian champion Samoyed, Tsulikagta's Kobe Khatali, died two weeks ago after an illness.

Khatali was a loving and loved member of the Muggia family, but most in town knew him as the fluffy, white dog with a "smile" who visited every elementary school in Winchester and several in surrounding towns, as well as nursing homes and church groups.

Accompanied by his owner, Judie Muggia of Dartmouth St., Khatali demonstrated the life of sled dogs in the north, where the dog's fur is used to spin wool.

Muggia, who thanked all those who had called and written after learning of Khatali's death, commented, "I have always been happy to realize how much he offered to others."

"I'll never really know how much young students really learned about living, sledding and fur-spinning in the far north," said Muggia. "But judging from my file of charming letters written to us after each appearance over the 10 years of his visits with me, he was patted and hugged by over a thousand youngsters from nursery school through elementary school age, their parents and teachers."

"His gentle presence certainly enriched our lives and needless to say, we miss him deeply," said Muggia.

Two Winchester Voke Students Practice Running Simulated Corporations

Two Winchester seniors at Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School in the Electronic Accounting Shop are helping create simulated corporations. They are coordinating their corporations using their accounting knowledge with business communications.

The seniors are divided into seven groups and have already begun to develop their corporations.

Each group submits a letter to Janice Caranta, an Electronic Accounting instructor, notifying her whether the corporation is already existing or newly established, the names and positions each member will be responsible for, and a brief explanation of what the corporation manufactures. The group consists of three officers, the president, the product consultant, and the financial analyst.

At one simulated corporation, Goodies Inc., Lana Barbuto is the financial analyst for this corporation which sells ice cream. Lisa Bella is sales manager for The Jewelry Box. This corporation sells jewelry.

From November to February, these groups will be designing invitations and letterhead, which will be distributed to the other accounting seniors and instructors for evaluation. Articles of Incorporation will be drawn up for each group's corporation.

Information concerning the product, such as where it is being manufactured, the supply and demand for the product, and how much it will cost the consumer will be presented by the company's product consultant. Financial statements such as the Income Statements, Balance Sheets, and Capital Statements for the past two fiscal years must be presented only if it is an existing corporation. This is the job of the financial analyst. If it is a new corporation, a five-year projection of income and sales must accompany the beginning Balance Sheet.

When February rolls around, each group will have 1½ hours in which to present their corporation to the seniors in accounting, invited faculty, and administration. This will be a simulated meeting for prospective stockholders to invest in the corporation. The group begins their presentation of the corporation by distributing folders containing letterhead, pencils, financial statements, and reports. The presentation involves giving detailed explanations concerning the information enclosed in the folders.

At the time of the presentation, the president will greet all guests and will begin with the introduction, the product consultant will follow with a speech on the product using charts, transparencies, and live demonstrations. The financial analyst will report on the financial position of the corporation. Questions will be entertained by all presenters.

Groups will be graded on 10 criteria, they are: voice, the overall presentation, poise, materials, appearance, depth of information presented, maturity of the group, enthusiasm, participation of each member of the group, and effort.

Caranta developed this project for the seniors to strengthen their confidence, ability to cope with on-the-spot questions, situations that may occur under pressure, and talent for public speaking — important assets that will be used when the Electronic Accounting students enter the business world upon graduation.

Lt. Perenick Is Named Commander Of Troops

Lt. Col. Charles H. Perenick of Wildwood St. was recently appointed commander of Headquarters Troop Command, Massachusetts Army National Guard at Camp Edwards.

He will command 1,400 non-division troops assigned to the 658th Military Police Battalion, Bourne; 1058th Transportation Co., Hingham; 1059th Medical Detachment, Westover Air Force Base; 215th Army Band, Fall River; 181st Engineering Co., Whitman and the 180th Engineering Detachment, Camp Edwards.

Perenick began his military career in 1950 when he enlisted in the Massachusetts National Guard and quickly rose from the rank of private to master sergeant. He graduated from the Officer Candidate School, Fort Benning, Ga., a second lieutenant in 1955. He graduated from the U.S. Army Command and General Staff Officers School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., in 1977.

As a citizen-soldier Perenick graduated from the Massachusetts State Police Academy in 1957. For five years he was a State Police Officer assigned to Western Massachusetts and became experienced in all facets of police work, from investigating to court room prosecution. Perenick also holds a Massachusetts certification to teach at the secondary school level. He was a teacher in the Pittsfield High School System from 1962 to 1965. Perenick is a Clerk-Magistrate at the Concord District Court.

New Numbers

New Phone System Will Begin Dec. 7

A new phone system in town offices might cause residents a little confusion for the next few weeks when they try to call the town clerk or the school superintendent, but eventually the system will make calling town offices simpler and save the town money.

All the telephone numbers for Town Hall, the Dept. of Public Works and the School Dept. will be changed on the week of Dec. 7, when the new Centrex system is installed.

Now, each office has a separate telephone line, meaning town offices can't transfer calls to another department, and calls from one department to another cost the town message units.

With the new system, according to Rick White, assistant to the town manager, a department can transfer calls, contact other departments over an intercom or call another department for information while a resident with a question waits on hold.

The system will also save the town the message unit charges for calls between departments. White said the savings from the Town Hall system will pay for the $4,500 installation cost in one year, and continue to save money after that.

Putting in the new system will also protect the town from the expected rise in telephone charges when AT&T is broken up Jan. 1. When it signed up for the new system, the town got a contract that will keep charges from rising for the next three years.

Antique Talk

ANTIQUARY LECTURE — Henry Callan, an expert and lecturer on antiques, will speak at the Fortnightly Christmas meeting Monday, Dec. 12, at 1 p.m. Callan will speak on "The Ins and Outs of Collecting Antiques" and will cover topics such as what an antique really is and how to know and appreciate antiques. Members and their guests are invited. Refreshments will be by the executive board. Mrs. William Sorenson, president, will conduct the business before the program.

Hundreds View Art Assn.'s Annual Prize Painting Show

Despite inclement weather, the Winchester Art Assn.'s Annual Prize Painting Show was a huge success.

Several hundred people braved the rainy days and viewed the paintings, prints and photography of the members. The Winchester High School's award winning art works were also a popular aspect of the exhibit.

The judges for the show were Kemond Sermos, Patricia Walker and Doxie Woodward. They awarded first prize to Ann Bannister for her watercolor, "Boat Patterns I." Ralph Jacobs received second prize for his watercolor, "Hialeah" and third prize went to Dorothea Jeffery for her portrait "Young Man."

Other artists awarded honorable mentions and juror's choices were Frances Bronzo, Valia Downes, Mary Jacobs, Carol Camelio, Nancy Watts and Carolyn Latanision.

The Winchester Art Assn. appreciates the avid interest taken by the town's residents and looks forward to the opening of its new Art Gallery in the beginning of December.

Christmas Bazaar On Dec. 2

A large committee of enthusiastic workers is pressing for the success of the annual Christmas Bazaar, sponsored by the Volunteers Association of the New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn.

The event will be held Friday, Dec. 2, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the hospital.

Among the many tables laden with items which will make Christmas gifts are those in the charge of Alice Keating, Rita Maggioli and Ursula Keleher, all of Winchester.

Others helping in the bazaar are residents Mary Nunziato, Norma Errico, Ann Wright and Audrey Clair. Also a strong supporter is Loretta Stillman of Winchester.

Youth Center To Feature Holiday Activities And Events

Starting Dec. 2, the Youth Center schedule will feature some special events to spark off the holiday season and provide a grand finale to one of the Recreation Dept. classes.

On Friday, Dec. 2, and Tuesday, Dec. 5, instructions and materials will be available for ornament making during the afternoon and evening sessions of the Youth Center Fri. 2:30 to 5 p.m., Tuesday 7 to 9 p.m. Cost to participate in either session will be $1 and both time periods will be open to students in Junior and Senior High.

All students are invited to help decorate the Youth Center on Friday, Dec. 9, from 2:30 to 5 p.m. All materials necessary will be provided, including popcorn for stringing and eating.

The Drama Workshop will hold its traditional community demonstration on Thursday evening, Dec. 8 at 7:30. The participants of the workshop, under the leadership of instructor Paulett Taggart, will provide a sampling of the skills they've acquired during the past 10 weeks, including improvisations of original scenes and well-known fables. The public is invited to witness this demonstration at no charge.

Peter Pan Auditions Are Dec. 5-6 For Grade Schoolers

Interested young actors and actresses in grades 4-6 may audition for roles as Lost Boys, Pirates, Indians, the three children Wendy, Michael and John, the evil Captain Hook and the famous Peter Pan for this year's Cooperative Theatre for Children annual production, "Peter Pan."

Auditions for those in grade 6 will be Monday, Dec. 5, and students in grades 4 and 5 are invited to audition Tuesday, Dec.

6. All auditions are from 3 to 5 p.m. in the First Congregational Church, Church st., in Winchester Center.

Production will be the weekends of March 16 and 23.

As in the past, those accepted will receive training in singing, dancing and acting and will be charged a tuition fee.

Kraus Appoints Legislative Aide

State Sen. Richard A. Kraus has announced that Nancy Madoff of Lexington has joined his senate staff in the position of legislative aide. Madoff will be focusing primarily on legislative matters, but will handle constituent services and special projects as well.

Born and brought up in Lexington, Madoff attended Franklin Elementary School and Lexington High School and received her B.A. in psychology from Colgate University, in New York.

While Madoff will be new to Senator Kraus' staff, she is not new to Beacon Hill. Prior to joining his staff, she worked for the Mass. Caucus of Women Legislators for over a year.

Auction To Be Held Dec. 3 At BB & N In Cambridge

Would you like a week in a London flat, a chance to conduct the Boston Classical Orchestra with Harry Ellis Dickson, your name mentioned in Art Buchwald's column? These are some of the items slated to be auctioned off at the Buckingham, Browne & Nichols School Auction, Gerry's Landing rd., Cambridge, on Saturday, Dec. 3.

Winchester resident Christa Bennett, BB&N parent and a member of the auction committee, has helped to collect some of the hundreds of items that include antiques, a day with WBZ-TV Sportscaster Bob Lobell, weekend cottage vacations, a visit to the set of a major motion picture to be filmed in Boston.

Tony Pepper, starhost of WRKO-Radio, will act as auctioneer. Doors open at 6:30 for the silent auction; the live auction runs from 8 to 10 p.m. Admission includes refreshments. Proceeds of the auction will go to the BB&N Scholarship Fund.

Medical Explorer Post Open To Interested

Pineault said, "We'll teach the young people cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, and they will experience actual hands on training, especially in the emergency room. The Post is really career-oriented, and we'll show the members what, for example, a surgeon does by taking them through the operating room, and having a surgeon talk to them."

Young people are invited to bring their parents with them to the opening meeting, and refreshments will be served.

Those who have further questions about the Medical Explorer Post may call Helen Hogan in Winchester Hospital's personnel department.

Boys and girls who are interested in a medical or health-care career are invited to join the new Medical Explorer Post to be started at Winchester Hospital. The Post is open to young people between the ages of 14 and 21.

The first meeting of the Medical Explorer Post will be on Thursday, Dec. 1, in the hospital's cafeteria from 7 to 9 p.m. Applications will be available at this time.

Sue Pineault, Emergency Room Registered Nurse, will direct the activities of the new Post. Future meetings will include tours of the hospital, and guest speakers will be members of Winchester Hospital's Staff.

Red Cross Starts CPR Classes On Dec. 6 At High School

CPR saves lives. How often have you heard that? With a little investment of your time and energy, you too can perform a life sustaining act for a neighbor, friend, loved one or a complete stranger.

The Winchester Red Cross is giving you that opportunity this month starting on Tuesday, Dec. 6, at 7 p.m. at the Winchester High School. Jan Dolan will be the instructor. The class will meet two additional nights, Thursday, Dec. 8, and Tuesday, Dec. 13, to insure plenty of practice time on the manikins. Register yourself, or your whole family even, by calling the Red Cross. (There is a modest course fee.)

The class is also open to people seeking to review their current certification. There are a few spots left so make it an early holiday present to someone you care for.

Holyoke Alumnae Meet

RETURNING - More than 200 Mt. Holyoke alumnae, including Winchester Mt. Holyoke Club president Deborah Hall (l), returned to the campus for the annual Alumnae Council to discuss "Reinforcing the Links." Hall is shown with Carolyn Berkey, executive director of the Mt. Holyoke Alumnae Assn.

Five Winchester Students Will Perform In Concert

One of the high points of the year in music will occur on Jan. 21, 1984, when the University of Lowell hosts the Massachusetts Music Educators Association/Northeastern Senior District Concert.

This year's concert will involve five students from Winchester High School's Music Department, Scott Kessel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Kessel of Myopia rd., and Richard Rothmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rothmann of Prince ave., will perform with the band. Performing with the orchestra will be Debra Daugherty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Daugherty of Wincrest dr., Ona Wang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odo Wang of Amberwood dr., and Chester Liu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Porey Liu of Aricia ln.

This concert provides a music experience for outstanding students in the areas of Chorus, Orchestra, Band, and Jazz Ensemble. Following an audition in October, the selected students rehearse for three days with their guest conductors from the collegiate and professional ranks, allowing each student to enrich their individual repertoire in performance. Their participation in this District Concert becomes a total music experience beginning with the audition and culminating in the concert.

The guest conductors for Band will be Dr. Lee Chrisman of Boston University and for Orchestra, Dr. Bernard Lurie of Hartt College.

The public is invited to the University of Lowell at 3 p.m. to hear these young musicians perform.

Town veterans agent Howard E. Chase urges Vietnam veterans who were exposed to Agent Orange to file a claim with the Veterans Administration.

Examinations are now being conducted at the Veterans Administration Hospital on Spring rd. in Bedford. No appointment is necessary, simply report to the admitting office any morning before 9 a.m. and the testing will be done at no charge. The DD214 or some other proof of service will be needed at the time of examination.

Where You'll Find The Best Values Around.

What began as a hobby for Paul Antonelli has turned into a thriving business. More than seven years ago, Paul started collecting movie memorabilia and stills. Today, he and his wife operate The Video Barn at 135 Broadway in Somerville.

At the Video Barn, Paul and his wife Sandy rent and sell Video Home System movies and equipment. In addition to servicing any make or model VHS recorder, Paul and Sandy also repair televisions and stereos.

However, the bulk of Paul and Sandy's business involves the sale and/or rental of the increasingly popular home movie. "The home movie business is constantly growing and is replacing movie theaters," explains Paul. "The demand for movies is definitely increasing."

The Video Barn offers a club membership with special discounts to club members. Members pay a $50 first year fee and $15 per month. The second year, a member pays only $25 for the year and thus becomes a lifetime member, never paying another yearly fee. Each member is entitled to ten movies free per month, discounts on new movies and movie reservation privileges.

With more than 350 movies in stock, The Video Barn probably has the movie you want. However, if Paul and Sandy don't have your choice of films on hand, they will obtain it. The Video Barn's prices for movie rentals are also the lowest in the area, they say.

Paul and Sandy also give free advice on how to hook up your VCR in order to receive better reception. As an added extra, Paul conducts cleaning clinics by appointment in which he cleans VCR equipment. Most dealers charge much more than the $25 Antonelli receives, he says. And Antonelli goes one step further. He goes over the cleaning process step by step with the customer enabling him or her to clean their VCR themselves thereafter.

Another fast-growing service provided by Antonelli is the videotaping of parties and weddings. Antonelli's charge for videotaping is very competitive and he can also recommend a disc jockey or florist for any occasion.

Antonelli also does photo processing and sells Atari Video cartridges.

The Video Barn is open Monday through Friday 10-7 and Saturdays 10-4. Antonelli will also remain open later during the Christmas season.

Ski I-93

It's Closer Than You Think

By Tom Huntington

Pity the poor non-skier. He or she is not at all familiar with the sensations so familiar to those who have been there before — the incredible speed rush as the skis skim over the snow, the shot of adrenalin pulsed through the body as the skis hit a mogul and briefly take flight, the healthy invigoration offered by the crisp mountain air. Nor are non-skiers aware of that wonderful feeling of exhaustion which accompanies the sunset at the end of the day, or that extra lift from a post-ski drink in front of a cheerfully roaring fire. These are the things that the skier knows well, yet never takes for granted.

With the White Mountains, the Green Mountains, and the Berkshires within easy driving distance, one would think that everyone here in New England would be a skier. After all, we do get plenty of snow (though the last few winters have left some doubt about that assumption). And ski areas abound. Yet, it seems that when people think of great skiing, they automatically think of the more exotic Alps of Europe, or the Western slopes of the Rockies.

This must stop.

For those who think that skiing in New England requires more time invested on the road than on the slopes, think of the attractions offered by Interstate 93. This highway, so familiar to us all as it snakes through crowded, dirty, geographically unremarkable Massachusetts, changes its face after it leaves the Bay State.

Once in New Hampshire, I-93 offers easy access to some of New England's greatest ski mountains — slopes like Loon, Waterville Valley, and Cannon Mountain. And a short drive off of I-93 brings the skier to the various slopes of the Mt. Washington Valley. In addition to the downhill slopes, New Hampshire also offers hundreds of kilometers of cross country trails which meander through the scenic winter countryside, a far cry from the hustle and bustle of Boston. In short, I-93 offers us a skier's paradise — and all within easy reach of Massachusetts.

The interior of New Hampshire is open to all. The ski areas beckon, liberated by concrete and asphalt from the wilds of a previously uncharted wilderness. Why, many of those who have been there and back have reported comforts that would not appear out-of-place in even the most modern metropolis!

Take, for instance, Bretton Woods, which offers "scenic, not stressful, skiing." What more could a vacationer ask for? The area boasts an average snowfall of 180 inches (that's 15 feet, for the less mathematically inclined), and if that isn't enough, there is also extensive artificial snow-making to take up the slack.

Located just off Route 302 (take I-93 to Route 3 north, and then follow 302 to your destination), Bretton Woods has more than 105 acres of downhill skiing, and a touring center with 100 km of groomed or tracked trails. Limited ticket sales, three lifts, rentals, plenty of opportunities for the beginner to get professional instruction and a special children's program guarantee that Bretton Woods will prove a perfect spot for the family of downhill skiing. And for those who don't thrill to the idea of plunging down snowy mountain slopes, there are all those miles of cross country trails promising soft, snowy solitude in the stunning outdoor beauty of New Hampshire.

Lodging at Bretton Woods is provided by The Lodge at Bretton Woods, located in front of a beautiful vista of world famous Mt. Washington. The lodge has 50 rooms, an indoor pool, spa pool and sauna, and reservations can be made toll free at 1-800-258-0330.

Then there's Waterville Valley, located in the heart of the White Mountain National Forest, with downhill skiing on Mt. Tecumseh, and cross country excursions possible on the vast network of surrounding trails. Again, I-93 provides the access. Drive up past Plymouth, N.H., turn left on to Rte. 49, and before you know it you're there.

Skiing Magazine has called Waterville Valley "a White Mountain Shangri-La," and with good reason. Mt. Tecumseh (named after the Shawnee Indian chief who was the principal resistor to the white man's rule in the Ohio Valley and who died in a battle with the troops of future President William Henry Harrison) has a vertical drop of more than 2,000 feet and is serviced by nine lifts, including a brand-new double chair. The Valley offers a series of three, five-and-one-half and six-day ski vacation packages (for those who wish to spend an extended time skiing the slopes) plus the usual lesson, rental and ski touring opportunities.

Lodging possibilities abound in Waterville Valley. Skiers have a choice of three comfortable lodgings in the Inns of Waterville Valley (the Silver Squirrel, the Snowy Owl and the Landmarc), or the Valley Inn and Tavern, located off exit 28 of I-93. For those with something bigger in mind, condominiums are available for rent in the valley. For further information, skiers can call toll-free at 1-800-258-8988.

How about Loon Mountain? Located on the scenic Kancamagus Highway (exit 32 off I-93), Loon offers a vertical drop of 1,850 feet, 28 trails and six lifts (including a gondola), and if mother Nature chooses to be cruel to skiers, Loon can cover 75 percent of its skiing surface with man-made snow to guarantee fine skiing no matter what the weather.

Loon skiers can stay in Lincoln (just down the road from the slopes, where they have a choice of sleeping spots. The Beacon Motel, Indian Head Motel, the Inn at Loon Mountain and the Kanca-magus Motor Lodge and Restaurant are only some of the places in Lincoln available to ski enthusiasts. For further information, call 603-745-2244.

Cannon Mountain is another extensive and popular ski area easily reached from I-93 (it is located just off the highway north of Lincoln). Operated by the New Hampshire Division of Parks and Recreation, Cannon can boast of having the first racing trail in the U.S. (1929), the country's first ski school (1930), the first North American tramway (1938) and the first World Cup competition in the United States (1967). Quite an impressive record.

For those interested more in skiing than in history, Cannon offers six lifts and 36 trails with trail grooming and snowmaking to cover 85 acres. For lodging information, call 603-823-5661.

For those willing to travel a bit past the immediate area of the I-93 slopes, the Mt. Washington Valley promises a wide variety of skiing delights. Spots like Attitash, Black Mountain, Mt. Cranmore and Wildcat can guarantee skiing terrain to satisfy all, from the novice to the hard core ski maniac. Lodging abounds in this area, for it is a favorite for skiers from all locales, and spots with ready access to the slopes can be found in North Conway and Jackson. Food, too, is in equally great supply and variety.

Clothes are a subject of great importance to the skier. With out good winter outfits, hands, ears and other exposed parts of the body would be left open to the elements, and painful, not to mention embarrassing, cases of frostbite would result. While ski dress is necessary, tastes in amount, color and style vary greatly.

Some skiers are not satisfied unless they are wearing the latest in ski fashions. Well and good. Others, however, are less picky, and are just looking for something to keep them warm. The New Hampshire mountains can become very cold on a winter's day, and dressing in layers is the best bet. Thick sweaters, a warm jacket, long underwear, good socks, hats and mittens are a must.

A wider variety of clothing is a necessity for a longer vacation. Although most eateries that cater to the ski crowd are not fussy about how the clientele is dressed, it is always nice to look spiffy when eating out. Ski sweaters are almost de rigueur.

Equipment, too, is something that varies from person to person. Some are perfectly happy with their old tie boots and wooden slab skis. Others cannot rest without the latest in foam-filled, thermal-controlled, banana-yellow boots with a special snow-resistant outer sheath and adjustable heels, along with matching skis designed by the finest engineering minds of the Twentieth Century. The best dressed folks on the slopes don't necessarily have more fun.

Only a fool would plan a winter frolic at a busy ski area without making advance preparations. Reservations are a necessity, and it is also a good idea to call ahead to determine ski conditions.

Remember, fun is the name of the game, and advance preparations can lessen the discomfort that can interfere with the athletic and hedonistic pleasures of a ski trip.

Recapture The Old Christmas Spirit

The spirit of Christmas — sometimes harder to find than the perfect gift — transforms Mystic Seaport every December into a place filled with magic and memories of the past.

Holiday activities at the Connecticut seacoast maritime museum include daytime Christmas tours for groups, evening Latern Light Tours, a Planetarium show on the "Star of Bethlehem," and a community carol sing.

Nineteenth-century decorations set the stage for the season in the Seaport's village and evergreen trees top the masts of the ships at anchor, in keeping with a nautical tradition. Doorways throughout the formal exhibit area are decorated by local garden clubs.

From December 1 to the 22nd, pre-registered groups of 15 people can join guided daytime tours that explore "Christmas at Sea and Ashore." Led by museum teachers costumed in the style of the last century, the one-hour tours trace the development of Christmas customs in the early, middle and late 1800s, bringing visitors to historic homes, shops and ships throughout the museum.

The walking tours are offered three times daily. Advance reservations are required through the Seaport's Education Department (for child groups) or the Travel Development Office (for adult groups).

The seaport's holiday season has become synonymous with its Latern Light Tours — an intimate look at the world of Christmas past. A costumed guide who speaks and acts like someone from 19th Century New England leads small groups on evening tours that reveal gentle domestic scenes, boisterous tavern revelry and the adventurous life onboard ship.

Visitors meet sailors, ship captains, housewives, tradesmen and chanteys along their way and never know when St. Nicholas might appear. This white-bearded figure, a precursor of the modern-day Santa Claus, embodied the Christmas spirit for children in the 1850s.

The tour begins with a visit to the Buckingham House, where time stands still in the early 1800s and Christmas celebrations are forbidden by the strict inhabitants. The scene provides a contrast to the singing and dancing in the tavern nearby.

The Burrows House where the holiday and the Greenman House where a prosperous Victorian family are observing Christmas Eve, are also on the tour as well as selected shops and one of the Seaport's ships. All is illuminated by the soft glow of latern light.

This year, a special version of the tour will be offered for the handicapped.

Advance reservations are required for the one-hour walking tours that begin and end at Seamen's Inn between 5 and 9 p.m. daily from Dec. 9-22. Special Christmas treats added to the Inn's regular menu make it the perfect spot to dine after the tour.

Children can also enjoy Christmas tours that are tailored to meet their own needs and interests. Victorian Christmas tours for children are conducted on Saturdays, Dec. 3, 10 and 17.

The four-hour program features hands-on activities such as making pomanders, roasting chestnuts on an open fire, fashioning gifts from traditional materials and decorating a shell tree. Children also attend a Planetarium program. Reservations are made through the Seaport's Education Department.

"The Star of Bethlehem," a half-hour Planetarium show that illustrates theories about the origin of the Christmas Star, is scheduled December 5-31 both days and evenings. Private group showings for more than 20 persons may be arranged.

On Dec. 18, a thousand carol sing brings thousands to celebrate the Seaport's Anchor Circle.

No matter what the day or occasion, December is a favorite month for families to visit the Seaport. The onset of chilly weather does not limit the offerings of the maritime museum and all the exhibit buildings and ships remain open to sightseers. A dusting of snow on the waterfront can make every view more scenic for the photographers.

The warmth from coal stoves or wood fires welcomes visitors to many of the buildings in the village such as the shipcarver's, shipsmith's and chandlery. And in the unhurried atmosphere, there is always time for friendly conversation with the craftspeople and interpreters inside.

Even the manner in which the buildings are decorated relates to the history of Christmas customs. The Buckingham House, built in the 1760s, is undecorated in keeping with the beliefs of its Congregationalist residents who observed the holiday without any frivolity.

The Burrows House, built in the 1820s, however, reflects a later era when Christmas was a recognized holiday in Connecticut to be celebrated with handmade decorations, ornaments and gifts.

And, in the 1880s Thomas Greenman House, home of the wealthy family who owned the shipyard once located on the site of the Seaport, the parlor holds some of the earliest mass-produced ornaments, Christmas cards and gifts.

For the 1980s Christmas shoppers, the Mystic Seaport Stores at the museum's south gate offer the buyer the contents of 12 stores under one roof — Christmas ornaments, toys, clothing, nautical gifts, jewelry, glassware, New England foods, fresh-baked goods, books and original art.

Mystic Seaport is in Mystic, Conn. and is open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily throughout the winter except for Christmas Day. Ample free parking is available.

The museum is located on Rte. 27, one mile south of Interstate 95 at Exit 90.

After a wedding trip to Aruba, the couple settled in Malden.

Judith A. Dayton Becomes Bride Of John P. Mitchell

Judith Ann Dayton and John Peter Mitchell were married in a 4 p.m. candlelight service on June 18 at the First Congregational Church in Winchester. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Walter Davis and the Rev. Joseph Neville.

The bride wore a gown fashioned of white silk organza trimmed with Alencon lace and Venise lace which featured an empire bodice with wedding ring neckline and short petal sleeves. The full skirt with sheer panels terminated in a chapel train. She carried a bouquet of cascading phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis, and camellia leaves.

Maids of honor were Sarah Burrows of Winchester and Nancy Hoffman of Arlington. Bridesmaids were Lisa Mitchell, sister of the bridegroom, of Elon College, N.C., Ann McCabe of Chicago, Ill., Kathleen Ruane of Belmont, and former Winchester residents, Ann Walters, now of Atlanta, Ga., and Ann Fairbanks, now residing in New York City. Miss Fairbanks was also the soloist.

Their waltz-length gowns were of white lace over purple silk with rose, aqua, and spring green cummerbunds. They carried bouquets of deep pink alstroemeria, purple statice, rose freesia, purple iris, and baby's breath.

Thomas Mitchell of Somerville served as best man for his brother. Ushers were William Mitchell of Somerville, brother of the bridegroom, Jonathan Dayton of Somerville, brother of the bride, Andrew Santos of Winchester, William Cohn of New York City, John Flanagan of Boston, Richard Read of Portland, Ore., Matthew Webber of Chelmsford, formerly of Winchester.

A reading was given by James Mendelsohn of St. Louis, Mo., and Philip Simmons of Winchester told an original story he had written as a gift for the bride and bridegroom.

A garden reception was held at Glen Magna in Danvers immediately following the ceremony. Nancy Gast of Winchester was in charge of the guest book.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman S. Dayton of Winchester, graduated from Williams College and in May of this year received her master's degree in architecture from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

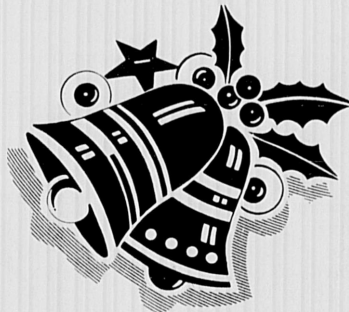

The bridegroom is a graduate of Amherst College and holds a master's degree in law and diplomacy from the Fletcher School of Tufts University. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell of Elon College, N.C. former Winchester residents.

Following a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple is residing in West Medford.

Judith and John Peter Mitchell.

St. Mary's Yankee Craft Fair To Show Talents Of Locals

More than 40 skilled, professional craftspeople will be showing their wares at "Ye Olde Yankee Crafts Faire" this Saturday at St. Mary's School Hall. Woodworkers, candymakers, dollmakers, a cartoonist, and many other artists will be offering their work for Christmas gifts, and a number of prizes will also be available. Even Santa Claus will make an appearance. Lunches and snacks will be served all day at the fair, which will run from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

YANKEE CRAFTSMAN — Woodworker LeBaron Estabrooks of Pond st. will bring his handmade rocking horses and other toys to the "Olde Yankee Craft Faire" at St. Mary's School Hall Dec. 3 from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

GETTING READY — To prepare for the hungry and the gift-hunters at the "Olde Yankee Craft Faire" to be held at St. Mary's School Hall Saturday, Oak st. candymaker Annett Kennedy has been whipping up boxes-full of confections.

CHRISTMAS FAVORITE — That traditional Christmas gift, a doll, will be available at the "Olde Yankee Crafts Faire" from Constance Cataldo, who hand-paints the faces of her porcelain antique reproduction dolls.

CROCHETED CREATIONS — A collection of craft articles from "Cindy's Crafty Creations" will be at the fair.

PRIZE — One of the prizes offered at St. Mary's "Olde Yankee Crafts Faire" will be a new Buick Skyhawk from Smyly Buick. Noreen Mango and Constance Cataldo, two members of the fair committee, picked up the car keys from Jim Smyly.

About Town

Three Exhibit

Three Winchester residents will be exhibiting and selling their work at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education's Holly Fair. Barbara Bing, Nancy Mills and Linda Vacovec will display their high quality arts and crafts at Cambridge's oldest traditional Christmas Fair.

Barbara Bing will have on hand her Teddybear backpacks, Nancy Mills will be showing her imported Welsh blankets and Linda Vacovec will display her crafts.

The Holly Fair is at the Cambridge Center's two historical buildings: Brattle House, 42 Brattle st., and the Blacksmith House, 56 Brattle st. Both buildings are open free to the public Saturday, Dec. 10, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 11, noon to 5 p.m.

Downs Prized

Valia Downes, a Surrey rd. resident, will be one of 24 prize-winning artists whose works will be displayed at the Cambridge Art Assn. exhibit during December.

From Dec. 10 through Jan. 5 the Cambridge Art Assn. at 25R Lowell st., Cambridge, will present 1982-1983 prizewinners.

The multimedia show will include Downes' work along with 23 other recent winners. Admission is free and off-street parking is available.

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

DeMars Scores

Winchester's Andrea deMars contributed to the record-setting offense that led the Bowdoin College women's soccer team to a third consecutive Northeast Intercollegiate Athletic Conference championship.

DeMars, of Wedgemere ave., had three goals and five assists during the Polar Bears' 13-3 season, which ended when Bowdoin defeated Mt. Holyoke in the championship finals, 4-0.

Three Perform

The Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra will be having its annual holiday concert at 3 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 11, at Jordan Hall, New England Conservatory.

The concert will include Carmen Suite No. 1 by Bizet, Nutcracker Suite No. 71A by Tchaikovsky and Pines of Rome by Respighi.

Winchester members of the orchestra are Chester Liu playing cello, Lester Lien on Violin and Debbie Daugherty on the viola.

Admission is free, but call The Greater Boston Youth Symphony orchestra's office at Boston University for reserved seating.

Colvario Shows

Winchester Art Assn. member Joyce Agri Colvario of Stoneham is exhibiting her watercolors, acrylics and lithographs at the Winchester Cooperative Bank for the months of November and December.

Colvario is a graphic artist for a large advertising firm and has worked in the field for several years. She received her art education at the Boston Museum School and has taken art courses at Rhode Island School of Design while she was living in that area. She is studying with Winchester resident Carolyn Latinisio who maintains a studio in Woburn.

Beranek Re-elected

Dr. Leo L. Beranek of Ledgewood rd. former chief executive officer of Boston Broadcasters, has been re-elected to the Board of Directors of the American Judicature Society, a national organization for improvement of the courts.

Founded in 1913, AJS is supported by more than 30,000 concerned citizens. Through research, educational programs and publications, the Society addresses concerns related to the selection and retention of judges, court management and the public's understanding of the judicial system.

A graduate of Cornell College, Dr. Beranek holds a doctor of science degree from Harvard University. A communications specialist, he is a member of the board of the Franklin N. Flaschner Judicial Institute.

Northeastern Grads

Seven local residents were among 726 Northeastern University graduates who received degrees at September commencement held in Northeastern's Matthews Arena.

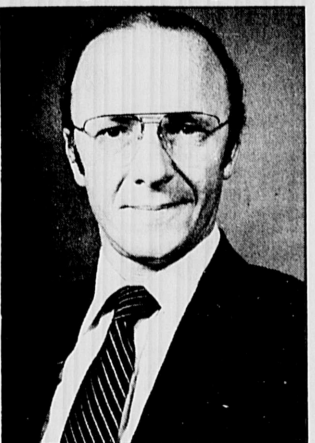

Frances E. Shawcross of Mystic Valley pkwy. received her master of science degree from the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Judith M. Sparrow of Swanton st. received her master's of business administration from the Graduate School of Business Administration.

Cathleen A. Hines of Eaton ct. received her master's of education from the Bouve College of Human Development. Christy A. Crawford of Cottage ave., John J. Haggerty of Adams rd., and Scott K. Themo of Manomet rd., all received their bachelor of arts degrees from the College of Arts and Sciences.

Michael H. Robinson of Mayflower rd. received a bachelor of science-business administration degree from the College of Business Administration.

Murphy Knighted

KNIGHTED — Winchester native Peter K. Murphy, United States Consul General in Genoa, Italy, was presented with the insignia of a Knight of the Order of Grimaldi by Prince Rainier III at the National Day Celebration at the Palace in Monaco Nov. 19. The award recognized Murphy's efforts in strengthening U.S.-Monegasque relations in the commercial, cultural and political fields during his service as U.S. Consul in Monaco from 1975 to 1977.

Four Listed

Four Winchester students at Northeastern University have been named to the dean's list for the summer quarter.

David B. Duffy of Mayflower rd. was named to the dean's list at the College of Engineering. On the dean's list for the College of Business Administration were Ronald E. Dokus of Fairmount st., Robin L. Getson of Main st. and Jane C. Sullivan of Nathaniel rd.

Promoted

MAJOR — Dr. Albert L. Sherburne, an optometrist practicing on Church st. since 1975, has been promoted to the rank of major in the Massachusetts Air National Guard. Dr. Sherburne was also named disaster preparedness officer for the 102 USAF Clinic at Otis Air National Guard Base, a job which involves planning for the contingencies of a major peacetime or wartime disaster on Cape Cod.

Thompsons Return

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thompson of Clark st., have returned from Australia after a month's stay with their daughter Ruth. While there they toured New South Wales and other inland areas and found the people very gracious and the country beautiful. Enroute home they spent a week in Maui.

answer two questions — does the Winchester Housing Authority meet the housing needs of the town, and how well does it handle tenant relations?

The results of the study show, according to League members, that the Housing Authority fails in both areas.

"The Housing Authority obviously does not meet the needs of low-income families for housing at all — there is no program for them, and there never has been," commented the League's Marcia Wood.

As for the tenants, League members reported, although they live in well-maintained apartments, the Housing Authority gives them no respect.

"I am really outraged by the way the tenants are treated," said League president Marjorie McCann-Estridge. "They are not meeting the tenants' needs well if they are giving the people no dignity."

League members reviewed the Housing Authority's annual reports and the minutes of its meetings, attended one Housing Authority meeting, and spoke to both tenants and Housing Authority members.

The League found what members say is a pattern of arrogance and resistance to change in the Housing Authority's dealings over its 13 years of existence.

The League members reported that:

- The Housing Authority has added no new housing in town since the early 1970s, despite a need in town for low-income housing — a need demonstrated by the fact that three Winchester families have turned to Lexington for low-income housing.

- Several private proposals to put a few low-income housing units in town, in already-built two- or three-family homes, were ignored by the Housing Authority.

- The Housing Authority has repeatedly refused to work with other town boards. When selectmen appointed a liaison to the WHA in 1977, the WHA refused to send him information. The authority also refused to send information for the town's recently completed Fair Housing Policy statement.

- Private citizens can't check on Housing Authority actions easily. The WHA is the only town board which doesn't file minutes of its meetings in the Winchester Library.

- The Housing Authority doesn't think much of working with the state either. For eight years, the state demanded that the WHA establish a grievance procedure for handling tenant complaints. WHA Chairman Mary Murphy, according to authority minutes, said "The Winchester Housing Authority enjoys perfect relationships with its tenants, making a grievance procedure unnecessary."

- Housing Authority apartment residents aren't as certain as Murphy that the relationship is perfect. Tenants told the LWV's Barbara Savage that the Housing Authority "treats us like babies."

"Everyone consistently perceived the administration as being condescending," said Savage.

- Tenants have no idea what the grievance procedure is, or how to find out, although the procedure is supposed to be posted in a public place. Nor do Housing Authority members know the procedure — when the League asked three WHA members what the grievance procedure was, they came up with three different answers.

The bulk of the League's study was in housing — what kind the WHA could provide, and what it does provide.

According to the League's Julie Muggia, the state statute that created housing authorities in 1969, as well as guidelines from the Executive Office of Communities and Development, state that housing authorities "are supposed to be concerned with the total housing needs of a community."

In all communities in the state, noted League co-president Betty Small, the greatest housing need is for inexpensive places to live. There have been no apartments built in the state since the 70s, she reported, and only 10 percent of the population can afford to buy a house, compared to 75 percent 10 years ago.

Other town housing authorities have fulfilled the needs of moderate-income families by providing subsidized apartments, usually scattered through the town in two- or three-family homes, the League's Connie Williams noted. Melrose and Wakefield each have a handful of such "scattered site housing" units, while Concord has 45 units and Lincoln has more than 150.

But Winchester has none, and the Winchester Housing Authority has done nothing to get any.

Part of the reason Winchester has no moderate-income housing, said League members, is the attitude of the WHA.

Muggia noted that in the WHA's 1979 minutes, after the Housing Authority was told there might be funds available for scattered site housing, WHA chairman Mary Murphy stated that the Town Meeting mandate was to build elderly housing, and elderly housing only.

The League not only talked about what the Housing Authority wasn't doing about housing, they examined what the WHA was doing in the two elderly housing units it now runs.

According to the League members, the tenants in those projects see the Housing Authority members as aloof and unreachable.

The League's Small related that at one meeting she attended, a handful of tenants turned out to complain about tenants being locked out of a meeting room. The room had been locked, according to the tenants, because three of the tenants had held a pizza party over the weekend.

"Only one person from the Housing Authority spoke — Mary Murphy — and she was defensive and degrading to the tenants," said Small. "She treated them like children."

Savage, who interviewed several tenants, said that "all of them knew about the closing of the meeting room. They saw it as punishment."

they are doing a good job."

Meader wasn't as sure the League had done a good job studying the Housing Authority. It was difficult for her to respond to the report, she noted, since Housing Authority members hadn't received copies.

"The League seems to do things haphazardly," she said. "They are not pleased with things too often. And I was in the League for 20 years."

"We are aware the clock is ticking, and that we are going to have to get an answer in time to conduct an election," he said, adding that no court date has been set yet.

Gray said that before the case goes to court, he will make motions to combine the case with the taxpayer suit or have it dismissed.

Attorney Welch attacked the appointment on several fronts in August, notifying the Attorney General's and Secretary of State's offices and filing several suits.

Besides the taxpayer suit, legally called a 10-taxpayer suit, Welch filed suits claiming that Winchester voters' civil rights had been violated and that the appointment was illegal under the town Charter.

The Charter violation case claimed that since under the Charter the WHA is to have four elected and one appointed members, appointing Meader changed the makeup of the authority. That case, however, was dismissed Monday.

★ Robbery

One more shot was fired before the chase came to an end. Woburn Police Officer Richard Macinanti, also on the scene at the time, rammed his cruiser into the suspects' car — and watched as it spun around and ended up backwards on Montvale ave., after knocking down the traffic light in front of the Brighams.

Ennis and Bush got out of their car and continued to flee on foot. At that point, Macinanti drew his gun and ordered the pair to stop. Ennis fired at him and missed.

Macinanti fired back — hitting Ennis in the leg and bringing him to the ground.

"It was quite a combination of efforts on the parts of the different police officers," noted McHugh. "Gray really persisted in his pursuit and all the men did an outstanding job — they were unrelentless."

VOLUNTEER — Anita Meyer of Stone ave. recently attended a volunteer development seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society's Massachusetts Division. The seminar was offered to develop and improve leadership and communication skills in American Cancer Society volunteer leaders.

★ Answer

League members only attended two meetings and interviewed him briefly. The League also went through the WHA's annual report and meeting minutes.

The League, for example, based many of their comments on tenant relations on one meeting when several tenants complained to the Housing Authority about a meeting room being locked.

Housing Authority member Mary Meader said that one incident was very unusual.

"Most of the tenants are very happy," said Meader. "I'm new and just feeling my way around, but I have talked to friends who have family members there and some tenants."

"When those tenants came in, I was very surprised," she said.

At the end of that meeting, the Housing Authority voted to keep the meeting room open for all tenants.

Like that incident, which the League says shows a trend and the Housing Authority says was an isolated, unusual occurrence, the League's version of the WHA's actions and the Housing Authority members' version are quite different.

Based on reading the minutes, the League concluded that the Housing Authority has taken no action to bring new forms of housing to town, aside from housing for the elderly.

But both Regan and the other WHA member interviewed, Herbert Hamilton Jr., said that they are interested in more than just elderly housing.

"I am of the same opinion (as the League) — the town does, of course, need other kinds of housing: extended care, congregate housing, low- and moderate-income housing," said Hamilton. "We have discussed this. It's the opinion of most of the Housing Authority members that we should try, when we can, to achieve additional housing."

"I am willing to look at new types of housing — I indicated that when I ran for office," said Regan.

But both members say the Housing Authority can't do much more than talk about bringing in new housing.

"I can recall just a few million dollars being available through the commonwealth for new housing," said Hamilton, who is starting his sixth year as the state's appointee to the board. "And that money is gobbled up by towns in a more favorable position."

"I think it would be good to say we will pursue other forms of housing," added Hamilton. "But right now, there is nothing there. There is so very little money available."

However, Hamilton said the Housing Authority hasn't actually gone out searching for funds either, although he said "we may have made an application" in the late 70s.

Regan also noted that Housing Authority members believe there was little sentiment in the town to bring in moderate-income housing.

"If I remember rightly, Town Meeting didn't want to get into low-income housing, they wanted strictly elderly housing," said Regan. "I'm not saying I agree. I'm just saying it was brought out."

In any case, Regan doesn't think it's the WHA's place to go to Town Meeting and ask for a mandate to start building low-income housing.

"The direction should come from Town Meeting," Regan said. "I would respect the advice or the wishes or the sense of the meeting."

According to Meader, who has been a Town Meeting member since the 60s, the Housing Authority is doing what Town Meeting expects.

"The Housing Authority has, from what I can gather, doing everything it's supposed to do," said Meader. "I think

★ State

Law, which states that housing authority vacancies "shall be filled for the balance of the unexpired term."

But the same section also adds "except elected members in towns whose terms shall be filled in accordance with the provisions of Sect. 11, Ch. 41 of the General Laws."

That section states a person shall be appointed until the next town election.

The Attorney General's office, as the 15 taxpayers had done earlier, is basing its case on the final clause in Section 26L.

"I can state in all honesty that the law is not a model of clarity," commented Gray. "But we take the position that the appointment should be until the next town election. The Attorney General and the Secretary of State are suing to tell the town to conduct an election."

Gray said he wants to act quickly on the case, since candidates for town election, held the last Tuesday in March, usually take out papers by mid-January.

Sachemettes Are Best Booters In State

By DAVE LEECO

The state championship contest was a game of firsts for the Sachemettes.

The game was the first opportunity the Winchester girls soccer team has had to play in a state championship final.

It turned out to be the first game this season that an opponent had scored more than one goal against the Sachemette defense.

It was the first time this season any team tied the score up twice against the Sachemettes.

And it was the first game since she became injured halfway through the season that wing Karen Serieka felt she had her game back together.

Which was a good thing for the Sachemettes. Because Serieka's two goals, including the game-winner in the fourth quarter, helped give the Sachemettes their first state crown ever.

Although the Sachemettes outplayed West Springfield through most of the game, the Western Mass. champs managed to stay even with the Winchester girls through scrappy play and a little luck

(they tied the game in the third when a Winchester defender knocked the ball into the Sachemette net).

Then Serieka showed she could scrap too.

The Sachemette wing had missed the final seven games of the season with a painful ankle sprain, and had been hobbled by the injury through the EMass tournament.

But Serieka wasn't about to let an injury prevent her from playing all-out in her final game as a Sachemette. Nor did the senior want that final game to be a loss.

"This was the last game I was going to play in high school, and no matter what I was going to play," said Serieka. "I was a little rusty in the first playoff games, but I was starting to get my skills back and I was ready to play."

Was she ever. Serieka won the game for the Sachemettes 13 seconds into the fourth quarter, when she took a pass from Mich Powers and banged it into the net.

"I have to give Karen a great deal of credit for her courage and desire," said

Powers' Hat Trick, Serieka's Two Goals Bring State Title

coach Chris Scanlon. "She had a severe sprain on both sides of her ankle. She played in pain, the ankle was heavily taped, and she wasn't as effective as she can be."

"I kept telling her through the rehabilitation that there is some kind of justification for that kind of thing — to be cut short halfway through her senior season didn't seem fair," added Scanlon. "The justification came in the final."

Serieka's fourth-quarter goal would put Winchester up for good, 4-3. But the game wasn't in the bag until four minutes later, when Mich Powers picked up her third goal of the evening to give the Sachemettes an unbeatable, two-goal, 5-3 lead.

"After Mich's goal, West Springfield kind of faded," commented Scanlon, adding that up until that moment, "It was as exciting an offensive show as I've ever been involved in."

West Springfield, in fact, battered the Sachemette defense harder than any team had this season, as the two-time state champion and six-time Western Mass. titleholder scored three goals and tied the game up twice.

But the Sachemettes matched the West Springfield offensive push, thanks to Powers and Serieka.

Powers had her best game of the tournament, scoring a hat trick and proving that she was simply the best soccer scoring in Massachusetts high schools right now.

Powers, who has 29 goals this season, "was truly outstanding — she played her best game in the finals," according to Scanlon. "That's the mark of a great player, to play her best in the biggest game of the year."

Powers did exactly what Scanlon wished for going into the game, scoring early. "From talking to some of the people there (at the field), they felt West Springfield was going to beat us," said Scanlon. "The West Springfield paper said the team didn't feel they were going to lose, that they were going to beat the hot shots from the east."

"That really insulted me," continued Scanlon. "I explained all that to the team, and said the thing to do was score quickly and get them off-balance."

Powers got West Springfield off-balance nine minutes into the game. A chip shot in front of the net gave the Sachemettes' top goal-scorer an opportunity, and Powers headed it into the goal to put the team up 1-0.

She knocked West Springfield further out of whack less than two minutes later, when she took a Laura Weylman pass and flipped a looping shot past the West Springfield goaltender.

But West Springfield isn't called the "Never-Say-Die Girls" by the local papers for nothing. In the second period, they tied the score up with a pair of goals.

Running Away With It

RUNNING AWAY WITH IT — Just as Scott Binding ran out of the reach of Woburn's Steven Rae, so did Winchester run away with the football game against Woburn, winning the Thanksgiving Day Bowl 35-6.

Sachems Mop Up Tanners, 35-6 Win

THANKSGIVING STAR — Quarterback Bob Palmer was the offensive force for the Sachems on Thanksgiving.

By DAVE LEECO

The fun has gone back into being a Sachem football fan.

The 1983 edition of the Woburn-Winchester Thanksgiving Day game was everything a Sachem fan could wish for — the rain held off, the temperature was bearable, and most of all the Sachems stomped all over the Woburn Tanners 35-6.

The Turkey Day Bowl has probably brought out the crowds of fans — from both Winchester and Woburn — since it began in 1928. And 55 years later, things haven't changed. Knowlton Stadium was packed with 8,000 fans standing 10-deep in the end zone and 20 deep up the hill to the wall of McCall Jr. High.

And those fans (or at least the majority, those from Winchester) had the pleasure of watching the home-town boys romp all morning at the game.

They got all of the fun stuff — 42-yard touchdown runs, 20-yard-touchdown passes, a Sachem fumble recovery and interception — with none of the bad stuff, like Woburn ever posing a threat.

The game, obviously, was a ball for the Sachem gridders as well. And after a season of losses that weren't fun at all and wins that were so close you couldn't enjoy them until they were over, the Thanksgiving Day Blow-Out was a nice change of pace.

The Sachems did the job both offensively and defensively. The offense stunned Woburn with three touchdowns in the first quarter, while the defense didn't give up a touchdown until the final quarter and stopped everyone but Tanner Jim Mogauro.

That can be understood, as nobody else in the league has stopped Mogauro either (he topped 1000 yards rushing this season on Thanksgiving). But one man can't win a football game, and Mogauro was the only Tanner able to penetrate the Sachem defense — he had 154 yards for the day, while the rest of the Tanner rush was minus-two yards.

The Sachems showed Woburn the meaning of a balanced offense. Quarterback Bob Palmer matched Mogauro's rushing total of 154 yards, plus another 86 yards passing. Scott Binding picked up another 37 yards rushing, and Brian Carroll dove over the middle three times for touchdowns and caught a Palmer pass for a fourth TD.

Coach Manny Marshall's game plan and Palmer's signal calling completely befuddled the Tanners. The Sachems struck through the middle, around the ends and in the air.

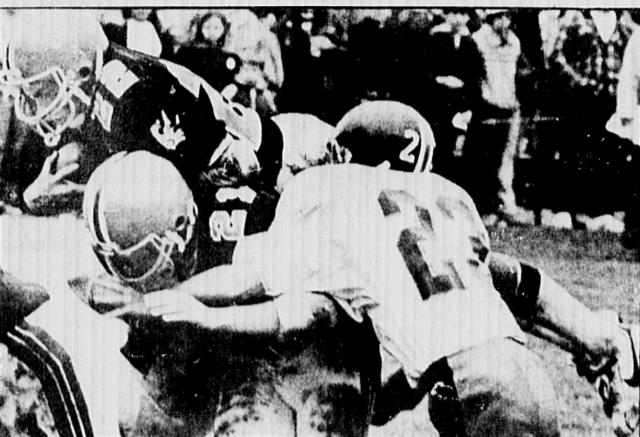

And they struck early, hitting on the Tanners for two touchdowns in the first quarter and another before the second quarter was half over.

Fans were still buying hot dogs and coffee when the Sachems scored the first time, on their second possession. Taking the ball on a Woburn punt, Winchester used a couple of plays and a few first downs to get to the Woburn 42, and then hit the gas.

On second and nine, Palmer worked the option perfectly. He faked a handoff, looked to pass, and then decided to run with it. He raced to the right sideline and didn't stop until he crossed the goal line.

The touchdown would have been the game-winner if David McCall's kick hadn't been blocked. But as it turned out,

SCORE — The Sachems' Brian Carroll scored four touchdowns Thursday against Woburn, with three of them coming like this one, Carroll's second, on dives over the top.

★Football

In no time at all, Winchester took the kickoff and moved 67 yards down field. Again, they used every option in the option, as Palmer carried for 17. Binding went right for 15, Carroll ran for another 15. Binding hauled in a 15-yard pass from Palmer and Palmer dove off-tackle to put Winchester at the Woburn 2.

The Sachems finished it off with Carroll going up over the top, twisting to get just over the goal line. McCall didn't miss the block wouldn't make one bit of difference.

On their first play after the kickoff, Woburn fumbled and the Sachems' Dave Koffman recovered on the Woburn 24.

Twenty-four yards was a cake-walk for the Sachems that day. On third and six, Palmer hit Brian Carroll as he crossed the scrimmage line near the sideline. Carroll skipped down the sideline and into the end zone for the second touchdown in less than four minutes.

A two-point conversion pass to Koffman made up for the missed kick, and the score was 14-0 at 8:41 in the game.

Woburn, led by Magauno, got down to the Sachem 33 on their next possession, but then the Sachem rush forced two incomplete passes and Woburn had to punt.

this point after kick, and the score was 21-0.

Winchester almost grabbed one more touchdown before the half ended, as Nick Asaro intercepted a pass on and ran it back to the Woburn 10-yard line. The clock ran out with Winchester just about ready to score, though.

No matter what Woburn coach Peter Sullivan told his troops in the locker room at half-time, it didn't change the game one bit.

The Sachems came out in the third quarter, took the kickoff, and marched all the way downfield for their fourth TD of the day in less than 40 seconds.

On the kick-off, Binding hauled in the ball at the 13 and raced out to the Winchester 30. To follow that up, Carroll sprang through the middle of the Woburn line and was gone — only a shoe-string tackle at the Woburn 30 stopped him from scoring. He would score soon, though, diving for another one-yard touchdown play after Palmer carried twice to get the ball in range.

Even with the score 27-0, the Sachems didn't let up.

The defense stopped Woburn in four plays, and their rush on the punter resulted in a flubbed kick that left Winchester on their own 43.

A pass from Palmer to Carroll put Winchester well down in Woburn territory, at the 30. As they had done only a few minutes before, they quickly moved to the one-yard-line and sent Carroll in with the ball.

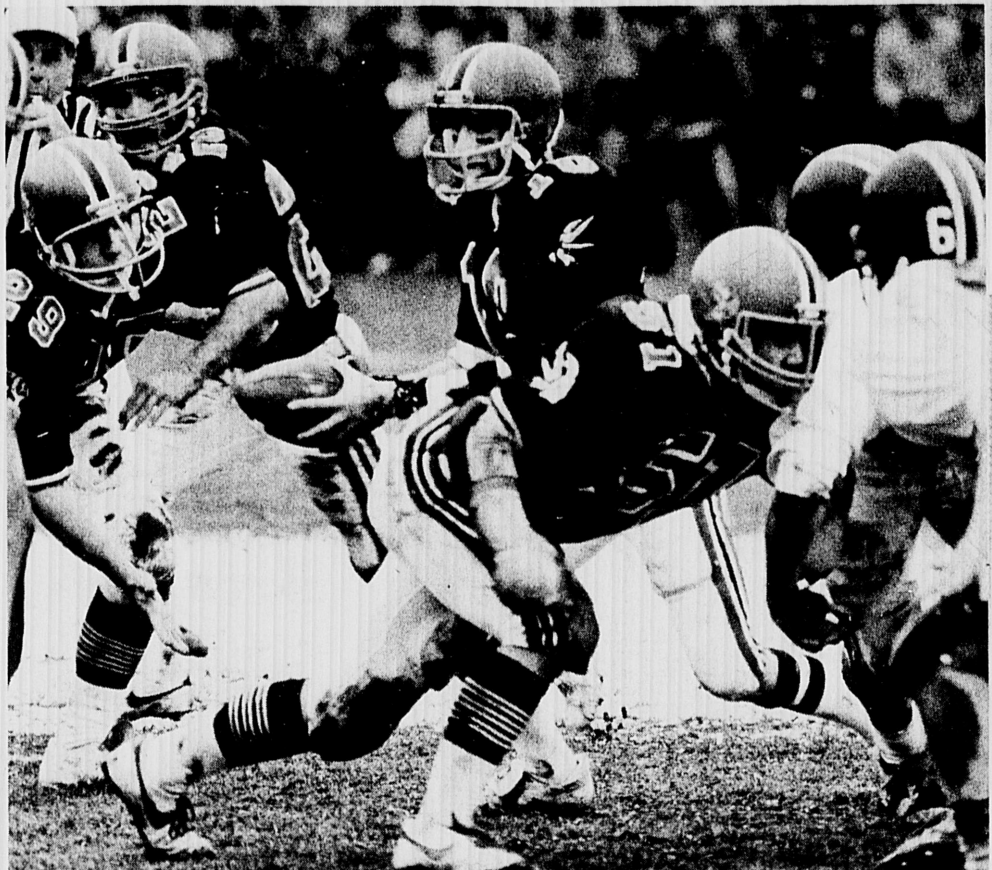

A little flip pass to Koffman gave the Sachems the two-point conversion, and the score stood at 35-0.

Woburn finally scored at 9:08 of the fourth quarter, but even then the Sachem defense wasn't being generous. They stopped the two-point conversion to put the final score at 35-6.

The Woburn score did absolutely nothing to diminish the good feelings of the fans and the players who were laughing and clapping in the stands and on the sidelines.

They have something more to be happy about than just the one game, as well. The three stars of the Turkey Day Bowl — Palmer, Carroll and Binding — will all be back in Sachem uniforms next year. The three rookie learned enough this year to bring the Sachems a 4-1 league record and a 5-1 record overall.

Next year, it very well may be fun to be a Sachem fan all year long.

EXECUTION — Sachem quarterback Bob Palmer (10) ran the option perfectly Thanksgiving Day, passing when Woburn expected a run, handing off the ball when they were looking for a pass. So it's hard to tell whether he ever did give the ball to Tony Vozzella (29) behind the blocking of Barry Tse (51) and Brian Carroll (22).

Frosh Gridders End Up With 5-1-1

The Winchester High School freshman football team completed their season this past Friday afternoon with a 14-0 victory against the Chelmsford freshman at Knowlton Stadium.

After a scoreless first half, the Winchester squad took control after halftime with a strong inside running game and near-flawless defensive effort.

The freshman scored on their first possession of the second half, marching over 60 yards in the drive that ended with Darin Cromwell scoring from a yard out. The conversion attempt failed. They also scored the next time their offense went out to the field, once again with Darin Cromwell capping the drive with an 18 yard burst behind the strong blocking of the right side of the line. He also scored the two-point conversion.

The defense took control, the only first down they allowed Chelmsford was by a penalty until the waning moments of the game when the outcome had been already decided.

This game concluded a fine season for the frosh. They ended up with a 5-1-1 record. The team started the season with strong efforts in defeating Wakefield, Belmont, Watertown, and Burlington, outscoring their opponents 120-27 in these games. They were tied by Stoneham, and then lost a heartbreaker to their Woburn rivals 6-0 before they rallied for the final win against Chelmsford.

The team, throughout the season, showed great running ability and a surprisingly effective passing attack for a team this young. The heart of this team was their defense. Allowing only 45 points in the seven games, the "Bruise Boys," as the team knicknamed them, constantly held the opponents in check game after game.

Coaches John Pirani and Lenny Merullo had their troops well-prepared throughout the season. The coaches should also be commended for their shuttle system of replacements that gave all 37 members playing time in every game.

Coach Manny Marshall should definitely be encouraged by this team's play, and look forward to the coming years when they reach his varsity squad.

INFLATION'S UGLY HEAD

If inflation continues at its current rate, try to envision a picture of yourself 20 years from now. You and your spouse set out from your recently purchased home which cost you $244,387, in your new Chevrolet Impala ($21,786) for a night out at your favorite restaurant. The prime rib dinner is delicious and you don't mind paying the $83 bill. A stop enroute home enables you to pick up a paperback novel ($7.08) and the morning newspaper ($1.27).

Arlington 5 announces the "Best Investor" Loan Program

With this program we will write mortgages up to 90% loan to value on 1-4 family investment properties and second homes. Our "Best Investor" rates are the same as our owner-occupied rates and require only an additional 3/4 point at closing. As little as 10% down is the "Best Investor" way to leverage a real estate investment. For details on our program, stop by any of our convenient locations or call us at 643-0011.

Baratta Receives Award

Federal Executive Board Honors FDA Chemist, Author

Edmond J. Baratta of Fairlane recently received an award for "exceptional professional and technical achievement" from the Boston area Federal Executive Board.

Making the presentation to Baratta were Claire P. Monier, regional director of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and vice-chair of the Boston area FEB, and board chairman William J. Foley of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Baratta, a supervisory chemist with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, was cited for his more than 20 years of work in developing analytical methods of protection from nuclear contaminants.

He developed a method of analyzing the presence of Iodine-131 in milk. During the Three Mile Island incident, he supervised the analysis of over 2000 milk samples from the surrounding area.

Recently, he played a key role in an interagency effort with the Environmental Protection Agency to evaluate hazards from oceanic nuclear dump sites.

The author of over 30 publications, Baratta serves on the Standard Methods Committee, Joint Task Force of the American Public Health Association. His analysis method for Iodine 131 is included in the Book of Methods of the Assn. of Official Analytical Chemists.

Baratta has been employed by the Federal government for over 27 years, the past 13 years with the FDA.

In making the award presentation, Chairman Foley said that Baratta's achievements were "representative of a long tradition of contributions to the nation's health, strength and security by its career federal employees."

Monier noted that Baratta's "quick and appropriate response to situations show the skilled professionalism and dedication that truly makes HHS live up to its name as 'The People's Department'."

Interact Is Looking For Toys

Winchester Interact has begun its annual collection of toys for needy children.

Attention! Area Federal and Postal Employees...

The Lahey Clinic Blue Cross & Blue Shield Health Maintenance Plan wants you!

During Open Season: Nov. 14 through Dec. 9

Federal and Postal workers living within our service area can now select a unique Health Maintenance Organization (HMO) that offers truly comprehensive health care coverage. The Lahey Clinic Blue Cross and Blue Shield Health Maintenance Plan.

As a member, you won't have to pay the usual "out of pocket" fees for non-hospital care. You're covered completely for physicals, doctors office visits, eye tests, immunizations, hearing tests and maternity care.

The plan also provides comprehensive coverage for major illnesses with full hospitalization for an unlimited number of days. Other benefits include intensive care, emergency care, x-rays and laboratory services.

Each member selects a personal physician from the Lahey Clinic staff. This physician is responsible for providing and arranging all your medical care and can be consulted in person by appointment or called for advice.

For further information ask your health benefits officer for our brochure or call the Lawrence office of Blue Cross & Blue Shield at (617) 687-2131.

You must live within this Service Area:

Sachems' Barry Sirchis Becomes Stopping Woburn Fastest Runner In The State

Before he became the fastest high school cross country runner in Massachusetts on Saturday, Barry Sirchis knew he wanted that title.

Before being the first in the state to break the 15-minute mark on the three-mile course, Sirchis commented, "All I want to do is put a large time span between me and the other runners."

And according to his coach, Joe Cantillon, he couldn't think about anything else but breaking that mark.

"He's had a total commitment to this goal all fall," said Cantillon. "Both physically and mentally he was ready to blow all the other runners away — and he did."

Last year, Sirchis placed only 15th in the state. This year, the undefeated runner was hungry to win — and his appetite couldn't have been more satiated.

Sirchis beat his closest opponent by a full 20 seconds at Franklin Park on Saturday.

"It took him about 60 yards or so to take the lead," observed Cantillon. "He was challenged for the first mile and then he blew them all away. It was his best effort of the season."

Sirchis ran hard and fast in every single meet he entered — and won all of them. All season long, his closest competitor was his teammate Bill Derry, who did not place in the state meet.

For Sirchis, the victory was the culmination of months of training. This summer, he attended a special running camp at Bucknell University, and trained daily after that — throughout the heatwaves of summer and the rain of autumn. Sirchis was determined to be state champion. Yet according to Cantillon, he has not even reached his potential yet as a runner.

"Certainly he's the best runner I've ever coached," admitted Cantillon proudly. "But he will get better as the distance goes up, as it does on the college level. And I'm sure college coaches are aware of this."

After his victory, Sirchis did not relax and take it easy — he went to New York on Sunday to run in a regional race, proving Cantillon's contention that he is was born to win.

"Let's face it — he's got a killer instinct," Cantillon said. "It's incredible — it only comes out when he steps over the line and attempts to be the best."

That's what Sirchis has done all season. And now every cross country competitor in the state knows it too.

CAN'T RUN FAR ENOUGH — Although Woburn's Jim Mogau rushed for 154 yards Thanksgiving Day (an effort which put him over the 1000-yard mark for the season) he didn't go far enough to score a touchdown, as the Sachems hauled him down before he did too much damage. Plus, Mogau was the only Tanner rusher the Sachems let get through — Mogau's 154 yards were two more than the total Tanner offense produced.

★ Champs

"We were obviously upset at half-time," said Scanlon. "But I told the girls we were doing a good job on defense, passing well, and getting the scoring opportunities."

The Sachettes took the advice to heart.

The defense, led by Camille Ducharme, stifled the West Springfield offense for the rest of the game, with the only West Springfield goal of the second half coming when a Winchester player accidentally knocked a rebound into the Sachette net.

And the offense, led by Serieka and Powers, produced three more goals to give Winchester the championship.

Serieka put the Sachettes ahead, 3-2, early in the third quarter. And then, when the defensive error tied the game again, she came back with the goal-winner in the fourth. Powers' third goal of the game, four minutes later, sealed West Springfield's fate.

Although Serieka and Powers were the keys to the state championship win, it was the entire Sachette team, a team that went 17-0-1 this season, that got them to that pinnacle.

Fifteen Sachettes scored or had assists in the four-game tournament season. And except for the state final, the tournament games were won on defense, with players like Ducharme, Bonnie Jean Casey, Julie Conley and goalie Amy Peluso holding off all attackers and giving up only five goals (including the three in the final).

"This year's team was different from last year's (EMass champions) in a lot of ways," said Scanlon. "We lost two outstanding players — Maria Montuori and Kim Donlon — who we relied on a lot last year. This year, we tried to play as much team soccer as we could."

"People, other coaches, kept telling me over the course of the season that they felt this year's was a better team — that we passed better," continued Scanlon. "I agreed — we worked more on passing than before. We didn't have to rely as much on individual ability."

Even one of the two players whose individual ability helped win the game Wednesday agreed.

"It was a team effort," said Serieka of the win. "There wasn't one stand-out — everyone really played well."

And everyone on the team can now claim they're champions.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records local representatives' vote on roll calls from the late sessions on Nov. 17 and 18 on rules reform. There were no roll calls in the House or Senate during the week of Nov. 21-25.

NEW RULES: House 146-1, approved the new House rules allowing the majority caucus to ratify the Speaker's appointment and removal of the leadership team and committee chairs. Under the new rules, votes cannot be conducted by secret ballot unless a majority of the caucus votes to do so. Another provision requires all caucuses called for ratification purposes to be open to the public and press. The new rules also give the Minority Leader the power to appoint all members of the minority party to standing committees.

Supporters argued the new rules are a significant reform which gives more power to rank and file members and opens up the legislative process. Some complained they would have preferred a secret ballot required for ratification in order to prevent intimidation and retribution by the Speaker.

Opponents argued changes do not go far enough and said real rules reform will occur if the question gets on the ballot in 1984.

A "Yea" vote is for the new rules. A "Nay" vote is against them.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

NOMINATIONS: House 76-73, rejected an amendment allowing representatives to nominate candidates for the leadership positions and committee chairs in the majority caucus.

Supporters argued the amendment opens up the process and allows all members, not just the Speaker, to nominate qualified people.

Opponents argued the Speaker should have the sole authority to nominate his team and the caucus should only have the power to ratify. They said open nominations will turn the process into a popularity contest.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment allowing representatives to make nominations. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

REMOVALS ONLY: House defeated 128-19, an amendment striking the section of the proposed rules changes which makes the Speaker's appointments of the leadership team and committee chairs subject to ratification by the majority caucus. The amendment includes a section requiring ratification of removal of a person in one of those positions, but requires it be done by written ballot.

Supporters, noting 43 states have this system, argued the Speaker should have the right to name his or her own team without ratification. They said this would help the House function more efficiently.

Some opponents said ratification of appointments is a key part of rules reform and should not be eliminated. Other opponents said the written ballot proposal in the amendment is undemocratic and fosters a closed and secret system.

Saltmarsh voted no.

BEYOND 10 P.M.: House 120-28, suspended rules to allow the House to sit past 10 p.m.

Supporters argued the proposed rules changes are important and urged the House to remain in session and finally complete its work.

Opponents said late sessions turn into "government by exhaustion" and argued the House should adjourn until Monday. Some said they preferred to wait until Monday so constituents can express their opinions on the matter over the weekend.

A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow the session to go beyond 10 p.m. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

SALARIES: House 128-17, upheld the ruling of the chair that an amendment limiting the salaries of the Speaker, leadership team, and committee chairs was not in order and went beyond the scope of the rules changes being considered. The amendment limits the Speaker's salary to 50 percent above rank and file members and the floor leaders and Ways and Means chair to 25 percent above it. The committee chairs and assistant floor leaders' salaries would be limited to $1000 above regular members.

Supporters of the chair's ruling argued the amendment is a sneaky attempt to circumvent the legislative process.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Season's Greetings

•Humbug — Tax Bills Coming

By DAVE LEECO

It used to be the worst thing you could get around Christmastime was coal in your stocking. But this year, in Winchester, it's tax bills.

After a two-month-plus delay, the tax bills for the first half of the year will be delivered about two weeks before the year is over.

"We're shooting for the end of this week," said Town Manager Thomas Groux Tuesday when asked when the bills would be out, one of the favorite questions around town since October.

The bills, which are usually mailed out Oct. 1, have been delayed while the Board of Assessors completes its update of the town's property values.

That update is virtually finished, according to Groux. The state Dept. of Revenue gave its approval to the tax rate Monday, the assessors should be finished checking the values printed out by the computer by mid-week.

That takes care of everything but printing the bills, stuffing envelopes and mailing out the bills, something that will take only a day, according to Groux.

So on Friday, Monday at the latest, the tax bills will be off to residents' mailboxes.

Those bills will probably show an increase over last year's, because of the reassessment, although some residents may not have to pay more than last year.

Although all assessments are being increased between 4 and 10 percent, the tax rate for residential properties is dropping from last year's $23.60 to $22.74.

As a result, mid-priced homes in town, which are having their assessments in-

•Christmas Lights On Tonight

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce is holding its Lighting Ceremony at 7 tonight on the Common for all the townspeople to enjoy.

The tree lights on the Rotary and the Common will be all turned on accompanied by a brass ensemble and holiday music provided by the choruses of the Junior and High School Music Depts.

Many of the local merchants will be open that evening to join in the celebration and offer to the public the convenience of downtown shopping.

The Chamber is inviting the merchants, clubs, organizations and any residents to please give a small donation to the Lighting Fund to help make this Christmas in Winchester the brightest ever. All contributions will be accepted by the Winchester Chamber at 573 Main st. in care of the Lighting Fund.

The Winchester Chamber extends its thanks to the following members and local civic groups for contributing to the lighting program:

Cradock Apothecary, EnKa Society, Harriet Hoctor Ballet School, Dr. and Mrs. Kaufmann, Kemple Construction Co., John Kupjian, Saltmarsh Insurance Agency, Bank of Boston, Soft Sports, W. Allan Wilde and Son Insurance Agency, Winchester Co-operative Bank, and the Winchester Garden Club.

•Slippery Sunday Storm Hits

Although the west side of Winchester is considered a desirable neighborhood, many residents of the area must have wished they lived somewhere else after Sunday's snow storm.

The area on the hill west of Cambridge st. received twice as much snow as the rest of the town, and that extra snow caused fender-benders on Johnson rd. and Ridge st.

"It was an amazing storm," commented Public Works Director Dom Serratore the next day. "The area west of Cambridge st. was the worst area. It got 4½ inches of snow, more than anywhere else in town, just due to the elevation."

The storm, which laid about 3 inches of rain-soaked snow on the town east of Cambridge st., had Serratore amazed and shaking his head all day.

When the DPW put its first two sanders on the road at 4 a.m., forecasters were calling for only a 1-to-2-inch snowfall. By mid-afternoon, the forecast had changed to a prediction of 2-to-4 inches, and Serratore added four more sanders.

Neither of those predictions, though, mentioned the one-hour mini-blizzard that hit just after dusk, or the extra snow at the higher elevations.

"The snow stopped around 4, and we thought we were pretty well caught up," said Serratore. "We were just ready to wrap it up when it started snowing again. In an hour, an inch-and-a-half of snow accumulated and everything we had done was covered up."

•Workshop Helps Battle Cold

By ZOE CARTER

If the thought of living through another New England winter makes you want to pack your bags and move south, you may discover new hope at an energy conservation workshop given by the Tri-City Action Program (Tri-Cap) at the Winchester Public Library.

At the advanced workshop last Friday, two representatives from Tri-Cap used slides and displays to explain the merits and uses of various types of caulk, insulation, cement, and solar porch conversion.

The workshop was held for people who have previously attended a basic workshop on energy conservation and were interested in further insulating their houses on a low-cost, do-it-yourself basis. The next basic workshop, which will be held on Dec. 15, at 10 a.m. in the library, will cover topics such as weatherstripping, heating and hot water conservation, utility rights and hypothermia.

In addition to learning how to make a house or apartment better able to withstand the winter elements, the workshops provide free conservation kits to eligible Winchester residents who bring a Fuel Assistance Eligibility Notification Card. Those who are interested in obtaining a card should contact the Fuel Assistance Dept. at the Jenks Center.

The kits, which are worth about $40 retail, include such items as caulk and caulking guns, door and window weatherstripping, and plastic sheeting and tape for temporary storm windows.

Those people who believe that once the storm windows are up their house or apartment is safe from seeping winter winds will think again when they hear the many types and uses of caulk.

According to Tri-Cap's Andrew Baldwin, there are basically three types of caulk: acrylic-latex caulk, an inexpensive indoor-outdoor caulk; silicone caulk that lasts longer but is more expensive; and basic latex and acrylic caulks for inside areas.

Grand Opening Swanton St. Opens To Applause

Explaining how to get to Swanton st. from a Main st. gas station Saturday, I began to tell the lost traveler that Swanton st. was actually only a block away, but because the bridge was closed he would have to go around.

"Wait a minute," said the gas station attendant. "They opened the bridge Friday."

After more than a year of cutting up Skillings rd. or Cross st. to get around the bridge, it may take awhile to get used to having the Swanton st. bridge open again. But people are looking forward to getting used to it.

Selectmen opened champagne at their Monday night meeting to celebrate the bridge opening. After the ribbon-cutting ceremony Monday morning, Jeanne Amico was so happy she rushed out of Bellino's Pizza shouting, "Free coffee and doughnuts for the ribbon-cutters."

The ribbon-cutting officially ended a project that began in the spring of 1982 as a bridge replacement and ended up 17 months later as a new $240,000 roadway built over an abandoned railroad track.

Changing to project from a bridge to a road saved about $750,000 in state money, since building a roadway is

Ambrose Principal For The Day

Pupil Takes Over Top School Job

By BARBARA TYSZKA

That particular Friday morning started like a normal schoolday for 9-year old Jessica Power of the Ambrose Elementary School. She dressed in her school clothes and had her usual bowl of Life cereal. But this was no "ordinary" day for the blonde-haired fourth grader. "Today I won't have to do any math," thought Jessica as she made her way into the Ambrose schoolyard.

Little did she know that the school budget was waiting on her desk.

In a 5th grade fundraiser raffle held the previous week, Jessica had been chosen to be "Principal of the Day" at the Howard F. Ambrose School on High st.

A bit uncomfortable in her sudden rise to power, Jessica meekly smiled and waved to fellow students who addressed her as "Miss Power" or simply "Hi, Principal."

George Flynn, the acting vice principal of the day (as one secretary put it), accepted Jessica's written excuse from classroom work and turned over his office to the four-foot disciplinarian of the day.

With advice such as "Don't be mean" from her parents and "Don't be laying off any teachers" from Fire Chief Robert McElhinney, Jessica began her decision-making day.

Jessica no sooner put her lunch pail down before she was off on her first duty of supervising the schoolyard. As she walked with dethroned Principal Flynn, her peers gathered around and asked her if she was having fun. While Jessica was shaking her head yes, Flynn was administering first aid to a youngster who had fallen and split his lip.

Next on the agenda was a visit to the superintendent's office at the Lynch School. Dr. Forest greeted Miss Power and gave her a full tour of the administrative offices beginning with his own. There Dr. Forest pointed out pictures that had been done by high school students.

He showed Jessica a picture of an adult giraffe behind its young. "This is my favorite," said Forest, "because it represents how a teacher can let a child come out in front but can also stand behind and protect him."

Dr. Forest explained to Miss Power all the work that goes into making just one of her school days possible. He introduced Jessica to the administration and told her how important it is to have a strong staff. While complimenting his secretary, he advised Jessica to "always have smart secretaries because they make you look good."

The fourth grader's next stop was the Lynch School where she was introduced Handmade crafts and home-baked goodies will be featured at a Craft and Bake Sale, Friday, Dec. 9, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Country Club Heights Retirement Apartments, off Cambridge st. next to New England Rehabilitation Hospital. The public is invited.

Handmade crafts such as mirror frames made with shells, greeting cards, place mats, tree decorations, calico covered bottles, and knit articles will be on sale. In addition old fashioned bouquets called tussy-mussy will be featured as well as unusual gift items.

"Nutcracker" Ballet

The Winchester Ballet Theatre will present its fourth annual production of "The Nutcracker" at the Winchester High School Auditorium on Saturday, Dec. 17, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 18, at 2:30 p.m. The cast of 40 teens, adults and senior citizens includes many Winchester residents as well as performers from surrounding communities in this full-length version of Tchaikovsky's Christmas story-ballet, complete with growing Christmas tree.

Refreshments will be available during intermissions, the proceeds to benefit Yvonne Brown's animal shelter project. Tickets will be available at Baskin-Robbins and Topsy Turvy in Winchester Center. For senior citizens and group rates, or other information, contact the Winchester School of Ballet.

Interact Meeting

Monthly meeting of Winchester Interact will be Dec. 14 at 8 p.m. with ornament swap. Call Linda McLellan, 6 Wilson st. for location.

Mini-College Program

Every Wednesday after school at 2:15 p.m. in the Cafeteria of the High School, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program.

On Wednesday, Dec. 14, the following institutions will be represented: Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Norwich University (Vt.).

On Wednesday, Dec. 21, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: Bridgton Academy (Me.), Johnson & Wales (R.I.).

William Parkman Lodge Meets

The William Parkman Lodge, AF&AM will hold its regular monthly meeting at the Masonic Temple, 17 Arlington rd., Woburn, on Tuesday, Dec. 13, at 6:30 p.m. Dinner will start at 7:30.

The work of the evening will be the First Degree of a new candidate. The Christmas Party will be on Dec. 9.

For dinner reservations and the Christmas Party call Richard Norris of Winchester or Charles Koch of Reading by Thursday, Dec. 8.

To Be Quizzed

BATTLE OF THE BRAINS — Winchester High School students Jess Nevins, Jeff Koplow and Derek Rutherford will wage a battle of wits against students from Cambridge Rindge and Latin and the Beverly Waring School when they compete in WXNE-TV's "Star Market High School Quiz" Saturday, Dec. 10, at 8:30 a.m. Competitors vie for top prizes, including the grand prize of a $500 scholarship.

Bartlett School Holly Party Will Be Held On Dec. 10

On Saturday, Dec. 10, parents and friends of Bartlett School will gather for a traditional "Holly Party" to be held this year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. DiCristoforo of Rosemary ave., Wakefield.

Marigrace Filtzer of Swan rd., president of the Bartlett School Development Fund, heads the parent committee planning this annual event.

Many fine gifts as prizes have been donated by the school parents. All proceeds will benefit the Bartlett School Development Fund.

Bartlett children also will celebrate the season in many special ways. Students in Grades 5 and 6 will sing carols at the Aberjona Nursing Home in Winchester on Thursday, Dec. 15, and students in Grades

7 and 8 will sing at the Fairlawn Nursing Home in Lexington on Friday, Dec. 16.

Boxes are in all classrooms for donations to the Tom Dooley Heritage Refugee Hospital in Thailand, of which Bartlett principal Norine T. Casey is a board member, and to Globe Santa. All classrooms will have closing parties on Dec. 21.

Winchester committee members include Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Frashure of Myopia rd., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mahoney of Sheffield West, Ellen Quigley of Rangeley rd., Mr. and Mrs. Alexander DiSilva of Dix st., Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gleason of Wedgemere ave., Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kett of York rd., Mr. and Mrs. Mark Miminos of Hawthorne rd., and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Senna of Foxcroft rd.

Adjustable Rate Mortgage

Lower closing costs
Lower monthly payments

12.14%

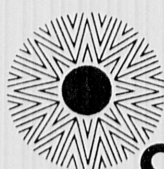

Annual Percentage Rate

If buying a home seems out-of-reach, or if you've been waiting for interest rates to drop, then look into an Adjustable Rate Mortgage at Winchester Savings Bank. You'll find the interest rate is well below our fixed rate mortgage. This means you can save on monthly mortgage payments. On an average, loan customers with our Adjustable Rate Mortgage save about $100 a month. But, that's not all.

You'll save when you close on your home too. That's because closing costs on our Adjustable Rate Mortgage are less than our fixed rate mortgage. Often as much as $1,000 less.

To find out how much an Adjustable Rate Mortgage can save you, call our Mortgage Department at 729-2130, or visit the Winchester Savings Bank offices nearest you today. The interest rate on our Adjustable Rate Mortgage is subject to change over the term of the mortgage.

Reading Man Charged After Police Chase Ends

A police chase early Friday morning led to the arrest of a Reading man for speeding, operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to stop for a police officer.

According to police reports, a Woburn man who was a passenger in the car was placed in protective custody after he used offensive language to a police officer.

The chase began shortly after Officer James Gray noticed a green Chevy Nova following closely at the rear of his cruiser as he was traveling north on Main st. As Gray turned left onto Hemingway st., the Nova blasted its horn at him.

The chase was on. Gray turned on his blue lights and sirens and began to follow the Nova as it sped away, swerving and crossing the center solid line several times at the Citgo Station on Main st. The Nova almost toppled a pedestrian exiting from a parked car in its path.

Gray finally stopped the Nova in heavy traffic in front of Bill and Bob's in Woburn, and advised the men to stay in the car while he called for a back-up. But the Nova again sped away, and Gray chased it once again — this time to Hamel's Car Wash on Main st. The driver, Thomas Meier of Reading, was issued citations for driving while intoxicated, failure to stop for a police officer and speeding.

Police also placed the passenger in protective custody.

Star Donation

STAR AND ITS READERS DONATE — Winchester Star Assistant Editor Liz Willen presents a $384 check to Winchester Council on Youth President Veronica Fiorillo. The donation, part of the proceeds from a recent Winchester Star subscription drive, will be used to purchase much-needed furniture and equipment for the town's new Youth Center at McCall Jr. High School. Police Are Still Searching For Suspect In Rape Case

Police are still looking for a man suspected of raping a Swanton st. woman in October. According to Lt. Joseph Perritano, clues concerning the suspect's whereabouts are minimal because the man was wearing a stocking over his head during the rape.

"We don't believe the man has struck again, but many rape incidents aren't reported, so we don't really know for sure," said Perritano.

The rape occurred at 6:45 a.m., after the suspect entered the woman's home through a screen in her bedroom window while she was asleep on her living room couch. She woke up when she saw a man coming towards her with a weapon in his hands.

The man was described as thin, Caucasian, not too tall and in his 20s. According to the description the woman gave police, the man spoke with a lisp, was wearing white running shoes with stripes and a light colored nylon windbreaker.

Although Perritano called the rape an "isolated incident," he stressed the importance of residents "being aware of the people around you."

"A rape can take place anytime and anywhere," he said. "All I can say is lock up and don't take any unnecessary chances."

Shield System Car Wash Is Collecting Toys For Children

The Shield System Car Wash on Main st., in conjunction with the U.S. Marine Corp Reserves, will be collecting toys for underprivileged children until Dec. 20. The Shield System will be the drop of point for toys donated to the Marine's "Toys For Tots" program.

In addition, a free car wash will be given for every new toy donated to the cause.

Holiday Concert

On Dec. 10, the New England Conservatory Youth Chamber Orchestra will present a free concert at 8 p.m. on the Mass. Bay Community College campus in the McKenzie Auditorium, 50 Oakland st., Wellesley Hills. The concert will feature Mahler's "Symphony No. 4 in G Major" with boy soprano James Westman, and Saint-Saens' "Piano Concerto" No. 2 with piano soloist Song Richardson.

Ideas Wanted

How Can We Make a Great Library Look Great?
Winchester Library is Searching for Ideas

Some Possible Areas for Thought what

A key element in the continuing program to bring new life to the library is the improvement of the front entranceway — roughly the area between the sidewalk and the entrance door inside the building. You are invited to play a role in this effort by sharing your thoughts on making the entry more functional, more inviting, more beautiful.

who

Everyone is urged to think about how to make the entrance more vital and to submit ideas to the Library. Ideas will be divided into two groups: Youth 12 or under Adults

how

Ideas will be evaluated by a committee appointed by the Library. They will be looking for creative and practical suggestions on how to improve the entrance. In fact a good idea can be in the form of: Sketches (draw over the enclosed picture) Diagrams (draw over the enclosed plan) Verbal description Clippings Any other means of expression Be as specific as possible. A sampling of the most creative thoughts will be selected, exhibited at the library, given awards, and very possibly incorporated into actual plans to remodel the front entrance. Any questions regarding the competition may be directed to Terry Cracknell at 729-5318 evenings.

Drop off or send your submission to the Library by 5:30 p.m. on Friday, December 16, 1983. Be sure to include your name and address. To preserve anonymity, your name will not be on the envelope or taped to the back of your submission.

Designs Of Library Entry Way Sought

The Friends of the Winchester Public Library are sponsoring a competition for ideas to improve the appearance and function of the library entranceway.

Townpeople are invited to play an active role in helping to redesign the look of the library's entrance. Ideas for improving the front walk, vestibule, and the general landscaping at the front of the building are solicited. The library is looking for thoughts on making the entranceway more inviting, more functional and more beautiful.

Concepts can be submitted in the form of sketches, diagrams, written descriptions, clippings, or any other medium. Creative ideas, not sophisticated presentation techniques, are being sought.

Everyone is urged to participate. Ideas will be divided into two groups, adults and youths under 12, and will be evaluated by a competition committee. The committee is made up of two architects: Terry Cracknell and Alan Hill; one visual artist: David Estridge; the president of the Friends: Dudley Samoiloff; and the chairman of the Board of Trustees: Loretta Redding. The committee will select the most creative ideas, exhibit them at the library, and attempt to incorporate them into the actual plans for renovating the library's entranceway.

The competition is one of many recommendations made to library administration in a study of the building's use. The study has examined the use of space in the library building with an eye to maximizing and enhancing available space to house the collection of materials, to enhance the meeting room, and provide better space for staff and public.

Some of the proposed improvements would expand the Junior Library, refurbish and enlarge the meeting room, and make the book and audio-visual material collection more accessible by improving the flow and organization of space in the Reference Room and in the stacks.

For more details on the Mt. Vernon st. competition, drop by the library for a flier or call Terry Cracknell, Mt. Vernon st., evenings. Entries should be submitted to the library by 5:30 p.m., Friday, Dec. 16.

Free Butter And Cheese Will Be Given To Eligible Residents

Free cheeses and butter will be distributed to eligible Winchester residents on Dec. 14 from 9:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the Town Hall Veterans Services office.

To be eligible, individuals must bring proof of participation in one of the following programs: AFDC, SSI, Fuel Assistance, Food Stamps, WIC, Head Start, Veterans Aid, Medicaid, Unemployment Insurance or Welfare.

Distribution times will be scheduled according to the last names. Names beginning with A-C will be served at 9:30 a.m.; D-G, 10:30 a.m.; H-L, 11:30 a.m.; M-P, 12:30 p.m.; Q-S, 1:30 p.m.; T-Z, 2:30 p.m. Recipients must come at assigned times.

Blood Drive Sponsored By High School And Local Red Cross

The Winchester High School and the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross are sponsoring a community blood drive on Tuesday, Dec. 13, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at Winchester High School.

"The community minded students of Winchester High School will be joining the donors of Winchester in giving the 'Gift of Life' as an early holiday present. The Red Cross greatly appreciates the enthusiasm of the faculty and student organizers and the generosity of the donors," said Mary Fowle, Red Cross volunteer in charge of blood drives in Winchester.

Jerome Berdulis is the faculty organizer. The following students are assisting Berdulis: Ed Nazarian, Mark Herlihy, Ona Wang, Nathan Legvold, Kim Morgan, Linda Cronin, Madelyn Coppi and Eric Svahn.

The drive is open to the public. For information please call the Red Cross at 39 Church st.

On Sunday, Dec. 11 at the 10:30 a.m. service, the Winchester Unitarian Church will have Sandra Mitchell Caron as guest speaker. Her subject will be "The Search for Institutional Excellence."

Sandra Caron has been Moderator of the Unitarian Universalist Assn. since June 1977, and has just announced her candidacy for president of the UUA. The Assn. is composed of 1,000 Unitarian and Universalist churches in the United States and Canada.

Caron was born in Texas in 1935. She graduated from the University of Texas in 1955 with a Bachelor of Journalism degree and honors in Journalism. After working in Journalism and then with the Girl Scouts in various capacities, she entered New York University School of Law from which she graduated in 1972. Her home and her practice are in New York City.

All are welcome to attend the Sunday Service. Baby sitting is available for children 3 and under.

SPEAKING — The guest speaker at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Dec. 11 will be Sandra Mitchell Caron, Moderator of the Unitarian Universalist Assn.

Chock Full Of Residents' Recipes

BSO Cookbook Now Available

If you'd like to try Chicken Empress Zario submitted by famed Met Mezzo Frederica von Stade, or Sukiyaki a la Beverly Sills, or Joe Silverstein's Veal Mozzarella, consider purchasing the new Boston Symphony Cookbook available in Winchester at Henderson Stationers.

The recently published cardcover book which contains these delectable offerings has a total of 500 equally mouth-watering dishes submitted by world famous artists, members of the Symphony family of players, volunteers and employees, and good friends of the BSO.

Of special interest too is the book's strong Winchester connection. Mary Lu Cowgill of Lawson rd. was co-chairman of Testers, the dedicated team of volunteers who literally cooked up a storm in preparing, tasting, and rating every one of the 1,300 recipes submitted to the Cookbook Committee. She admits that it was a weighty job in every sense, but well worth the work and extra pounds to collect such outstanding recipes.

The top rated 500 selected were then turned over to another group of hardworking volunteers, the writers, who edited, standardized format, and in some cases even translated recipes, so that they are easy to read and follow.

Terry Seferian of Highland ave., one of the writer's was amazed by the numbers of Symphony lovers who contributed writing skills and hours to the creation of the book, often appearing at the hall at odd times, such as dinner hour, or after 10 p.m. following an evening concert, for an hour or so of proofreading and editing.

The result of all this volunteer effort, and the final professional putting together by Houghton Mifflin, is a beautiful book of very special recipes with a distinctly international flavor ranging from Boston Baked Beans (with special tips) to an especially delicious Hungarian veal dish, Szekely Gulyas. All this contained between bright red washable covers, and interspersed with black and white photos of the orchestra and principals.

An added incentive for owning the book is that some of Winchester's own celebrated cooks are represented.

This book for "Music lovers who like to cook, or good cooks who like good music," will also make a truly great Christmas gift for anyone who likes to dine well.

Police Log

Monday, Dec. 5

A Maine man was issued a citation for leaving the scene of an accident and operating an unregistered motor vehicle after his Pontiac LeMans hit a patch of ice and spun out, striking a 1973 Oldsmobile on Rangely Ridge rd. as he was rounding the corner from Meadowcroft rd.

The owner of the Oldsmobile called police after she heard a loud crash from inside her home. However, when she left the house, she saw nothing — except damage to her car, which had been pushed five feet away from where she parked it.

A short time later, Sgt. James Pierce located the driver of the Pontiac up the street. The driver was advised of his rights and admitted that he had panicked and left the scene, backing into a friend's driveway. Only minor damage was inflicted to the Oldsmobile, although there was major damage to the front of the Pontiac LeMans.

A Church st. man reported that the driver's side view mirror was stolen from his Mercedes Benz as it was parked in Wedgemere Depot on Sunday night. The mirror was worth $100.

Sunday, Dec. 4

A Hollywood rd. resident reported that the frame of her sliding glass door was damaged after she left her home for a few hours during the day. According to a report filed by Officer Lawrence Hill, footprints were found next to the door leading up from the rear of the house.

A shovel handle, which police believe was the instrument used to try to pry the door open, was found nearby. All other doors and windows were secure, and nothing was missing from the house.

A Churchill rd. resident reported that her house was broken into through a door in the garage. According to a report filed by Officer John Guarante, the house was ransacked and many valuable items were stolen. The robbers used pillow cases to carry items out of the house. Although police searched the house thoroughly and spoke to neighbors in the area, they could not discover any clues.

A Ridge st. resident reported that the storm window in her living room was broken by a stone.

A resident reported that the hubcaps were stolen from her car on Samoset rd.

A Fletcher st. woman reported that $16,675 worth of jewelry is missing from her home. According to a report filed by Lt. Joseph Perritano, the woman said that the jewelry was kept in a drawer in the master bedroom and was wrapped in plastic bags. Although the woman could not find any evidence of a forced entry, she told police that the house is easily accessible from the outside.

A Harvard st. resident reported that the front tires of his 1977 Camaro were slashed as the car was parked in his driveway. The tires were worth $100.

An Arlington woman reported that her brown wallet was stolen from her handbag as she attended church services at St. Eulalia's. The wallet contained personal papers and an unknown quantity of cash.

Saturday, Dec. 3

A Swanton st. man reported that his pick-up truck was broken into as it was parked in front of the Parkview Condominiums during the day. According to a report filed by Officer Richard Fisher, the truck was found open and contents of the glove department had been thrown about. A package, business cards, an alarm clock and advertising material worth $100 were stolen.

A 1975 Chevy Blazer skidded on Lockland rd. during icy early morning hours and struck a telephone pole. Neither the pole nor the driver was dented.

The driver of a 1980 Audi was going through a green light on Park ave. when his car was struck by a 1981 Buick that couldn't stop as it drove along Washington st. shortly after 8 a.m. Police cited icy road conditions as the cause of the accident. No one was injured, and both cars were only damaged slightly.

Thursday, Dec. 1

A 1970 Chevrolet struck a Plymouth station wagon broadside as it left the parking lot of the Purity Supreme and drove north on Main st. The Plymouth spun out of control and hit a silver BMW parked facing the sidewalk. The operator of the Chevrolet was issued a citation for failure to use caution.

Police stopped the driver of a red Volkswagen on Skillings rd. after noticing that the license plate was expired. A Plymouth man was issued a citation for driving an unregistered, uninsured motor vehicle after a computer check.

Monday, Nov. 26

A Wainwright rd. resident was cited for operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to use care and caution after her Buick struck a Chevy van traveling north on Cambridge st. and burst into flames.

According to police reports, Kathleen Magno of Wainwright rd. failed to yield to oncoming traffic as she was coming out of the Star Market parking lot. Police discovered the Buick on the shoulder next to the entrance of Star Market, engulfed in flames.

Members of the Winchester Fire Dept. arrived at the scene shortly after 5 p.m. to put out the flames and transport the driver of the van and four of her children to Winchester Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries and released.

Bottle And Can Drive Is Jan. 7

Save all your holiday returnable bottles and cans until Saturday, Jan. 7. On that day Winchester ABC program will hold a bottle and can drive at the Sons of Italy parking lot, 117 Swanton st., adjacent to the town transfer station. You may drop off your supply on the way to the dump. For those who don't patronize the dump, volunteers will be available to make house calls and collect cans and bottles. The hours of the drive are from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 14, will be the rain or snow date.

Winchester's A Better Chance (ABC) program is in its 13th year of operation. It is one of 25 nationwide public school programs designed to give minority students a chance to live and attend high school in Winchester.

Classes For Diabetics And Familys Begin Dec. 14

Diabetics and their family members are invited to join the diabetic teaching classes now going on at Winchester Hospital. The classes will be held Wednesdays, Dec. 14, 21 and 28, from 3 to 4 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria. The teaching classes are given by Winchester Hospital to help diabetics live as normal a life as possible, and to understand their condition and their dietary regime. It is estimated that one in 20 people, or over 10 million people, in the United States have diabetes.

'Fires And Fables' At McCall

Who would dream that Stephanie's mild old lady drinking her tea in the cafe would become Super Woman when a bomb is discovered? Or in another original scene by the Junior High Workshop, how could pet shop owner Phyllis know that customer Lauraly is really a pyromaniac? At first the fire she sets threatens the lives of both humans and animals; then with the larger vision of the Neutral Mask of classical mime, the group portrays a fire, experiencing the purifying power of the element to burn away their fears and weaknesses, transforming them into courage and positive action in an alternative scene.

"Fires and Fables" will be presented on Thursday evening, Dec. 8, at 7:30 p.m. in the Youth Center at McCall Jr. High School, enter by the auditorium doors, pass through the lobby and turn right down the hall.

Along with families and friends of participants, adults involved in the expressive arts in school, church and community groups are cordially invited. For students who may attend future workshops this is the time to sample the Drama Workshop. The next series will open on Wednesday, Jan. 19, for boys and girls in grades 3-6.

Other elements of the workshop demonstration will include yoga exercises, movement, theater games, such as a positive/negative space sculpture, and fables played as animals and then as human characters in a similar situation.

PREPPIE PARODY — Andrew Waltman and Wendy Hinxman portray "The Preppies" in a parody of current "in groups" at the Winchester Drama Workshop. On Dec. 8, Waltman will appear as junior assistant in "Fires and Fables," an open demonstration by the '83 Jr. High Workshop at the McCall Youth Center at 7:30 p.m.

Participants include: Lauraly Loving, Michelle Osborne, Stephanie Smith, Amy Thompson, Phyllis Toughy, Karen Verhaegen, Matthew Mallio and Andrew Waltman Jr. Assistants, Dev Luthra, experienced actor in London and with Theater Workshop in Boston, is a group leader.

Interact Christmas Meeting Is Dec. 14

Members of the Winchester Interact will attend their Christmas meeting on Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 8 p.m. The evening festivities will include holiday refreshments and an ornament swap.

Topics of discussion for the business part of the meeting will be Toys for Needy Children and annual Christmas basket to a Winchester family.

Interested women are always welcome to attend meetings and learn about the club. Please call Linda McLellan of Wilson st. for more information.

Comment There's Plato And There's Playdough...

By TERRY MAROTTA

I have these wonderful conversations with my children while we're riding in the car. Take yesterday, for example, and picture this.

"Mom," says the older of the two, a Nearly Seven, "I think I know why old people like Grandma get smaller."

"Oh? Why?"
"Because if people keep returning to the earth after their deaths to take up new lives, then maybe Grandma's body is shrinking so she'll be all set to start over again as a baby."

I admit that this is a possibility.

"But if life is just a dream that we wake up from when we die, then she won't be coming back, I don't think, even as a baby. Anybody would rather stay awake and look around than go back to sleep again in another body."

"I love to sleep," says the 4-year-old sister. "Except when I have those monster dreams."

"You know, Carrie," I say to the 6-year-old, "that's what Plato thought about life in a way. He was pretty sure it was all a big dream that each of us would someday wake up from, and that then we'd see things as they really are."

"Play dough?" says the little one. "The person's name was Playdough?"

"Plato, Annie. He was a philosopher that lived thousands of years ago. He said that the best way to describe life for us humans is to imagine that we're all trapped in an underground cave. We're chained in place, so we can only look at what's in front of us. Behind our heads there are lights and some figures moving, but because we can't turn around, we can never see them. All we can see are the shadows they make, and these shadows are what we take to be reality. Things appear to us only dimly, and in a shadowy way; we understand only in flickering flashes."

"What do the chains mean, though?"

"I'm not sure, but maybe they're supposed to show how we're all chained in the present moment. We can't see into the future, and we can't revisit the past. We're just stuck in today."

"Like, no matter what, I can't go back and relive my birthday last year when we took my friends to that restaurant with the popcorn, only I hated it because what it turned out I really wanted to do was have a birthday in my own house and run around?"

"Uh, right," says I.

"I liked that restaurant," says the little one. "I liked the clown. Can I have my birthday there, Momma?"

"We'll see. . . . I thought you wanted to have a sleepover for your birthday this year."

"I do. I want one sleepover party, and one restaurant party, and one party for my school friends. . . ."

"Well, that's a tall order! . . . So anyway, Carrie, Plato also said that because we've lived in a cave all of our lives, our eyesight is pretty poor."

"I never knew anyone named Playdough," says the little one.

"— and sometimes, not very often but SOMETIMES, somebody comes down into the cave from up in the light. He tries to tell everybody what it's like up there, but because we cave-people have never seen what he's describing, we think he's crazy and we ignore him."

"Who are these people?" she wants to know.

"Well, most people agree that Jesus was one of them, because he understood people very well, and because he saw things clearly that most people have trouble seeing."

"Like how we have to love each other, right?"

"Exactly. But you know what they did to Jesus?"

"They killed him on a cross."

"That's right."

"Only he didn't stay killed, Momma. He got alive again, didn't he?"

"So they say."

"Because you can't kill love. So there you are."

"There you are."

"One more question: what's a philosopher, Mum?"

"It's a person who likes to think about things, like how we know what we know, and how tomorrow becomes today, and what everything means."

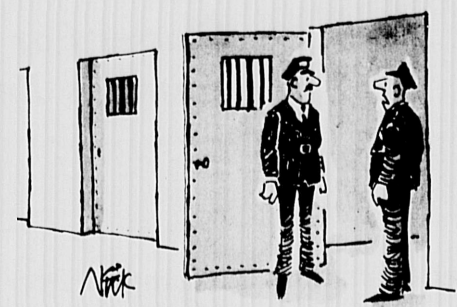

"Do you think I might be a philosopher someday, Mum? Like Plato?"

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised."

"Playdough. My sister is going to turn into Playdough. . . ."

Letters To The Editor

Writer Was Shortsighted In Complaint

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I am writing in response to the letter from John Dacey Jr., complaining that on Thanksgiving Day, he would have had to pay to enter the football game at half-time.

It is funny, because I stopped sneaking in to the games and coming in at half-time to avoid paying when I was 12. From that point on I did not mind paying, because I knew I was supporting a worthwhile cause: the Winchester High School. If everyone felt the way this man felt, Winchester would lack the funds needed to maintain a sports organization. He then, would be the first to write in, once again, to complain that his son, Michael is unable to participate on any sports teams, and that it is unfair.

As for "copying" Woburn, I feel that it was a good idea. Woburn puts a great amount of time organizing and finding ways for funding their sports teams. Winchester has stopped all Pop Warner football, and its Junior High provides no sports teams. Yes, Winchester did copy Woburn, but are we in third grade again, where we can't put someone else's ideas to work for us? I know there is a Winchester/Woburn rivalry, but I did not know that it carried on after high school.

As a Winchester High student, I think sports are important, and I hope they are still around when "Michael" is a senior; but, with people refusing to pay a petty $2, or waiting until half-time to watch a game, our sports organization is sure to fail.

I will give Mr. Dacey credit though. It was a stroke of "public policy genius" when Winchester followed Woburn. Who knows, in 10 years there might actually still be a Winchester High Sports Organization.

It is just too bad Michael was deprived of a great football game because his dad was going to stick to his guns and refused to pay. By the way, I paid $2 to get in and saw the game. For your sake I will tell you, Winchester won, 35 - 6.

Sincerely
A student who has seen the outcome of what a lack of funding can do:
Susan Barbaro
Irving St.

Thanks From SPCA

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Before 1983 closes, I would like to thank The Winchester Star and the folks who have been so generous in donating food to all our needy little stray animals.

I could not have continued my work without your help. I have worked out a way of boarding the sick animals until well or if an operation is needed. Many friends have taken some into their homes until I can see to them.

We will be having a fundraiser on Saturday, Dec. 17, and Sunday, Dec. 18, when the Winchester Ballet Theatre presents "The Nutcracker" at the Winchester High School.

Again, I want to thank all of you and wish you a happy and holy holiday season.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This report records votes on roll calls from the week of Nov. 28 - Dec. 2.

SHARED CUSTODY (H 6860): House 137-6, approved and sent to the Senate for action, a bill requiring courts to consider joint custody of children as an option in divorce cases. The bill establishes the right of divorced parents to both be involved in important decisions regarding their children, even if one parent has physical custody. The bill includes a provision that parents submit a written plan to the court determining important matters, including education and medical care, which will involve shared decisions.

Supporters argued that both parents should share concern and decisions about children's lives and said the bill is pro-family and will help children of divorce.

Opponents said joint legal or physical custody is not always in the best interests of the children.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "nay" vote is against it. Saltmarsh voted yes.

AUTO INSURANCE (H 6262):

Senate defeated 21-10, a House-approved bill increasing compulsory limits for bodily injury on automobile insurance. The present compulsory coverage for bodily injury to others and bodily injury caused by an uninsured or underinsured auto is $10,000 per person and $20,000 per accident. This bill would raise the mandatory to $20,000 per person and $40,000 per accident.

Supporters said 10/20 is inadequate in light of today's medical costs. They noted only 28 percent of drivers don't voluntarily have the 20/40 coverage and most of them are in the under 25 group which causes the majority of accidents.

Opponents said the bill will increase insurance costs for many people who cannot afford it. They pointed out that any driver can increase his or her coverage voluntarily but should not be forced to do so.

The motion was to reject the bill. Therefore, a "Yea" vote is against the bill. A "Nay" vote is for the bill.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted yes.

Editorial Analysis

Globe's Slanted News Unmasked By Invasion Coverage Review

We have strong belief in that Constitutional guarantee of "freedom of the press" as spelled out in the First Amendment. But we know that the general public often has little understanding of what it really means.

Sometimes we are overwhelmed by a cocktail party remark such as "If freedom of the press means they can print all that pornography, then I'm against it." You can't answer that one with a one-liner. You've either got to ignore the comment or be prepared for a hour-long discussion of checks and balances in a democratic society.

Another tough one is "How can you condone the media getting away with presenting such a one-sided, editorialized view of things?" Invariably the comment is made in reference to (a) The Boston Globe or (b) Time magazine, who both do little to hide their conscious efforts to sway public opinion by selectively presenting unbalanced versions of "news."

However, we do have an automatic response to that one. We say: You have to hope that there is a sufficient mix of competing opinion offered by other media — radio stations, television, newspapers — that the public gets both sides.

We often criticize The Boston Globe ourselves when they take what we consider particularly outrageous and unfounded editorial opinions in ways which try to discredit the validity of opposing points of view or which are based on plainly erroneous facts.

While we can't spend time every week to complain about borderline journalism in The Boston Globe, we can remind our readers from time to time that the Globe is not a monolithic media giant but just another newspaper edited by people who see the world from a narrow window on Morrissey Blvd. and who carefully edit out any "news" which conflicts with the way they'd like things to be.

We are pleased to see from time to time that we are not the only ones who notice that The Boston Globe's news columns do not necessarily contain the "whole truth" or even a substantial part of it.

The following piece was written by James Edwards, editorial page editor of The Brockton Enterprise on Nov. 13. It has been reprinted by several Massachusetts newspapers because it clearly caught The Globe red-handed in another blatant attempt to influence public opinion by ignoring "news" and "facts" which contradict its stated editorial viewpoint.

Reader comment, either pro or con, on the subject of The Boston Globe's news approach is welcome. It's your part of "freedom of the press."

—C.P.J.

By James Edwards
"Retrograde colonial venture . . . senseless misuse of power . . . this gambit of hypocrisy . . . this hypocritical notion . . . hypocritical gloss . . . bizarre . . . arrogance . . . jingoism . . . calumny . . ."

Readers will be forgiven if they jump to the conclusion that the fevered rhetoric quoted above came from the pen of some Soviet or Cuban propagandist who was railing against the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

Not so. The words and phrases quoted here were culled from four editorials which appeared in the Boston Globe between Oct. 26, the day after the invasion, and Nov. 3. Each one of these editorials would have done Tass or Pravda proud.

The Oct. 26 piece, sneeringly entitled "There he (Reagan) goes again," dismissed out of hand President Reagan's reasons for ordering the invasion, stating flatly that "there was no danger to the lives of any of the 1,000 Americans on the island."

It must be stressed that those words were written before any of the facts about the invasion had come to light. A day later, when the medical students arrived home to kiss American soil and express their gratitude to the president and the troops who had rescued them, the Globe felt that their opinions were unworthy of comment. After all, the students had only been living on the island, so what would they know?

Having been proven wrong about the safety of the students, the Globe then attempted to discredit the three other reasons Reagan had given for ordering the invasion. These reasons were: To restore law and order, to prevent the Cubans from transforming Grenada into an arsenal for the export of revolution, and to comply with the urgent entreaties of the Organization of East Caribbean States which is an alliance of democratic nations whose leaders are gravely concerned about Soviet-Cuban expansionism in the region.

The Globe fired its second editorial salvo on Oct. 27 when it accused Reagan of "insulting the intelligence of Americans" by "pretending that this unilateral move (the invasion) was a joint maneuver with tiny Caribbean islands."

Actually, it was the Globe that was being insulting when it implied that honorable men and women, such as Prime Minister Edward Seaga of Jamaica and Eugenia Charles of Dominica, are mere stooges whom Reagan used to lend an aura of legitimacy to the invasion. The Globe could not, after all, accuse Reagan of launching a "retrograde colonial venture" if it was to admit that the same venture was initiated by the anti-colonialist leaders of Caribbean nations which only recently won their independence from Britain.

By insisting that the invasion was un-called for, the Globe also slandered Sir Paul Scoon, the black governor general of Grenada, who had — according to one high-ranked official in Barbados — smuggled the first SOS to the outside world, urging that action be taken to prevent a complete Cuban takeover of the island.

The Globe continued to dismiss this threat of Soviet-Cuban expansionism even after vast stockpiles of weapons — enough to arm every man, woman and child on the island — were discovered by U.S. troops. Those arms, coupled with top secret documents revealing Soviet, East German and North Korean plans for Grenada, were enough to convince any impartial observer that the Cuban "engineers" were in Grenada for reasons other than building a civilian airstrip.

The discovery of the arms stockpiles boosted Reagan's credibility to such an extent that the Globe steered clear of the subject in its editorial columns. Instead, it published an opinion piece on the law and order issue, with Washington correspondent Fred Kaplan attempting to discredit the president by arguing that there never had been any order to restore in the first place. In support of that contention, Kaplan pointed out that Maurice Bishop, the prime minister whose murder by hardline Marxists had precipitated the U.S. invasion, had himself seized power from Eric Gairy, a man who was said to be so unstable he dabbled in the occult. This was the flimsiest argument the Globe had yet advanced. Gairy might have been a bit odd, even corrupt, but he did not go in for mass murder, which is more than can be said for Bernard Coard and Gen. Hudson Austin, the two Cuban-trained Marxists whose removal from power has been the source of so much anguish at Morrissey Boulevard.

By Nov. 3, at which time their rush to judgment had come back to haunt them, the Globe's editorial writers were desperately thrashing around for a new avenue of attack. They got their chance with the bombing of the mental hospital in St. George's. That tragedy provoked what will surely stand as one of the most scurrilous editorials ever to appear in the pages of a major American newspaper. Entitled "Atrocious and mistake," the editorial drew a parallel between the hospital bombing and the shooting down of KAL7. The thrust of the editorial was that accidents do happen, and that the real villain involved in the airliner tragedy was none other than Ronald Reagan, who "dismissed the gravity of the airliner's incurable, ignored the military sensitivity of the Soviet territory it overflew, and withheld evidence suggesting the Soviet error was made under extreme pressure rather than through malice." Reagan, the editorial continued, had exploited that "error" and used it as an excuse to go "on a weapons-buying spree."

But the Globe still wasn't satisfied. After depicting Reagan, not Andropov, as the real villain on the world scene, the Globe then did something which was both contemptible and inexcusable — it slighted the splendid young men who participated in "this poorly prepared and hastily mounted" operation by implying that "rattled ground troops" caused the tragedy when they panicked and called for an unnecessary air strike.

By the end of the week, the press ban in Grenada had been lifted and television viewers back home were watching film footage of jubilant Grenadians shouting

"We are free" as they celebrated the arrival of the Americans, whom they treated as conquering heroes.

The Globe's own reporter, Steve Curwood, didn't file any stories about the reaction of the islanders. This constituted such a glaring lapse in reportorial judgment that one can only conclude that Curwood ignored the story because the Grenadians were saying things the Globe did not want to hear. They were saying that the U.S. troops were liberators who had freed them from the clique of Cuban-backed Marxists who had held the island in a grip of terror.

By ignoring this highly significant news story, the Globe left itself wide open to the charge that it has allowed editorial policy to influence news coverage. Without resorting to outright falsehoods, the Globe had been guilty of distortion by omission. This became glaringly obvious on Monday, Nov. 7, when Robert Healy, the Washington bureau chief, filed a story from Grenada about the congressional delegation which was investigating the invasion.

That same day, the two wire services, the Associated Press and United Press International, led their stories by noting that the "overwhelming majority" of the delegates sent to the island by House Speaker Tip O'Neill had reached the conclusion that the invasion had been justified. Quoting Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., both AP and UPI reported that exhaustive inquiries had dispelled the skepticism which most of the legislators had felt at the outset of the trip. This revelation was particularly significant because Rep. Barnes is a noted liberal and a frequent critic of Reagan's Latin-American policy. The fact that he — and others in the delegation — had come around to Reagan's way of thinking was a major news development, one which no competent reporter could possibly overlook.

Healy managed to overlook it. Even though he quoted Rep. Barnes in other contexts, Healy's story gave no indication that the liberal Barnes and "the overwhelming majority" of the delegates had by then concluded that Reagan had been right all along.

As if to supplement Healy's oversight, the Globe chose that very day to run a half page of letters from readers, all of whom took Reagan to task in one way or another. It is straining the bounds of credulity to suppose that the Globe, which receives an enormous volume of mail, didn't get a single letter in support of Reagan.

The next day, Tuesday, Healy wrote a follow-up to the delegation story, and again there was no mention of Rep. Barnes' conversion. The story ran on page two. The headline read: "Congressmen differ on Grenada invasion — fact-finding group split on rationale." Nothing in the text or the headline gave any hint that Reagan had been vindicated by the delegation's findings.

By Wednesday, after the congressional delegation had reported back to Tip O'Neill in Washington, the Globe had been backed into a corner and had no choice other than to lead Page One with the news that the delegation's unwelcome findings had persuaded even the House speaker that Reagan was right.

But even Tip's change of mind failed to deter the Globe. On Thursday, Healy's latest dispatch appeared under the heading, "Grenada panel's dissenters give their view." The dissenters in question — two out of 14 on the panel — were Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, and Rep. Ronald V. Dellums, D-Calif., both of whom are outright radicals.

The sequence of events recounted above raises serious questions about the Globe's objectivity; it also helps explain why so many Americans distrust major liberal newspapers like The New York Times, The Washington Post and The Boston Globe. This widespread distrust became apparent last week when Daniel Schorr, a newsman with impeccable liberal credentials, conducted a poll on behalf of Cable Network News and found that an overwhelming majority of Americans thought the president was justified in banning the press at the outset of the Grenada invasion.

In view of the way the Globe had handled the Grenada story, who can blame them?

WHS Class Of '63 Rendezvous At Three Day Reunion

Winchester High Class of '63 marked the 20th year since graduation with a three-day reunion highlighted by Winchester's win over Woburn in the Turkey Day classic at Manchester Field.

They came from as far away as California, Florida, and Minnesota. More than 100 classmates, spouses and friends turned up for an informal get-together on Nov. 25 at the Cross st. home of Robert "Doc" Guarante where the reception featured a jazz combo.

More than 200 came for the dinner-dance at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Winchester on Nov. 26 - a fine showing for the class which had 290 members. Rev. Walter Josephson, now of Wallingford, Conn. offered a prayer of welcome and a moment of reflection in tribute to six classmates now deceased.

Loyal travelers from afar included Linda (White) Shea from Long Beach, Calif.; Penny (LaMarea) Marino, Wilton Manors, Fla.; Judy (Morison) Eastwood, Knoxville, Tenn.; and Richard Starkweather, Northville, Minn., to name a few.

Committee members who arranged for the reunion were: Carol (Gaudioso) Romboli, Phyllis Petitti, Marilyn (DeAngelis) Conlin, Marie Scalesse, Ginny (McCormack) Tremberth, Dorothy (Williams) Hanning, Carol (Butters) O'Brien, Helen (Garchinsky) Cullen, David Mullen, John Cleary, George Rotondi, Robert Joyce and John McSweeney.

Performing For St. Nicholas

CZECH CHRISTMAS — St. Nicholas, accompanied by a devil and an angel, came to the Crawford Church Sunday to bring gifts to 91 Czechoslovakian refugee children Sunday. The children, like sisters Mirunka and Jana Linhart, had to perform for St. Nick before receiving their presents in the traditional ceremony. The gifts were purchased, wrapped and donated by the Crawford Cub Scout Pack, 10 Winchester residents donated money to help the refugees, and many residents helped prepare for the party. Next Sunday, Dec. 11, there will be a Czech candlelight celebration at the church from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. All are invited.

Men's Shopping Night at

Who's Invited: Men 18 years or older by appointment only (Sound interesting? Keep reading.)

When: December 20, 1983 from 6-9

Where: The Woburn Gloria Stevens
362 Cambridge Rd.
Woburn, MA
933-8580

What: An opportunity for men to try group exercises, aerobics, our weight training program and the life cycle.

Why: Because every year men come in to the salon to buy gift certificates for the women they love, and they never get a chance to see for themselves the gift of health that they are giving.

How: Call the salon for the schedule of activities and make an appointment. After you have tried the program you will be able to decide which of our programs you would like to give as a gift. All the programs can be purchased at $20 discount on that night.

80 WHS Seniors Inducted Into National Honor Society Nov. 29

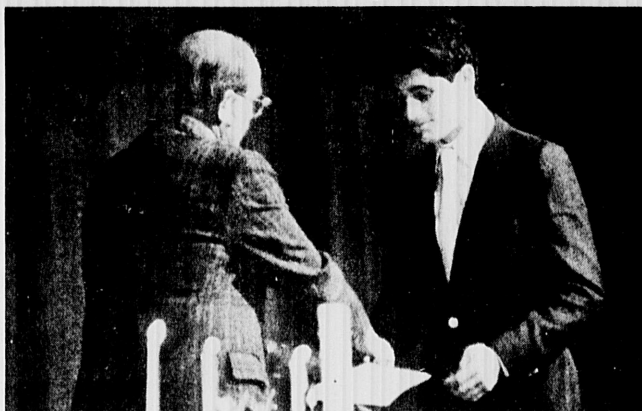

By SUZANNE PERLITSH

On Nov. 29, the Winchester High School auditorium was bustling with people who came to witness the candlelight induction of 80 WHS seniors into the National Honor Society (NHS).

Mistress of ceremonies, guidance counselor Kay Tiffany, opened the ceremony by presenting the meaning and importance of this organization. She commended the students, the top ranked 25 percent of the Class of 1984, on their impressive achievements.

Dorothy Price, president of NHS, Yahn Zombeck, vice president, Cathy Skahan, secretary, and Christopher Bently, treasurer, explained how each of the tenets of the society — Leadership, Scholarship, Character and Service — contribute to the quality of our school and to society.

The inductees were asked to rise and make a pledge of service to WHS. Principal Larocco awarded each student a certificate and pin, and upon lighting their candles the students were officially inducted as members of the National Honor Society at Winchester High School. The major purpose of this moving ceremony was to demonstrate, symbolically, the school's support for the values of the NHS by rewarding these students for their exceptional academic performance and for their positive attitudes.

To qualify for NHS each student obtained a minimum grade point average of 3.2, with no grade in a full year course below a C in grades 9, 10, and 11. To qualify as a junior, a student earned a 3.5 average, with no grade below a B.

"The ceremony made me feel I was making a contribution to society," reported senior class treasurer, John Reidy.

New Ski Program For Grades 3-6 Will Be Offered This Winter By Rec. Dept.

A brand new Ski Program for elementary school-aged students grades 3-6 has been created by the Winchester Recreation Dept.

The newly renovated and expanded Mt. Wachusett Ski Area in Princeton, featuring 14 trails, 90 acres of alpine terrain all with snow making, a 24,000 square-foot base lodge and three chair lifts (one of which is 4,500 feet in length), has been selected as the site. The program will be conducted on three consecutive days over the February vacation period, Feb. 21, 22, 23.

Skiing options range from open or free skiing for those who already know how to ski to lessons and rentals for the complete novice skier. The program is limited only in terms of the age group served — grades 3-6.

The Recreation Dept. will provide transportation for the program. Buses will leave McCall School (Mystic Valley pky) entrance at 9 a.m. and return to the same location at approximately 5 p.m.

A special registration period has been created. It began Nov. 14 and will continue through Dec. 28. Interested individuals may register at the Recreation Office, Room 104, McCall Junior High School for either of the three options being offered: A) Open Skiing, ski lifts and transportation $36/3 days; B) Ski lifts, lessons, open skiing and transportation $40/3 days; C) Ski lifts, lessons, open skiing, transportation, and rentals $66/3 days.

Learning to ski or improving your skills has never been easier or as reasonable. The dept. is also making Ski Program Gift Certificates available for holiday season.

Guild Of The Infant Saviour To Meet On Dec. 13 At St. Mary's For Christmas Party

Members of the Winchester Chapter of the Guild of the Infant Saviour will meet Tuesday, Dec. 13, at 1 p.m. at St. Mary's Hall for their annual Christmas Party and president's reception for new members.

Mrs. Richard Keating, president, will welcome the following five new members into the Guild: Mrs. Lawrence Barafaldi, Miss Mary Cannon, Mrs. John P. McCarthy, Mrs. Hugh N. O'Brien, and Mrs. Roger D. Whittemore.

The program of entertainment will start at 2 p.m. followed by the exchange of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Angus Beaton is chairperson assisted by the following members of the board as hostesses: Miss Victoria Capone, Mrs. Edward Connors, Mrs. Frederick Connor, Mrs. Lionel Curtin, Mrs. Andrew Guthrie Jr., Mrs. Edward James, Miss Esther Lydon, Mrs. Charles McLaughlin, Miss Claire McLaughlin, Miss Mary McLaughlin, Mrs. J. Raymond Murphy, Miss Mary O'Connor, Miss Alice O'Leary, Mrs. John Sexton, and Mrs. Martin Titiliah. Also Mrs. Walter Crotty, Mrs. Newell Hare, and Mrs. C. Philip O'Rourke.

The affair will be brought to a close with a festive collation served by the hostesses.

The classes are informal, and those attending are invited to participate in discussions. A registered nurse and a registered dietitian from the hospital staff are the instructors.

Those who wish to register may call Claire Lewkowicz, RN, in the hospital's education department.

Auditions For 'Fifth Of July' On 14th Of Dec.

The Winchester Players are holding auditions for their February-March production of Lanford Wilson's "Fifth of July," a play which takes place on the front porch of the Tally farm in Lebanon, Mo., on Independence Day in the mid-70s.

Auditions will be on Wednesday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Michelson Room of the Winchester Unitarian Church (Main st. at Mystic Valley pky.)

A cast of eight is required for the show, which will be produced the last weekend in February and the first weekend in March. Rehearsals will begin Jan. 2 under Ed Burdekin's direction.

Two scripts are on reserve at the Winchester Public Library.

Roles available are: Kenneth Talley Jr. — a veteran of the Vietnam War where he lost both legs. He is afraid to return to teaching. A very sensitive actor is needed for this role. Late 20s, early 30s.

John Landis — a friend of Ken's who was in the forefront of the peace movement during the war. He has become very cynical. Late 30s.

Jed Jenkins — Ken's lover; a silent listener; a warm, kind person. 30s or 40s.

Weston Hurley — he is still back in the 60s. An aging flower child. 30s.

June Talley — Ken's sister, trying to

and the father of her child who is visiting for the holiday. 30s.

Shirley Talley — June's daughter.

Although 14, this is a most difficult and flamboyant and large role played by a skilled actress in her 20s who looks younger on stage.

Gwen Landis — John's wife, Ken's friend. This wild role requires an actress with energy and no inhibitions. Late 20s, early 30s.

Sally Friedman — Ken's aunt, warm, not motherly to these younger people, but a friend. 60s.

Saltmarsh Approves Reforms

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, a member of the House Committee on Rules, says that recently adopted reforms of the House rules is a "positive and constructive step."

The Rules Committee spent many hours deliberating on the recommendations of the special committee on rules," Saltmarsh said. "Our job was to approve rules that would make the House of Representatives a more responsive and efficient body. I think we have succeeded."

The most controversial proposal was the use of a secret ballot in the voting for Speaker of the House and the ratification of the appointment of committee chairmen, Saltmarsh explained.

"I do not believe in secret ballot in a representative governmental body," he said. "More openness and accountability should be expected from those elected to represent the people of this commonwealth, not less. I feel that secret voting is a step backward in the democratic process, and runs contrary to the reason we were elected to public office."

"Reform of legislative rules is an ongoing process," Saltmarsh said. "This first part has been very positive in the spirit of cooperation among a majority of House members from both parties. Now that the House has made significant changes, we must work on the rules affecting both the House and Senate. The special committee and the House Committee on Rules will continue to meet over these coming months and I look forward to being a part of this important process."

A new bank is coming with a new kind of interest: Human Interest.

Middlesex Federal is coming to Medford Square this winter. And with it comes the kind of personal service that seems to have gotten lost in the shuffle of today's automated banking world.

People you can talk with to help make plans for retirement, finance a new car, put your children through college or to find a way to buy a new house.

People who not only take a genuine interest in your financial problems—but have the experience and expertise to do something about them.

The new Medford Square office will be joining our offices in Teele Sq. and Davis Sq. in Somerville to bring a full range of banking services with "Human Interest" right to your neighborhood.

Sign Up Now For Rec. Dept. Winter Ski Trips

The first snowfall has already hit. Another first will be the Winchester Recreation Dept.'s Youth Ski Trips starting in January. The trips include a free lesson for all who sign up. Rentals are also available for a very low price.

On Friday, Jan. 13, the first trip will be to Crotched Mountain for night skiing. Crotched Mountain features manmade snow that will insure proper and enjoyable skiing conditions. If you've never skied before, this is a great opportunity to give it a try. Crotched Mountain has 26 trails for beginners through advanced skiers. Transportation and lift tickets are only $17. If you want to rent equipment, it will cost $22 for everything.

Saturday, Jan. 28, a day trip to Crot-ched Mountain is planned. Students in Grades 7 through 12 will be able to ski both sides of Crotched Mountain. The mountain features two base lodges and ski lifts to get skiers to the top of any slope. Transportation and lift tickets for the low cost of $19 and if you're renting, it will cost $26 for the whole package.

So start your winter off right by signing up for one of the ski trips starting in January. Whether you've skied before or you just want to give it a try, the Recreation Dept. and Crotched Mt. will be the place for fun and adventure.

Register now at the Recreation Dept., located in McCall Jr. High. Ski trip gift certificates are now available for those who would like to give a trip or two as a holiday gift.

Cross Country Skiing To Be Taught This Winter

Last winter the snow fall was not exactly what snow lovers had hoped for and the wonderful weather this area has had throughout the fall makes one almost predict that this year it will snow, snow, snow.

With that in mind, picture yourself amidst the newly fallen, fresh snow in a wide open field or in the middle of a beautiful wooded area with only nature and peace around you. Next, imagine that you are fully equipped with cross country gear and are gliding through the snow either by yourself, with your friends or your family. Sounds like fun.

In January, you may experience this dream when the Winchester Recreation Dept. offers a cross country ski program including two instruction classroom periods and two practicum periods in methods and techniques of cross country skiing.

On Wednesday, Jan. 18 and 25, from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m., classroom instruction will be provided at McCall Junior High School and on Saturday, Jan. 21 and 28, the group will take their knowledge to the open spaces at the Woburn Country Club and enjoy cross country skiing.

This program is open to individuals and families. Family members must be in Grade 2 or above in order to participate.

Art Assn. Opens With Gala Festivities

Amidst rain, sleet and snow, the Winchester and surrounding town's artists and friends were welcomed to the gala festivities of the new Winchester Art Assn. Gallery.

Decorated with Christmas wreaths and bright red poinsettias, the gallery's opening exhibit features 40 individual works of the present members of the Winchester Art Assn.

The gallery is located at 600 Main St., Winchester Center, and will be open Thursday evenings from 5 to 8 and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. for those who wish to stop in and view the large variety of paintings.

There is also a table of small works ranging from paintings, pottery, jewelry and craft pieces for those "hard to please" friends on your Christmas list. These items are for sale as are many of the large paintings on exhibit.

Association members invite residents to take time to come and visit and spend some quiet moments among pleasant surroundings — away from the hustle and bustle of the coming holidays.

For information about the gallery, contact Chairperson Joyce Colvario in Stoneham.

Mercurio Elected

DIRECTOR — John B. Mercurio Jr., owner of Mercurio Insurance Agency on Thompson St., was elected a director of the Professional Insurance Agents of New England at the group's annual convention. Mercurio, who previously served PIA as a seminar instructor and a member of the Massachusetts Steering and Education Committees, is president of the Winchester Assn. of Insurance Agents.

Holyoke Club Plans Museum Visits

For the first time the six Mount Holyoke College Clubs of Eastern Massachusetts are working together to raise funds to support an undergraduate "Alumnae Scholar" from their region. Alumnae from the Middlesex County area are active in this venture through Mount Holyoke Club of Winchester.

Tours of three unique area museums, with lectures, are planned for Saturdays in the months of December, March and May. Alumnae, relatives, and friends are invited to subscribe to the series or to attend one or two of the series at single ticket prices. At each museum refreshments will be served.

The three museums to be visited are the Boston Athenaeum on Saturday, Dec. 10, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., the Worcester Art Museum on Saturday, March 31, from 4 to 7 p.m., and the Peabody Museum of Salem on Saturday, May 5, from 6 to 9 p.m.

A visit to the Boston Athenaeum is an exceptionally fine privilege. This private library, founded in 1807, and built in 1847 contains distinctive collections of art, history, and architecture. The interior design has been sensitively pictured by David McCord as "combining the best elements of the Bodleian, Monticello, the frigate 'Constitution,' a greenhouse, and an old New England sitting room."

Tours will start at 9 a.m. followed by a lecture on the current exhibit "American Artists in Venice" presented by the new director of the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum, Teri Edelstein, whose special area of interest is the subject of this show.

Artistic talents to be observed are represented in the paintings of James Whistler, John Singer Sargent, Frank Duveneck, Robert Blum, Maurice Prendergast, Childe Hassam, and Ralph Curtis.

For further information about this series of museum visits, or for transportation, call Gloria Butterfield.

A Magnificent Christmas Gift

Arthur Griffin's NEW ENGLAND THE FOUR SEASONS

With Original Essays by 51 Famous Writers

New England and New England Revisited are now collector's items. I have a few signed copies left at $50.00 each.

As with Arthur Griffin's previous books NEW ENGLAND and NEW ENGLAND REVISITED, the photographs alone make a handsome volume to browse through. Here he is joined by fifty-one well-known writers — among them Archibald MacLeish, John Kenneth Galbraith, John Updike, and David McCord — who, in brief essays accompanying each full page color photograph, share their most intimate feelings for their own special places.

And Griffin's loving lens captures the yellow fog over Mystic Lake, the pond in the Winchester Golf Course, Morgan horses prancing through the dandelions of a Vermont countryside, as well as 48 other beautiful photos.

HOW AT&T SHAREHOLDERS CAN LEARN TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF A REAL BREAK.

You're probably aware that AT&T is scheduled to split up on the first of next year. But you may still be confused about what this means for you.

Now Merrill Lynch offers a special seminar — especially for AT&T shareholders — that's designed to end the confusion.

We'll discuss divestiture and how it works, how your holdings will be affected, what alternatives — such as a new unit trust sponsored by Merrill Lynch — are available to shareholders, and what potential the new spun-off companies and a deregulated Ma Bell hold.

Of course, time will also be set aside to answer your specific questions. What's more, your attendance assures that you will receive updated information from Merrill Lynch, along with advance notice of future AT&T seminars.

The seminar is free, but reservations are essential. To make yours, mail the coupon or call today.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

MDC LAND (H 6810): Senate 27-2, gave initial approval to a House-approved bill authorizing the state to sell 17,000 square feet of MDC land near Boston College.

Supporters said the bill is designed to eventually sell the land to BC which wants to build a 286 space parking garage. They noted that school officials and neighborhood groups have met and agreed that the bill is acceptable. Some stressed the bill does not require that the state sell the land, but simply authorizes it.

Opponents said the land should be retained for open space or recreational purposes and claimed many residents are opposed to the sale and feel it will cause congestion in the area. They also said the bill violates the Ward Commission which said until a piece of property is declared surplus, there will be consideration of sale by the legislature.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

RULES REFORM (S 2275): Senate 24-7, approved an order creating a special 11 member Senate commission to study the matter of rules reform in the Senate and report its findings in February 1984.

Supporters said a special commission would insure that the matter is studied carefully before any action is taken.

Opponents said the commission is a delaying tactic by the leadership to stop rules reform. They argued the rules have been studied for years and claimed meaningful changes are needed to weaken the power of the leadership and give individual senators more input into the process. They urged the defeat of the study and support of immediate consideration of several rules changes.

A "Yea" vote is for the study. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

$8000 HIKE (H 5764): House 91-57, gave initial approval to a bill raising the salary of the Executive Secretary of the Commission on Judicial Conduct from $25,000 to $33,000. The executive secretary directs the commission which handles complaints against judicial members in the state.

Supporters said the job began as part time but now is a full time one which justifies an $8000 hike.

Opponents said the increase is unnecessary during these troubled economic times and said this was one of many pay hike bills being rushed through the legislature.

A "Yea" vote is for the $8000 hike. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted no.

SJC SALARIES (H 5984): House, 116-29, sent back to the Ways and Means Committee, a bill increasing salaries for state Supreme Judicial Court judges.

Supporters of recommitting the bill argued it was improper and bad timing to consider the bill while the judges are considering whether proposed major legislative rules changes will be allowed on the 1984 ballot.

Some opponents of recommitment said there was nothing improper about considering the bill and said charges of "influence" were ridiculous. Others said they preferred the bill be debated and voted upon by the House instead of being shuttled off to linger in the Ways and Means Committee.

A "yea" vote is for recommitting the bill. A "Nay" vote is against recommitment.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

HOUSING (S 2034): House 145-0, approved a new version of a detailed $196 million public housing package authorizing the state to issue bonds to finance construction and repair of housing for the poor, elderly, and handicapped.

Supporters said the bill was an important step in making housing more affordable in the state. The Senate passed a different version of the bill in May and will now consider the House version.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. Saltmarsh voted yes.

Early Childhood Ed.

Students Hear About How To Bring Up Children

Students in the Early Childhood class usually learn from the children who attend the Child Study Lab at the high school.

But on Dec. 1, they also got to learn from the children's parents during a panel discussion. The parents answered questions from the students concerning the physical, mental, social and emotional development of their children.

Parents participating were Mary Whitney, Catherine Queen, Patricia Newhall, Marianne Murphy, Phyllis Keenan and Suzanne Kelley.

The Child Study Lab has children ages 2½ to 4½ attending. The children have increased their socialization skills through the activities in the lab.

One high school student is responsible each week for leadership of the lab. The student must develop a theme for the day and have specific items to be learned.

Harriet Nelson, the teacher of the early childhood course, has been pleased with the student enthusiasm and accomplishments during the semester.

News Competition
Suffolk University's Department of Journalism announces its 14th annual Greater Boston High School Newspaper Competition, open without charge to all public, private and parochial high schools in the Greater Boston area.

Three university scholarships, totaling $6,235, will be awarded to a qualified staff member of the winning newspaper in three categories.

Top prize is a $4035 scholarship for excellence in news writing. There will also be a $1200 scholarship for excellence in editorial writing and a $1000 scholarship for excellence in typography. Awards will be made at a dinner at the university, March 8.

Entries should be directed to the Dept. of Journalism, Suffolk University, 8 Ashburton place, Boston, 02108. Deadline is Jan. 17.

RUNNING AWAY FROM THE PACK — Winchester's Barry Sirchis outdistanced every other cross country runner in the Middlesex League during the season and in the year-end meet, beat everyone in the state during the State Meet three weeks ago, and now he has outrun the best of the Northeast, winning the Kinney Cross Country Championships in New York last week.

Sirchis Shines WHS's Top Runner Is Now The Northeast's Top Runner

BY LIZ WILLEN

When Barry Sirchis laces up his sneakers before a race, he has only one thing on his mind.

Winning.

Sirchis' single-minded approach works over and over again. Recently, the number-one cross country runner in the state put his formula for success to the test twice in a row — at the Northeastern Championships and the Junior Olympics on Nov. 19 and 20. And a week later he won the Kinney Cross Country Championship Northeast Regionals in New York.

Sirchis hopes to be the first once again Saturday, when he will be racing against the 63 other best cross country runners in the country in the Kinney National Finals in San Diego, Calif.

It's not as if Sirchis isn't used to running against the best, and putting out the best effort.

He ran the three-mile Junior Olympics course in Beacon, N.Y., in 15:49, after blowing away all his other competitors the day before at Boston's Franklin Park.

"I couldn't believe it," said an elated Sirchis after the race. "I had just come off one big victory and it was time to get in the car, go to New York, wake up the next morning and run again."

"I could believe it," said his coach, Joe Cantillon. "I'm never surprised by anything he does."

And although Sirchis himself was surprised, and even admittedly thrilled, he didn't stop to celebrate. The victories only caused him to train harder for his next race — the Kinney Northeast Regionals.

Once again, Sirchis' combination of attitude, desire and speed proved to be number one. But the race also proved to be the toughest of the season for Sirchis, who won by a mere three-tenths of a second.

"I was ready for the race, but it was definitely against my most difficult opponent," he admitted. "I'd gone to summer running camp at Bucknell University with him, so I knew what I was up against."

Two Top Runners Are Named All-Scholastic

Barry Sirchis and Laurie Glynn, seniors at Winchester High, were named to The Boston Globe 1983 All-Scholastic Cross Country Teams.

Sirchis was named Runner of the Year for his phenomenal undefeated season, from his very first meet, the Northeastern Invitational at Franklin Park, in September through the State Meet and his latest victory at the Kinney Regional meet at Van Cortlandt Park, N.Y.

Glynn, who is a five-time Globe All-Scholastic, lost only one meet during the regular season (her only Middlesex League loss of her high school career.) She placed seventh in Division 2EMass championships and finished her season placing 11th in the All-State Meet.

According to Glynn's coach, Joe Can-

Unfortunately for Sirchis' opponent, Brad Hudson of Lebanon, N.J., he didn't realize the kind of tenacity he was up against. Although Hudson led for the first 2½ miles, Sirchis edged him out in the straightaway for a photo finish that had the enormous crowd screaming.

Sirchis can still hear those screams. "The crowd knew him (Hudson) real well

tion, the Globe all-scholastic honor was a welcome, but unexpected one for the senior.

"Laurie was just motivated to run an incredible race in the state meet," he said. "She knocked off a lot of time from her time of the previous week (19:00 in the divisional meet) and really went after the pack."

Glynn's much-improved performance paid off, and she ended her season on a high note.

"She really wanted it," Cantillon said of the honor. "And she deserved it."

Cantillon said he has been receiving phone calls from colleges all over the country inquiring about Glynn. She has not received any formal scholarship offers yet.

Coach Hopes To Bring New Life To Tired Skaters

Winchester hockey BY LIZ WILLEN

The idea of inheriting the job as hockey coach of a team that hasn't had a .500 season in more than five years and was 1-17 last year might not seem incredibly enticing to most coaches.

But Winchester High School's new hockey coach, Mike Whyte, is actually thrilled to be taking over a team that lost 17 games last season before winning one.

And he is also optimistic that the high school's hockey program can be turned around. To the former assistant coach of Salem State's hockey team, that's the real job he sees ahead of him.

"I realize we have a very young team," he says. "But that's really what is going to help me to develop the program as a whole."

Whyte says that even freshmen will see some varsity playing time this season to help him facilitate his long-term goal of developing a solid, competitive hockey program in Winchester.

"It takes time to get a good program going," he admits. "And I plan on devoting that time — to the junior varsity and the freshmen team as well as to the varsity."

In all, 52 players tried out for the three teams, a number Whyte said he was very pleased with. And at least seven players are returning from last year's team.

"The seniors have some experience and they will really help pull the rest of the team together," explains Whyte.

Center Mike DellaSala, along with forwards Steve Moros and Peter Sullivan, will share that role with defensemen Paul Verullo and Nick Geannarus.

Other returning players include sophomores Bob Paine, Bob Collins and Scott Binding.

Before he accepted his new position, Whyte had seen what would be his new team play — last year when he was scouting the Middlesex League for Salem State.

He made note of what he saw — and the team is now working on the skills he thought they needed most practice in.

Those skills include the fundamentals of skating — in fact, aside from the two scrimmages the Sachems have played in, they have done little else.

"The first week all we did was skate," explains Whyte, who has been on the ice at the USA skating rink with his team for almost two weeks. "We're also working on power skating, a skill I teach at clinics during the summer."

Whyte, a former minor league hockey player, has as much enthusiasm for his new position as he does for the game of hockey.

"Hockey has been a part of me all of my life," he says. "I really love the sport and I love working with this age group. The team has been responding well to everything I've told them so far and I can see that they are learning something new every day."

Whyte is undaunted by the dim past of Winchester hockey.

"I think their old coach (Mike Houghton) did a super job — I really do," he says. "But the problem has been that

Quickness The Key To Girls' Basketball Season

The 1983-84 edition of the Sachemette basketball team will bring the skills of the state champion girls soccer team — speed and good ball sense.

They are also the size of soccer players, not basketball players. Which means the Sachemettes will be passing around hoping for quick scoring opportunities while relying on a speedy defense to carry the game.

"We're basically relying on quickness on defense," said coach Joe DiSarcina. "We feel that could be what we're going to live on this year."

The Sachemettes this year are a speedy bunch — four of the five starters, and two of the first three players off the bench spent the fall racing up and down the soccer field.

The starting forwards, Patti Taylor, Paula Russo and center Kristen McNamara, and one of the starting guards, Ellen Clavin, all played together this fall. So did Theresa Ducharme and Mich Powers, who will be the first forward and guard off the bench.

The players have more in common than tenure on the soccer field.

"They're all cut from the same mold," observed DiSarcina. "Small, very good quickness, good anticipation on defense and they move up the court quickly."

Whether or not racing up and down the court results in wins remains to be seen.

'We feel that defense could be what we're going to live on this year.'

—Coach Joe DiSarcina

Defense, as DiSarcina predicts, should be the backbone of the Sachemettes' game. Veteran Barbara Delaney, joined by Clavin, Powers, and freshman Maureen Dokus, have been sharp in the backcourt in practice. And the whole team is spending 75 percent of their time in practice working on defense.

"With the speed, we'll be trying to force the play more, making things happen defensively rather than letting them set up against us," said DiSarcina.

But speed makes up for smallness a lot better on defense than offense. And offense wasn't the Sachemettes' strong suit last year.

Basically, the Sachemettes of last year looked to Maria Montuori to shoot, and forgot about passing around or getting insight. Montuori graduated, and at 5-foot-8 center Kristen McNamara isn't going to be forcing her way inside too easily.

The answer, for DiSarcina, was to rely on speed, again, and teamwork.

"There's a real change in outlook this year," said DiSarcina. "We're looking to develop more of a team effort."

"We're going to be looking for a lot of movement, not setting up for one girl deep," he continued. "We'll try to get all five players moving, creating openings rather than trying to lob it inside."

There are early indications the Sachemettes will play well in the team-oriented strategy.

All of the players, down to reserve

Sachem Hoopsters Will Try To Outthink Foes

By ZOE CARTER

The loss of seven senior starters from the Winchester's boys basketball team this year will mean lots of hard work for the young and inexperienced Sachem players.

"We're going to have trouble replacing the seven seniors who took us to the state tournament last year," commented David Smith, who is beginning his second year as the Winchester basketball coach.

One of the obstacles that this year's team will have to compensate for is their lack of size.

Sophomore Hank Lynch, 6-foot 3-inches, is the tallest player on the team followed by senior Brian Muhaney, juniors David Koffman and Jake Lewin, and sophomores Peter Muhaney and Dennis Clarke who all measure in at 6-foot 2. The rest of the team ranges between 5-foot 8 and 6-foot 1.

"We don't have a great overall size," Smith admitted. "But we're going to outsmart and outthink the other teams as best we can."

Outwitting the other team may be an important part of the Sachem's success this season. Experience certainly can't be the important part — only one of the players had previous varsity experience.

"It's hard to single anyone out yet," Smith said. "None of the returning players have any varsity experience except Bill Thomas (a 5-foot 10-inch senior) and he didn't play regularly last year. We're

'We don't have great size. But we're going to outsmart and outthink the other teams.'

—Coach Dave Smith

basically starting from scratch."

There are, however, a promising group of sophomore players who played on the freshman team last year.

"There is a good nucleus of sophomores this year," Smith said. "The freshman team last year had an 121 and 2 record. They've been practicing with the varsity this fall."

Sachem fans should keep their eyes out for sophomores David Dellacrotte, Mike White, and Tim Budrewiez. Also working with the varsity are Steve Murray, Jay Herlitz and John Bruno who also played with last year's freshman team.

With a week to go before the first game against Belmont on Dec. 13, the team is still deciding who will be a starter and who will play defense.

"We're still experimenting with who will be in what position," Smith said.

But if the team's positions are still unclear, the overall strategy has been determined.

"We're going to be extremely aggressive," Smith said. "And we'll be doing lots of running."

After the team's first scrimmage against Medford last Saturday, the coach was pleased with the outcome.

"We played them fairly evenly," Smith said. "It went well."

According to Smith the teams that will be hardest to beat this season are Lexington, Wakefield and Burlington. The Belmont team that has traditionally done well in the league will also provide a strong challenge for the inexperienced Sachems.

"Belmont is one of the favorite teams because he's also undefeated, and he's made a name for himself in the area," he said. "And he was ahead of me for almost the entire race — I couldn't even see him because of the woods."

When Sirchis did come out of the woods after 2½ miles, he spotted Hudson going up a hill 35 yards in front of him.

"I just started pumping," Sirchis recalled. "And as I started getting closer, I said to myself, 'I don't want to lose.' And then, 'I don't want to lose by one second.'"

Just before the finish line, Sirchis caught up with Hudson — and the pair ran together for several strides before Sirchis edged him out to win the race.

"He managed to put a finishing touch on the end and that kick just did it," said Cantillon. "I was really happy for him."

Sirchis was pleased to — but he said he isn't quite ready to celebrate his undefeated season yet. Still ahead is his biggest challenge — the Kinney National Finals on Saturday in San Diego. Sixty-four of the nation's top male and female high school runners will compete in the finals.

Sirchis hopes to win.

"I really do want to win it and I think I have a good chance," he said.

After the race, Sirchis will have a few days to tour Hollywood, Seaworld and several other tourist attractions. And while the trip to California is a first for the super athlete, he says he is finding it difficult to think about any other first except for the finish he desires.

"I'm not really worried though," he adds. "I'll just take it as it comes, the same way I do any other race. But I have to admit, it is exciting to go to California."

In preparation for this final race, Sirchis has been training about 70 miles per week.

"He's probably peaking just about now," remarked Cantillon. "He's in very good shape."

"You can't let rain, snow or anything like that stop you," said Sirchis, who never does. "I'm ready to go — and I want to win."

★ Girls

players Ellen Donahoe, Julie Guarnotta and Amy Peluso, have been practicing with enthusiasm.

"The real positive part of this season is the team attitude that's showing in the team play," said the coach. "There are seven, eight or nine girls who are really doing a good job, and they'll be putting in a lot of playing time."

Midgets Finish Season

in the league," Smith said. "They'll be right up there near the top."

Smith is optimistic about the success of this year's team. He also expects a series of good teams to be cropping up in the next few years as a result of the basketball programs in the seventh and eighth grades.

Smith, who previously coached at the Sterne School in Maine and at the Gloucester High School, is pleased with being a part of the Winchester Athletic Dept.

"I love working here," he said. "It's one of the nicest communities to work in."

If last year's 15-6 basketball record, which put the Sachems in the playoffs, is any judge, Winchester is lucky to have coach Smith on their side.

★ Hockey

the better players have gone off to private schools."

There isn't much Whyte can do about that. But by building a new program from the ground floor up, he can give new hope to a hockey program that has been suffering for far too long.

"We're all learning in the process," Whyte adds. "We'll approach each game differently and when the players start to see results they will gain confidence. In a year or two, we'll certainly be a team to reckon with.

And for this year, Whyte's goal is to pull a team together that can win a few games while learning the basic skills necessary to pull them out of the basement.

"We want to be competitive and we want to win," Whyte admits. "It's time."

Whyte is also looking at Chris Giso, Scott Paine, John Barbuto and Jim Chute.

History Of Winchester Books Available

"The History of Winchester" is a two-volume boxed set that would make a beautiful Christmas gift for any Winchester resident. The work was published in 1975 by the town of Winchester.

Volume one is essentially a reprint of the 1936 edition by Henry Smith Chapman. Volume two takes up with the middle years of the twentieth century and was written by Bruce Winchester Stone.

These sets are available at the Winchester Public Library.

Once the choice of caulk is made, the work begins. The number of places where caulking can and should be done will keep the caulk-equipped homeowner or apartment dweller busy for a long time.

According to Baldwin, caulking should be done around and inside door and window frames, pipes coming through the floor or the ceiling, and between the baseboards and the floor and the baseboards and the walls.

Outside caulking should be done in the spring or summer so that the caulk will apply easily. If the temperature is too cold, the caulk will come out of the gun unevenly.

Some of the most important spots to pay attention to are where the siding meets the chimney, where the walls meet the foundation, and around the frames of doors and attic and basement windows.

Baldwin emphasized the importance of good insulation in the basement.

"You should make a point of caulking any cracks in the basement because cold air will come up from the basement through the floor and in the walls," Baldwin said. "If you live on the first floor or you own your house — seal off your basement all together."

Baldwin showed the workshop how to handle a caulking gun, one of the items included in the conservation kits.

"You should release the handle and move it steadily down the cracks," he said, going through a dry run on one of the library's basement doors.

For those holes, especially in an above-ground foundation, that demand more than caulking to seal them up, Baldwin gave a quick slide show presentation on patch cementing.

"Usually to prepare the cement you need an old bucket or plastic basin," he said. With the ready-mix cement you just add water. It's like making pancakes. Once it's mixed up it can be applied with a trowel."

At the other end of the house, in the attic, insulation is not just a question of filling in the cracks. Insulation, which falls into three major categories — blanket, loosefill and rigid insulation — can be installed in the basement, the walls and the attic. But especially the attic.

"The attic is the major cause of lost heat," said Tri-Cap's Mathew Goldman. "If your attic is uninsulated, it will cost you about $800 to fully insulate it. But once it is insulated, it will save you close to $1000 in the first year."

"Imagine yourself naked in a snowstorm," Goldman added. "You would just be cold. But if your house is naked, it costs money. You have to insulate your house the way you have to put warm clothes on yourself."

The simplest type of insulation is fiberglass batting or blanket insulation. Installation of batting can be done with a staple gun although it is hard to use in irregular spaces.

Goldman explained that the batting comes with a "vapor barrier," a sheet of plastic or foil attached to one side of the batting.

"The vapor barrier keeps the moisture away from the insulation," he said. "It should face the heated area of the house. That way the moisture in the heated area can't get to the insulation."

In the attic, the vapor barrier should face down towards the house, and in the basement it should be installed facing upwards.

An alternative to batting is loosefill insulation made out of cellulose or sometimes fiberglass. It is more difficult to install as it needs to be poured into the space between the walls or between the floors and ceilings.

Because the loosefill needs to be poured or blown in, Goldman suggested that homeowners hire someone with the appropriate equipment if they choose this form of insulation.

The last option for insulation is rigid insulation made out of either isocyanurate or polystyrene. It is quite expensive both to purchase and install and it needs to be covered with wall board for fire protection. The advantage of rigid insulation is that it is not very thick and can be installed in areas with a slim width.

The last topic at the workshop was for people whose houses or apartments have an enclosed porch facing south. Instead of closing it off in the winter or losing heat through the windows, Goldman explained how a porch like this could be used to collect heat during the sunny part of the day.

"It's a cheap way to convert an enclosed porch into a warm sunny room that may even help heat the rest of your house," Goldman said. "The porch has to face south and it has to get more than five hours of direct sunlight a day."

"All that's involved is covering it with greenhouse plastic. Then put in wooden supports to keep the plastic in place. If you use two layers of plastic it will heat up even more. Then open the doors and windows into the rest of the house when the porch heats up."

"I know some people who did this and they have a hammock out there now," Goldman said. "On clear, sunny days they lie out there and pretend they're in the tropics."

For those Winchester residents who are interested in watching winter snowstorms while basking in tropical warmth, the next basic workshop will be held on Dec. 15, at 10 a.m. and the next advanced workshop will be on Dec. 21 at 7 in the evening at the library.

All Tri-Cap workshops are open to residents whether or not they are eligible for a Fuel Assistance Eligibility Card. There is a Fuel Assistance department at the Jenks Senior Citizen Center open between nine and three on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Interested applicants should call for an appointment. Once they have submitted income documentation, the department determines the level of assistance available to them. They will receive their card within 30 days and they can obtain a free conservation kit at any of the Tri-Cap workshops.

Word Processing
Middlesex Community College is offering a word processing training course that takes only two weeks to complete. The 15-hour program accepts three students with a minimum typing ability of 45 words per minute for each session. Sessions begin every other week: classes meet days or evenings at the Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall ave. To register call the Bedford campus, ext. 295.

★Principal

to fellow Principal Andrew Allen. He talked about his work and asked her what grade in Lynch she would like to look in on.

Jessica chose kindergarten and she was introduced to a group of tots who greeted her with respect.

"What will you remember about this kindergarten?" asked Principal Allen as they were leaving. "They don't fight," replied the impressed spectator.

Jessica's chauffeur for the day (ex-Principal Flynn) had to be pulled away from an Apple computer where he was surrounded by a group of schoolchildren. It seems that Flynn has been working on computer learning games for children and has been testing them out on the youngsters in his "spare" time.

Next on the agenda was a visit to the office of the Fire Chief for his approval on some cloth that would be used by the sixth grade to make curtains for the cafeteria. After that it was back to school.

What Jessica thought was a good part of the morning behind them was actually a large part of the afternoon ahead of them. It was now time for the desk work and thus far Miss Power had concluded that "Principals have to go on a lot of errands."

Flynn brought in head custodian Herb Cabral to discuss a problem that had come to their attention. It seemed there were several dead trees in the schoolyard that could pose a hazard to the children's safety. Flynn had Cabral take Jessica to look at the trees and reach a decision as to what should be done.

Upon Jessica's return, they discussed the problem and with a little help, Jessica wrote a letter to the Dept. of Public Works requesting that they cut down the trees. If some trees are missing on the schoolyard in the near future, then the students can thank Jessica for it.

Before Jessica could lean back in her chair for a rest there were other matters to contend with. There would be no mid-afternoon rest periods for Jessica today. Flynn and Jessica discussed her route to school and he questioned whether there were any problems.

Jessica was able to tell Flynn that her hill was slippery in the winter (Flynn jotted down a memo to sand the pathway.) and some kids were running down the hill, making it dangerous. (Flynn made a notation to warn the students of the danger involved.)

Flynn allowed Jessica to draw her own conclusions on various issues they discussed as he attempted to impress upon the 9-year-old that the heart of the principal's job is in making decisions.

As lunchtime rolled around, Vice Principal Flynn manned his post in the lunchroom as supervisor and told Jessica to take a break. While the young girl sat alone at an adult-designed desk, in rushed a crisis.

"Someone is standing on the sink in the boy's room," said a concerned male student. The little girl just barely peered over the top of the desk and replied, "I'll tell Mr. Flynn."

"Aren't you going to do anything?" inquired the lad.

"I told you — I'll tell Mr. Flynn," retorted the knee-soaked little girl as she hopped out of her chair.

When Flynn came back he jokingly told Jessica she had handled the situation like a true administrator. She had already learned to "pass the problem along."

"It's harder to be a principal than a student," said the blond-haired youngster as she sat writing memos. "You have more work to do."

Geraldine Buzzotta, Principal Flynn's secretary and acting secretary for Jessica, told the girl that she was there to lend a hand if Jessica needed her.

With the letter of the Dept. of Public Works in her typewriter, Buzzotta had Jessica write a memo to teachers concerning a possible weekend snowstorm and an article for the newsletter.

An hour later, Jessica finished her desk work and called for a messenger to deliver her memo to the classrooms. Five little girls appeared anxious to carry the word of Miss Power to their teachers.

No sooner had she put down her pencil before a sanguine Flynn handed her another memo that had to be read to all classes. "This is the hardest part," said a humble Jessica. "Because I have to go up in front of my friends and it's embarrassing."

After covering grades 1 through 6 and announcing that the space shuttle could be seen over Winchester at 4:42 p.m., the little girl who started her day out with a spring in her step was now moving at a much slower pace.

"She is going to sleep like a log tonight," remarked the former Principal Flynn as the day drew to a close.

Back in the office, Jessica started to gather her things and say goodbye to the room she shared with her superior for the day. Just two minutes away from dismissal, a quick secretary Buzzotta darted in to the principal's office and reported a smoke smell on the first floor.

The little girl's eyes became the size of saucers as she looked nervously up to Flynn.

"You stay here, Jessie," was the fast reply from the principal as he rushed from the office to take care of the small fire which was extinguished quickly by teachers and students.

A smile of relief spread over the freckled cheeks of the ex-principal as she put on her coat and joined her friend who was waiting to skip home with her.

NEW PRINCIPAL — While most students are sent to the principal's office for a lecture, 9-year-old Jessica Power went into the Ambrose Principal's Office to take over. She was chosen "Principal for the Day" last week.

Entries should be directed to the Dept. of Journalism, Suffolk University, 8 Ashburton place, Boston, 02108. Deadline is Jan. 17. A minimum of two issues, published since September must be submitted.

★ Snow

That second round of snow flurries forced Serratore to call out 20 men who plowed and sanded until 11:30 p.m. on seven trucks. Two crews stayed on the job all night to sand the slippery hills of town, especially Johnson rd.

The extra snow also caused the only accidents of the day reported to Winchester police.

In less than an hour, between 5:30 and 6:30 p.m., police received reports of four accidents in the Ridge st.-Johnson rd. area. No one was injured in any of the accidents.

★ Bridge

a roadway, it means our maintenance problems will be much less.

Selectmen bubbled over with praise for the efforts of Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh as they drank champagne and discussed the opening of the bridge on Monday night.

"Whip had enough sense to have the earlier project (building a bridge) dropped," said Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell. "The risk meant a delay and an inconvenience, but it was for the betterment of the town in the long run."

"I realize this toast is long overdue," said Saltmarsh, referring both to the bridge and the champagne. Lifting his glass he added, "The Board of Selectmen have certainly changed since I was a member."

Saltmarsh also assured the selectmen that the delay was well worth the effort to redesign the bridge.

"The start and stop project was tough, but I believe spending $500,000 for a bridge would have been irresponsible," he said. "The fact that we eliminated that was a big thing — and well worth it."

"Sometimes we just assume things get done without a driving force behind them," added O'Connell. "But in this instance, it just wouldn't have without the efforts of Whip Saltmarsh. He worked very hard to see it through."

And through is where cars on going on the once blocked off Swanton st. bridge.

Poor visibility due to snow led to one of the accidents, according to Police Officer Jonathan Dean. At 6 p.m., a Honda sedan traveling west on Johnson rd. and attempting to make a right turn onto Ridge st. collided with a BMW traveling east on Johnson rd.

A second two-car accident was reported at virtually the same time. A 1975 Dodge Dart skidded in the snow while traveling north on Ridge st. and collided with a 1982 Cadillac heading south. The front ends of both cars were damaged.

In another Ridge st. accident, a mailbox was knocked over by a hit-and-run driver. Ridge st. residents complained that a car described as a light green Pontiac station wagon went up over the curb, knocked over their mailbox, backed down Ridge st. with the lights off and sped up Johnson rd. toward Lexington. Police didn't have any more luck in stopping the driver than the mailbox had.

Neighbors weren't as upset when a car struck a light pole on Johnson rd. where it turns into Wildwood st. In fact, the neighbors helped the driver pull the car off the pole. Neither pole nor drive was damaged, although the damage to the car was estimated at $500.

The damage to the town's budget because of the storm was considerably more. Because the snow fell on a Sunday, the DPW crews were paid double overtime, which took a $3,000 bite out of the $90,000 overtime budget. The town also spent $1,200 out of its $50,000 sand and salt budget.

FINAL BLOCKADE — After being open for three days, the Swanton st. bridge, now a roadway, was blocked off again Monday. But the blockade was only temporary, so town officials could cut the ribbon officially opening the road after a year-and-a-half of construction. Welding scissors are (l to r) state project supervisor Robert Joyce, Police Chief John McHugh, Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia, Fire Chief Robert McElhinney, Public Works Director Dom Serratore, Selectman Mark Lombardi, state DPW Commissioner Robert Tierney, state Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh, Selectman Alan Macdonald and Town Manager Thomas Groux.

Robert Sanborn has seen Winchester change dramatically while growing up and living all his life in his Black Horse terr. home.

A House Full Of Memories

Sanborn Looks At 78 Years In Town

BY LIZ WILLEN

Robert Sanborn remembers when Winchester was a country town with rolling farms, tanneries, livestock stables, and horse-drawn carriages.

He remembers when groceries were delivered door to door, when Christmas trees cost 25 cents, and the Mystic Lakes were clean and pure and a pleasure to swim in.

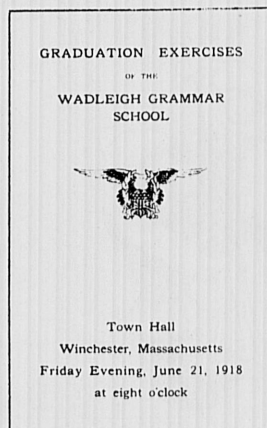

The Black Horse terr. resident has lived in the same house, built in 1892 by his grandfather, since he was born in 1905. He even married the girl next door — Mary "Susie" Cutter, whom he has been married to for 45 years.

And in this same house, where Sanborn's father Harry lived, he and his wife have brought up three sons — and witnessed decades of change in Winchester, change that Sanborn is not at all convinced was necessary.

He misses the small, personal quality of Winchester, before the population burgeoned to 23,000. He misses the intimate relationships he shared with his neighbors, back when "everybody knew everybody."

Sanborn is a firm believer in the importance of recognizing the past, an old-timer who longs for the good old days — and doesn't hesitate to say so.

His memory is still lucid and vivid, although he has lost some physical mobility since he suffered a stroke several years ago.

CLASS OF 1918 — The graduation program from the Wadleigh School in 1918, the year Robert Sanborn graduated from the junior high.

PUT AWAY — According to Robert Sanborn, most Winchester residents put their cars away for the winter rather than drive through the snow in 1929.

And, as he shifts from subject to subject rapidly, certain memories bring forth a surge of passion for the "good old days." Sanborn especially longs for the elusive small town quality that he loved about Winchester. "I used to know all the neighbors — everyone did — but now they come and go so fast," he says, his voice tinged with regret. "You just don't get to know your neighbors the same way anymore."

Beyond that, Sanborn is sorry that the increase in population has changed the character of Winchester from a "country town" to a "city suburb."

"The center was much better

FAMILY PORTRAIT — Robert Sanborn grew up in the same Black Horse terr. home he still lives in. In 1916, he, his younger brother Frederick and his mother, Carolyn, posed for this portrait.

in the old days," he says. "Now, there are all out-of-town owners in the buildings, and they just don't care as much about the place because they don't live here."

Sanborn used to know all the merchants personally. "We used to patronize good friends at the grocery store, the butcher shop, the haberdashery," he remembers.

"In the old days, you would call in your orders by telephone, and they came to you in a horse and wagon. They knew your preferences — and they wouldn't sell you anything rotten. Now,

Recalling Winters Of Many Years Ago

By ROBERT SANBORN

I suppose that the blizzard of the 1978 winter that brought traffic to a standstill over eastern Massachusetts, caused havoc and destruction along the coast, was regarded as the worst storm of the century. Within my memory there have been storms that were equally bad if not worse, and that brings to mind the storm on Valentine's Day some 30 years ago when the driving snow in a northeast gale stalled cars everywhere, and the snow buried them so that when the storm was over the cars were only a slight bulge in the snowy landscape.

Older people than I always cite the "Portland Storm" as the ultimate in blizzards. I recall that my grandfather, who lived in Brookline at the time, spent the night in the subway as did many other people. That was the night that the steamer Portland was lost with all hands, just where no one knows to this day.

In my younger days big snow storms were an annual event, and winter was a long season, commencing before Christmas and lasting through March. It seems to me that there was much more snow then, and the cold more intense, but time has a way of changing perspective and memory is a great gift that preserves happy and interesting experiences and miseries are forgotten or their memory faded.

they'll sell you something rotten."

Sanborn isn't keen on supermarkets either. "It used to be that everyone was on good, friendly terms with the merchants. You just can't have that in a supermarket. The old way was so much better."

Sanborn has preserved certain old ways by collecting relics from the past — and maintaining his home much the way it was when he was growing up in it. He refuses to buy paperback books, and the numerous bookshelves in his home abound with hardcovers — many of them frayed and yellowing around the edges.

"I've always been a book-buyer," says Sanborn, who graduated from the old Wadleigh School but dropped out of Winchester High School. "I never cared much for school — but I've always loved to read — history, biography, natural history, anything."

Pointing to the shelves, he adds, "I've read every book you see — and those are just a fraction of what we've got in this house."

Aside from his old books, Sandborn and his wife collect bells, Beatrice Potter figures, old ships, and wooden birds. And they've kept the same rugs, furniture and curtains that were always there.

That's the way the former operations manager for Paine, Webber and Jackson likes to live — among the memories, relics and albums full of old photos that remind him of the way Winchester used to be.

But living in the past can have its lonely moments. "There isn't a soul within a mile of this house that lived here when I was growing up," says Sanborn sadly. "Most of my friends are either dead or moved away."

Luckily, Sanborn has his wife to remind him of the past. Both recall the years they grew up next door to one another.

"Our families were like one big family," recalls Susie Sanborn. Pointing to a window in back of the house next door, she adds, "My room was right over there — and Robert could watch me studying (for a bachelor's degree from Jackson College)."

Apparently, Sanborn liked what he saw — although Susie insists it was her fudge that "got him."

Sanborn is eight years older than his wife, and says he had to wait for "the girl next door to grow up" before he married her.

Susie sees it differently. "It took him 20 years to make up his mind," she laughs.

In 1941, the couple married. But their honeymoon didn't last long — Sanborn soon went off to World War II as a first sergeant. "I thought the war was going to last forever," he sighs.

Of course, it didn't — but the Sanborns' marriage has lasted.

"I've never even thrown a rolling pin at him," says Susie Sanborn.

"We were perfectly familiar with each other by the time we got married — that was the secret," says Sanborn.

Both Sanborns have deep roots in New England (both of their ancestors arrived in America not long after the first settlers came on the Mayflower), and they feel that their similar backgrounds have been another key to a successful marriage.

"One should never marry out of another background or religion," warns Sanborn. "Sooner or later it will become a brawl."

Sanborn didn't have to go any further than the next house over on Black Horse terr. to find what he was looking for. And although he is surrounded by mementos of his Winchester childhood, he's never quite come to grips with the changes that he has experienced.

"The world is such a kaleidoscope, and things change so fast," he says. "Too fast."

Sanborn realizes he can't relive the old days — and the Winchester of today can never go back to its rolling acres of undeveloped land and trolley cars.

But he does believe that people should take the time to remember the past, contemplate it and learn from it. He has written up many of his memories and donated them to the archives of the Winchester Historical Society. And he is willing to discuss his memories because he believes there is an important lesson to be learned from them.

"History and passing scenes should be recorded," he concludes. "Things were done very differently and people should know about the past — especially because it changes so very quickly."

If Robert Sanborn had his way, that wouldn't be the case at all.

★ Winter

Winter was hailed with joy as an opportunity for a whole set of enjoyable activities denied us the rest of the year. Everyone expected it and was prepared and equipped to cope with it. Forgotten are the cold hands and feet, frostbite, chilblains, and such household chores as shoveling coal and sifting ashes, not to mention the tons of snow that had to be removed from walks, roofs in bad winters, and in those days clothes yards so that the weekly wash could be hung outdoors.

The big difference, of course, between present winters and those of 50-60 years ago is the automobile. In the old days no vehicle moved on wheels all winter. At the first snowfall everyone who used horses converted to runners. The horses were sharp-shod, which entailed adding caulk to their shoes to keep them from slipping and falling. In the country and many other places the horse was hitched to one side of the vehicle so that it could travel in the track of a sled or sleigh that had preceded it and not have to break out a new path. The going was easy enough on packed snow.

I cannot recall that the town did much plowing. Sidewalks and side streets with a blue-painted wooden plough drawn by one horse usually, sometimes two in tandem, and it was indeed a cold job to stand on the plough, drive the horse, and manipulate the wheel that manipulated the angle of the wing that widened or narrowed the path. I can see Jimmy McCraven now coming up this hill on his plow, covered with snow, the icicles hanging from his white moustache, not complaining audibly at least, doing the job expected of him on such an occasion.

The Bay State Street Railway ran the street cars in town in my early days. One line from Arlington, through the center, eventually going to Wakefield. The other coming from Lowell went through to Sullivan Square in Charlestown. Incidentally, a ride on either line cost a nickel. This railway did what plowing was done on Main st. for its entire length, Church st., Cambridge, st. to the Arlington line, and Washington and Forest sts. to the Stoneham line.

The tracks were in the middle of the street except on Cambridge st. where they ran close along the west side, of the street and Forest st. where they were on the north side. The railway used big rotary plows that threw the snow off the tracks but onto the adjoining roadway where it was soon packed down by sleighs, puns, and other traffic.

I can recall the stretch between the Boat Club and the Country Club where all the snow from the tracks was thrown into the street. It was somewhat shady in that area, and in time of a thaw it became full of ruts and almost impassable to wheels. Those big plows had carbon arc searchlights on front that were quite the brightest anyone had seen at the time, and lighted up the road well in the heaviest snow.

★ Winter

As nearly as I can remember it was 1916 or '17 when people began to drive their cars in the winter. Many kept them off the street until April, as they saved a bit on registration and the going was better. Many were the gadgets that came on the market to facilitate winter driving. Tire chains, of course were a must, not only on the rear wheels but on front also, as without them a car could not get out of the deep icy ruts that were everywhere.

It is not well recalled that the early automobiles used smooth tires on the front wheels, as the existent steering mechanism was not considered capable of operating tires with treads! There were Pines Winter Fronts that fastened onto the radiators and were operated by a thermostat that opened and closed shutters to maintain engine temperature. I doubt cars had water pumps and the radiators cooled by convection which made a Motometer, to indicate radiator temperature, a necessity.

Denatured alcohol was used as anti-freeze and had a tendency to overheat and boil off or it was possible for the radiator to freeze while driving. Heaters were almost unheard of. The exhaust run through a pipe behind a grill in the back seat was mostly for show and sales purposes, as almost all were touring cars, and the side curtains did nothing to make a ride on a winter day any warmer.

I mentioned ruts. They were one thing to contend with and narrow lanes cleared of snow another. The Mystic Valley pkwy. from Bacon st. to Medford was plowed one car wide at least one winter, and turnouts shoveled by hand at intervals so that cars could pass each other. If you met a car someone backed up to the nearest turnout.

January thaws were a reality, and as there was no snow removal as at present, there was water everywhere on a mild day, turning to ice at night. The plows in use left a rather heavy layer of snow on sidewalks which turned to slush and then froze, making the sidewalks extremely treacherous in spite of sand put on by the town. I can remember signs on the streets, "Do not drive in ruts," which meant nothing, as that was the easy way to go. When the ruts froze the trouble started.

I remember going out with a friend of mine who drove the delivery truck for Blaisdell's Market. We had a delivery at Robinson pk., but met a car and as the tires in that era were extremely narrow we could not get out of the ruts and backed all the way to Church st. No wonder so many people refused winter driving.

On the other hand many people owned horses and people with horses had sleighs, and I suppose I did my share of sleighing in the early years. Mr. Gilbert who lived at the corner of Pine and Dix st. had a cutter and a span of horses and took us to ride occasionally. Barbara Fernald had a sleigh and I recall many rides with her. Our neighbors had a horse and generously gave us the use of her, and we used her a good deal.

I never considered it all fun, as it was usually cold, the buffalo robe did nothing but keep off a bit of wind, and the horse's hoofs balled up in snow and would throw snow and ice in your face. It was, however, something to look forward to annually, and certainly something to remember so many years afterward.

At the first snowflakes out came the sleds. I suppose that coasting was the great winter sport in those days. Everyone had skates too, but freezeup was before Christmas usually, and followed by snow that spoiled the skating. There were exceptions. I can remember skating down the river from the foot of Mystic ave., walking across Bacon st., and skating all the way to the Aqueduct, if anyone knows where that was.

There could be skating as early as Thanksgiving — Long Pond in the Fells early, Winter, Wedge, and finally Mystic. Lots of iceboating on Mystic, and if you want a cold ride try an iceboat! There was always coasting from the first snow. Plenty of hills, no traffic, lots of open space, and it seemed that you never tired of coasting, in spite of the miles walked back up the hills.

There was a distinction between boys' sleds and girls' sleds in my early experience, and no boy would use a girls' sled and vice versa. Boys' sleds were low to the ground, and had runners attached to the board that was practically the entire sled. Girls' sleds were eight or 10 inches above the runners, but why the distinction I never knew.

Then there were toboggans which really required a track or shute and double runners that were the last word in coasting. Two boys' sleds joined by an 8- or 10-inch plank, one end fastened to the rear sled and the other end pivoted on the other sled and equipped with either a wheel or ropes for steering. They were usually equipped with gongs to clear the way as brakes were nonexistent.

We had one at our disposal in the neighborhood and spent quite a few Saturdays coasting down Highland ave. on the Medford end. Once Harry Davy from Everett ave. came over and towed the 'dub' back up the hill after each coast with his Packard Twin Six in exchange for a coast or two!

The coast down the hill at the Medford end of Highland ave. was probably the longest that we enjoyed, and if conditions were right we could go almost to the Medford line. There was another, starting from the same place, where the Henry house was later built, lately occupied by Frank Fontaine. We went down the steep hill to where Everett rd. now is and it was a fast and rough ride.

Most of the coasting in this neighborhood was done evenings on Mystic ave. Starting at Main st. we went right down to the river and many times there were 20 or so sleds and possibly 30 or 40 people enjoying the fun. Occasionally we lengthened the coast by starting at the corner of Highland ave. and Prospect st., down Prospect, across Main, and down Mystic ave. Johnny Ordway who lived at the corner of Main and Prospect used to watch for traffic on Main st. which very rarely appeared after dark.

From what my father has told me the great coast when he was young was to start at the Greely house at the top of Myrtle terr., down their driveway to what is now the parkway, down Mount Vernon st., across the railroad tracks and stop in front of the Congregational Church.

A track was made with a double runner during the day and well watered down so that it was solid ice in the evening, and a big sled with six or eight people would really travel. Accidents were apparently very rare, and as traffic did not exist, the worst that could happen was a sprained ankle if a foot slipped off the running board and caught on a chunk of ice.

Flexible Flyer sleds were introduced about 1912 and were a great improvement over the old ones as they could be steered. They came in several sizes up to about 10-feet long and everyone suddenly had to own one. The old time sleds disappeared completely, and 'sled' and Flexible Flyer were synonymous.

with punchy reading and pages of fun. Plus detailed listings for local, network, cable and pay-TV. On sale now.

A group of parents in the metropolitan area have recently initiated The Springboard Inc. to assist young adults with learning disabilities, ages, 18-28.

Since there are few services available for people with this particular disability, several parents came together and incorporated The Springboard to provide transitional residential, educational, vocational, and cultural programs for these young citizens, who are working and living in the area.

The Springboard is a non-profit, tax exempt organization. Donations have already been made to establish scholarships and enhance the planned program.

There is a fee schedule. More information as well as an application may be obtained by writing to: The Springboard Inc., Box 1342, West Concord, 01742.

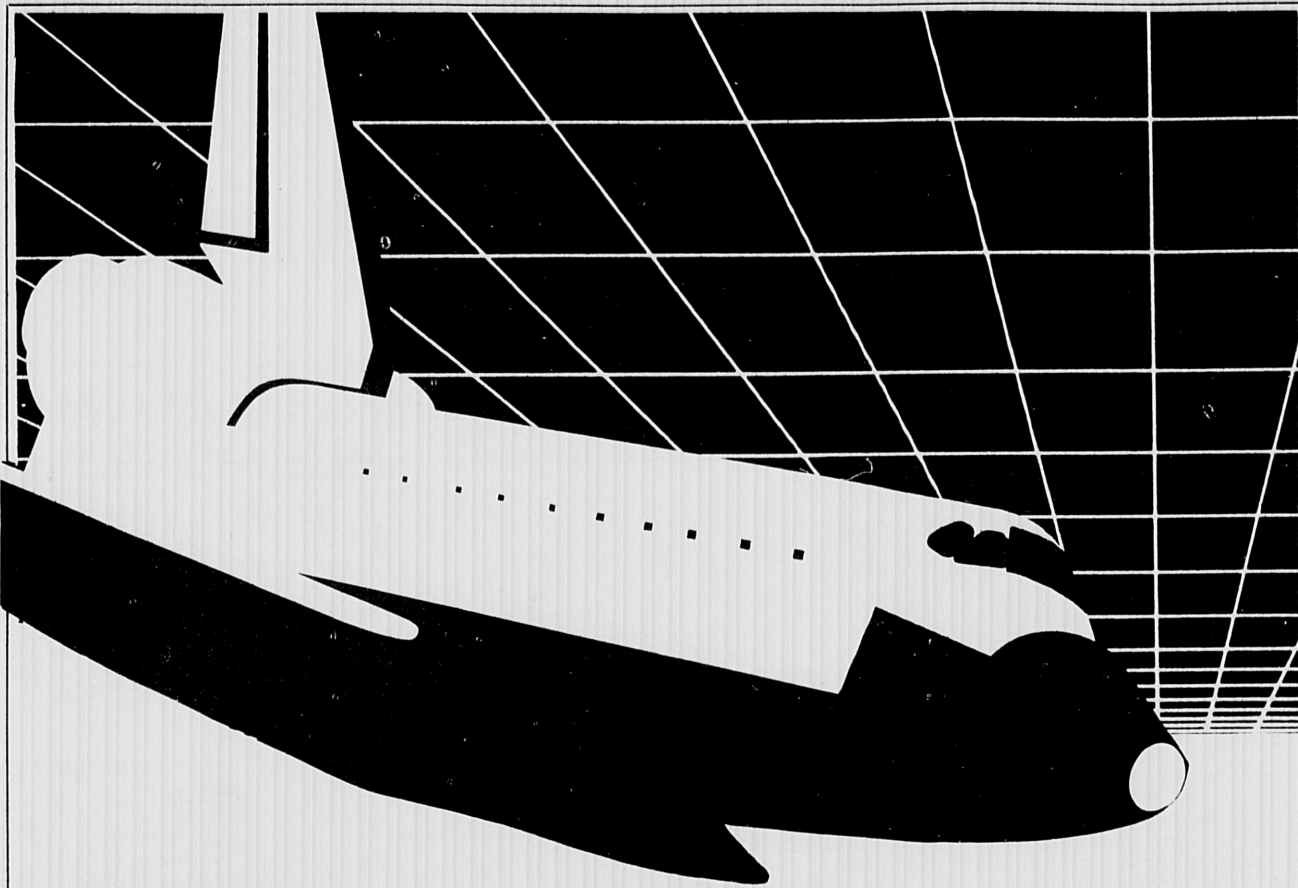

There are 20 young adults in the group which meets four times a month for social and recreational activities, as well as training for independent living and disability specialists.

The geographic range of the corporation goes around the entire perimeter of Boston, and includes members from over 12 communities. The program is managed by the parents through a board of directors and is funded by monthly fees and donations, so that professional group leaders may be engaged.

Adults may learn to cope with the difficulties, but many become isolated and lonely. Most do not receive the assistance needed to lead independent, constructive lives after leaving formal school programs. Since there are few options available for learning disabled adults in the public sector, parents in conjunction with the young adults originated the idea for The Springboard to create their own alternatives, and the program is already a success.

The social component of The Springboard program meets in the Brookline Jewish Community Center, where meeting rooms, gym facilities, and other services have been offered to the group.

Winchester Stars

Resident Invents Spacelab Camera

Man Focuses In On Space

By BARBARA TYSZKA

As the first scientific space lab comes back to earth today, it will have on board the results of hundreds of experiments, the culmination of years of research.

Aboard the space shuttle Spacelab I are inventions from all over the world. But if it weren't for an invention of Winchester resident Carl Accardo, the results of these experiments would be adversely affected.

Accardo, founder of Epsilon Laboratories in Burlington and a 20-year resident of the town, along with his partners John Dulchinos and Dr. Henry Miranda, developed a camera unit that detects particles of contamination within the cargo area of the shuttle mission.

Accardo's delicate cameras, using a stereo effect, can tell NASA (National Aeronautics and Space Administration) scientists the size, speed, number and direction of the particles within the area. Without this information, the contamination could profoundly affect the quality and results of experiments conducted aboard the mission.

These contaminants, in the form of dust, gases and vapor, are produced by the space shuttle and can interfere with the space-scanning process if gone undetected. If the lab's debris were not picked up by Accardo's cameras, it could be mistaken for matter that has yet to be studied.

The cameras are part of a larger unit called the Induced Environmental Contamination Monitor (IECM), that works to uncover inhibiting debris generated by the shuttle.

Accardo and his colleagues have taken 16mm commercial cameras and have buried them into a pressurized cell that simulates the earth's conditions. If not for the pressurized cell, the cameras could not function in zero gravity.

Loaded with seven days, worth of film, and able to take one picture every 2 1/2 minutes, the cameras are able to see particles as small as .001 of an inch.

Taking one look at the inside of the Accardo home on Cambridge st., it is apparent that photography has been a part of the family for some time. Cameras dating back as far as the 1920s adorn the entrance hall and dining room.

"My father was a photographer," says the physicist as he pulls out a 30-pound family album. "I guess you could say it runs in the family."

Accardo's interest in space-related experiments was generated by earlier work done on 'sounding rockets' — rockets which were put into space to take atmospheric measurements and were the springboards for the shuttle program.

In 1972, Accardo and his former MIT roommate, Dulchinos, an electrical engineer, combined efforts to form Epsilon Laboratories. The company specializes in photographic science or, more specifically, electro-optics. They have had

Doherty Plays

Martha Doherty, a sophomore back from Winchester, has earned a varsity with the state champion field hockey team at Tufts University.

Tufts compiled an 11-1-1 record and captured its fourth consecutive Mass. Assn. of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (MAIAW) Tournament Championship by defeating Smith College, 3-1, in the finals.

Tufts also scored seven shutout wins and outscored its opposition 39-7 during the season. Over the last four years, Tufts has posted a 41-7-5 record.

In her first season on defense, Doherty had 46 interceptions and 26 steals while keying a unit which allowed just 0.42 goals per game.

A former field hockey, basketball and tennis captain at Winchester High School, she is the daughter of John and Cornelia Doherty of 49 Oxford st. She is a psychology-child study major at Tufts.

Airman Starts Duty

Senior Airman Christopher J. Kelley, son of George A. and Rosemary A. Kelley of 25 Elmwood ave., has arrived for duty at RAF Lakenheath, England.

Kelley, an aircraft maintenance specialist with the 48th Equipment Maintenance Squadron, was previously assigned at Homestead Air Force Base, Fla.

He is a 1981 graduate of Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School, Wakefield.

Athletes Awarded

Three Winchester athletes attending Belmont Hill School were awarded varsity letters for the fall season.

Football varsity letters were awarded to Joseph C. Abate, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Abate; Arthur E. Boland, son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Boland Jr.; and Joseph H. Breen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Breen.

Earning a soccer varsity letter was Peter L. Mahoney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Mahoney.

Lovins Named

Nelson P. Lovins, a Thornberry rd. resident, has been named to the list of Who's Who in American Law. A graduate of Tufts University and the Suffolk University Law School, Lovins is a partner in the law firm of Lovins & Diller in Boston.

He has served as attorney advisor for Winchester Citizens for a Cleaner Environment and was a coach of the Winchester Soccer Club. Lovins is also a member of the Winchester Jewish Community.

Bacci Graduates

Airman Paul A. Bacci, son of Robert A. and Barbara H. Bacci of Washington st., has graduated from the U. S. Air Force munitions maintenance course at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo.

During the course, students were taught to inspect, assemble and dispose of explosive munitions. They also earned credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Bacci is scheduled to serve with the 50th Ammunition Supply Squadron in Wengert, West Germany.

He is a 1981 graduate of Winchester High School.

Guarnotta Kicks

Brian Guarnotta of Myopia rd., a sophomore at Colby College, Waterville, Maine, has earned a varsity letter with the men's soccer team.

A starting forward, Guarnotta played a key role for the White Mule offense as Colby recorded an 8-5-2 mark and qualified for the first NESCAC (New England Small College Athletic Conference) soccer tournament. Guarnotta was the second leading scorer on the team, tallying five goals and seven assists.

An economics classics major, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Guarnotta and a graduate of Winchester High School.

Tarricone Wins

Louis G. Tarricone of 287 Washington st. was part of a four-man team of MIT students who won a $100 merit award in the Student Engineering Design Competition sponsored by the James F. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundation.

Tarricone and his three fellow students designed an "automated test fixture fabrication system using a three-axis Cartesian robot."

Goodwin Appointed

Edward E. Goodwin, president of the Winchester Co-operative Bank, has been appointed to the 1984 Electronic Funds Transfer Committee of the Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League.

The Massachusetts Co-operative Bank League is a trade association representing the 103 co-operative banks in Massachusetts in legislative, planning and marketing matters.

STILL A STAR — Christine Driscoll was an All-Scholastic Player when she kicked with the Winchester High girls soccer team in 1978 and 1979, and she's still performing exceptionally.

APPOINTED — Anthony P. Nosal of Swanton st. has been appointed manager for nuclear insurance at Arkwright-Boston Manufacturers Mutual Insurance Co. Before joining Arkwright-Boston, he was assistant product line manager for Lexington Insurance Co.

FINISHER — Dr. Albert Muggia of Dartmouth st. crosses the finish line of the 4.7 mile Colonnade Doctors' Run course to raise money for the American Heart Assn. Other Winchester physicians participating included David Cooper, Thomas Herlihy Jr., John Lane and Frank Virnelli.

Pet Retain Title?

Fernway resident Elsie O'Brien and her pet will be trying to retain their title on Dec. 17 during the Eastern Dog Club's all-breeds, bench-event dog show at the Hynes Auditorium in Boston.

O'Brien and her dog placed first last year in the Veterans Class of obedience.

Pasillo Plays

Mark J. Pasillo, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Pasillo of Parker rd., played starting guard on the Lake Forest, Ill., varsity football team. Lake Forest won the Mid-West Conference championship during a game played at Mount Vernon, Iowa.

Mark is 6-feet-2-inches and weighs 235 pounds and plays offensive guard. He is a senior at Lake Forest College and is a graduate of Buckingham, Browne and Nichols School and Worcester Academy.

Although it seems foolish, John Crowe, the owner and operator of Mystic Bedding in Arlington makes his living by displaying the bedding of his competition.
On display in Crowe's showroom at 1341 Mass. Ave., is a Sealy posturepedic mattress which he has slit open. Crowe has good reason for "exposing" the competition.

Next to the Sealy mattress is a Mystic Bedding mattress which Crowe explains is superior to its neighbor. "The Sealy has a coir (coconut fiber) padding while the Mystic Bedding Back Guard has two pads of jute pressed together with nylon," Crowe points out. The Super Back Guard also has Border boosters at the edges to prevent sagging.
Crowe's top line mattress inner spring unit is also locked to the outer sides to prevent the shape from shifting and to keep the mattress lump free.
Perhaps even more appealing than these features is the Super Back Guard's price. While the Sealy mattress sells for $198.95 and a matching box spring for an additional $198.95, Mystic Bedding sells its Super Back Guard mattress and matching box spring for $179 for the set, a savings of almost $220.
"We can undersell companies like Sealy because we manufacture our own mattresses and box springs at our Medford factory," explains Crowe.

"Our box springs are also cheaper and better than the competition," says Crowe. "The coils are locked in and spot-welded to prevent squeaking."
"We also make custom bedding for old or odd-sized beds," explains Crowe. "We can make a mattress and box spring to fit virtually any size or shape bed."
Another new feature at Mystic Bedding is its line of Dresher brass beds and headboards. "They have a special coating and never need cleaning and will never tarnish," explains Crowe. "We have a large supply on hand and have access to 25 styles from our catalog with a quick phone call."
For inexpensive top quality bedding and brass beds or for custom-made bedding of any size or shape, visit Mystic Bedding from 10 to 6, Monday through Saturday, 10 to 8 Thursday and Friday.

Gift Of Health

CLOSING THE GAP — Berta Swanson, chairman of community gifts for Winchester Hospital's "Gift of Health" campaign, holds up the $1,000 check she received from the Rotary Club of Wilmington. Paul Butt, president of the Rotary Club, made the presentation, the second payment on a $3,000 pledge.

several major assignments before the space mission including devising specialized equipment for bank surveillance cameras.

Epsilon Laboratories won the privilege of designing the first demonstration camera to meet the requirements of NASA's first shuttle flight. Since then, their cameras have flown aboard three other shuttle missions.

Like the shuttle, Accardo and his staff have had their share of ups and downs. The cameras, which were two years in the making, have been put through hundreds of tests. "Everything has to be considered," said the inventor, "even the paint on the outside of the instrument. We didn't want it to be a source of contamination itself."

When the cameras were finally put into space it was "like waiting to have a baby, all you could do was wait and hope that everything would work out," said Accardo's partner Dulchinos.

The more sophisticated the space program becomes, the more intricate and complicated the inventions have to be to study the unknown. As a result of the data that has been acquired by

Accardo's cameras and the debris detection unit as a whole, the physicist says, "there is an emerging concern about the study of contaminants and their predictability for future missions."

Because of Accardo's work and that of other scientists throughout the world, Spacelab I and future shuttle flights will be able to tell us more and more about the world in which we do not live.

When Spacelab I touches down today, test results from the experiments will be rushed to NASA scientists for analysis.

Included in this data will be the film from Accardo's cameras which, when developed, will help to bring the study of space more into focus.

Theresa Hillmer Weds Stephen Waite

Theresa Marie Hillmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hillmer of Penfield, N.Y., became the bride of Lt. Stephen Gerard Waite, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Waite Jr. of Appalachian rd.

A double-ring ceremony at a nuptial mass was performed by the Rev. Mark S. Sheehan at St. Joseph's Memorial Chapel at the College of the Holy Cross, a restored, historical building in Worcester.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white taffeta. Its fitted bodice had a sweetheart neckline edged in pleated lace and three-quarter length puffed sleeves also edged in lace. Her long full skirt fell into a long train. She wore a brimmed hat with a short veil attached at the back. Her bridal bouquet was of white and pale pink rosebuds with stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mary Kay Hillmer of California, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Other bridesmaids were Leanne Reed of Rochester, N.Y., Alyson Burks, Debbie DiPirro, Margie Duff, and Peggy O'Neill all of Boston. They wore floor-length gowns of huckleberry taffeta.

Michael Phillips of Winchester was the best man. Serving as ushers were Albert Cordice of California and formerly of Winchester; Neil Hillmer, the bride's brother, of Penfield, N.Y.; and the bridegroom's brothers James and Joseph Waite of Winchester and Thomas Waite of New Jersey, of the Holy Cross and was employed as assistant director of the Boston Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Waite

The bridegroom graduated from Winchester High School and the College of the Holy Cross. He is serving as a pilot in the United States Navy in Sicily where the couple are living temporarily.

Grandparents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John R. Salmon of Arlington and Mr. Walter Hillmer of New Jersey, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick I. McQuillan of Needham and John J. Waite of Dorchester.

Carol A. Johnson Is The Bride Of Ray C. Hodgdon

Carol Ann Johnson of Acton and Ray Carl Hodgdon of Hollis, N.H., were married in a 10 a.m. ceremony at the Sacred Heart Church in Lexington on Sept. 17.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vann Johnson Jr. of High st., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irven Hodgdon of Belmont.

The Rev. Walter Cuenin and the Rev. Philip Kylander officiated at the double-ring ceremony, in which the bride was given away by her father.

The bride, who carried a bouquet of white roses, wore a pure-white dress with a beaded and lace applique bodice, scalloped neckline, long lace sleeves, chiffon skirt, chapel-length train, and fingertip veil.

Susan Murphy of Severna Park, Md., served as her sister's matron of honor. The bridesmaid was the bride's sister, Martha Johnson of Winchester.

They carried bouquets of white and soft pink roses. Their long, chiffon gowns were sea-mist green with a soft-scoop neckline.

Jerry Poate of Londonderry, N.H., was the best man. Ushers were David Downes of Somerville and two of the bridegroom's nephews, David and Peter Erickson of Belmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hodgdon

After a reception at the Stouffer's Bedford Glen Hotel in Bedford, the couple left on a wedding trip to St. Lucia, West Indies.

The bride is a graduate of Boston College, and is the manager of advertising and sales promotions at Prime Computer.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Curry College and is a program control administrator for Sanders Associates.

The couple have settled in Hollis, N.H.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 caliber rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and a 1883-18 full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some punning too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. Muzzleloading carbines regardless of experience. Our team members live all over - from Maine to Rhode Island to New York - but are from all over eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjesson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

EMERGENCY WATER TURN-OFF

To prevent damage to household furnishings, ceilings, walls and floors and carpeting, all members of your family should know where to turn off the water in case of an emergency, such as a pipe leak.

Each house has a main line valve, the most important one in the house. Usually it's near the water meter. Make sure everyone knows exactly where it is and how to turn it off.

Many individual plumbing fixtures such as sinks and toilets, have their own shut-off valve. Look under the kitchen sink, for example, to see if there is one there. Whenever possible, shut off the valve where the problem exists instead of the main valve. This means that you can continue to use water in the rest of the house while the problem is being resolved.

When valves are not used regularly, they may tend to stick. To assure easy turning in an emergency, put a few drops of thin oil around the handle once or twice a year, then turn it several times to work in the oil. Keep the telephone number of a qualified plumbing contractor handy, and call him as soon as you have shut off the water.

Obituaries

Attorney Joseph W. Kane Died At Age 38

Attorney Joseph W. Kane, 38, of Wyman ct. died unexpectedly Dec. 2 in Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Kane was a member of the Board of Overseers at Suffolk University Law School and a counsel to several state and city agencies, including the state Dept. of Labor and Industries and the Division of Insurance, the Boston Housing Authority and state Sen. Daniel J. Foley (D-Worcester).

A resident of Winchester for 30 years, Mr. Kane was a 1963 graduate of Winchester High School, from which he graduated with honors.

He attended Boston College where he was a representative to the student senate. He graduated magna cum laude from BC in 1967, then went on to Suffolk Law School, graduating in 1970.

He was a member of the Massachusetts, Boston and Lawrence Bar Assns., the Boston Labor Guild and the labor law committee of the Boston Bar Assn.

He was also a member of the Suffolk Alumni Assn. and an alumni council representative. He formerly served as president of Suffolk Law School's board of directors and of the university's alumni council.

He is survived by a daughter, Courtney H. Kane of Methuen; his parents, Joseph F. and Mary (Carolan) Kane of Winchester; two brothers, Stephen C. Kane of Salem, N.H., and Capt. William A. Kane, USMC, of Santiago, Calif.; and a sister, Patricia M. Morgan of Somerville.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Dec. 6, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Artist And Poetess Carolyn D. Gilpatric Dies At 98

Playwright, artist and poetess Carolyn D. Gilpatric, 98, of Swanton st. died Dec. 4.

Mrs. Gilpatric studied painting at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts and sang as a soprano soloist in many local churches, but her first love was writing.

She wrote many one-act plays, situation comedies for amateur theater groups, which were published in the '30s and '40s by the Walter H. Baker Co. of Boston. Her first play, "Fatty Makes Things Hum" is still in circulation, and her play "Sardines" was produced by the Winton Club for its annual cabaret.

She also wrote light verse that showed her keen sense of humor and her eye for the ironies of life. On housekeeping, she wrote, "When you've got your place/ All spic and span/ In the hope that some dame/ Or maybe a man/ Will come/ Who comes?/ Nobody! / But when you're all in/ And the place is a mess/ Who comes to inspect it? / I'll give you one guess/ Everybody!"

The Eastport, Maine, native was a member of the First Congregational Church, the Women's Professional Club of Boston and a former member of the Winchester Garden Club.

The widow of Dr. William Henry Gilpatric Sr., a local dentist, she is survived by four grandchildren, William Henry Gilpatric III of Framingham, Peter Dwight Gilpatric of Medfield, Jill Anne Gilpatric of Newtonville and Jean Hathaway Gilpatric of Newtonville; and one great-grandchild, William Henry Gilpatric IV.

A memorial service was held Dec. 7. Burial was in Willowood Cemetery.

Norris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Golfer Dorothy O. Farnsworth Dies

Former Winchester resident Dorothy (Ordway) Farnsworth, an outstanding golfer in Massachusetts for many years, died of cancer Dec. 1 in Naples, Fla., Community Hospital. She was 79.

Mrs. Farnsworth played most of her golf at the Winchester Country Club, where she also participated in curling.

Besides playing golf, she worked to promote the sport as a board member and as president of the US Senior Women's Golf Assn. and as trustee and president of the Women's Golf Assn. of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Farnsworth was also active in many local charitable activities, including volunteer work at Winchester Hospital and Massachusetts General Hospital. She was also past president of the Winton Club, one of Winchester Hospital's volunteer organizations.

Mrs. Farnsworth was the daughter of the late Dr. Clarence E. and Anna (Ripley) Ordway. Dr. Ordway was chief of staff at the Winchester Hospital for many years, retiring in 1936 due to ill health. He also had an extensive medical practice in town.

The Farnsworths resided in Winchester most of their lives, but since 1969 divided their time between Kennebunk Beach, Maine, and Naples, Fla.

Mrs. Farnsworth was a graduate of the Walnut Hill School and received a bachelor's degree from Smith College in 1925.

She is survived by her husband, Vincent Farnsworth Jr.; a son, Peter V. Farnsworth of Naples, Fla.; a daughter, Virginia F. Stedfast of Framingham; a sister, Marjorie Martin of Naples, Fla.; and 13 grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Dec. 3 in Naples United Church of Christ. Burial will be private in Winchester.

Word Processing

Middlesex Community College is offering a word processing training course that takes only two weeks to complete. The 15-hour program accepts three students with a minimum typing ability of 45 words per minute for each session. Sessions begin every other week: classes meet days or evenings at the Burlington Campus, Terrace Hall ave. To register call the Bedford campus, ext. 295.

A fiscal year 1984 tax rate of $22.24 is an average of $22.24 and on average of $22.24 is hereby approved for the Town of

BOARD OF ASSESSORS
WINCHESTER, MASS.

creased by 4 percent, will see virtually no increase in the tax bill.

The lower-priced homes in town, for which assessments are being increased by 7 percent, will get about a 3 percent increase in the tax bill.

The most expensive homes in town, which will be hit with a 10 percent assessment increase, will get a tax bill about 4 percent higher this year.

The differences in assessment increases are caused by the system used by the assessors to update the 1981 revaluation.

While house prices across the town increased by about 7 percent since the revaluation, house prices in certain areas went up faster than in others.

In a classic example of supply and demand, prices rose fastest for Winchester's inexpensive houses, which are hard to find in town, and its expensive houses, which are often unique in the area.

The assessors divided the town's residences into five groups, then looked at the average increase in prices among houses sold from each group during the last two years. Assessments on all the houses in each group were then multiplied by that average.

Businesses in town, as well as condominiums, were revalued by a different system, with each business and condominium being appraised individually.

The business tax rate is also different than the residential, with commercial and industrial property owners paying a rate of $26.56. That rate also dropped from last year's, which was $27.60.

The delay in sending out the tax bills had two causes.

Finnegan Associates, the Acton firm hired to process the update figures, didn't get the new values to the assessors until mid-September, only a few weeks before the tax bills were supposed to go out.

The assessors sent the assessment figures off to the state immediately after getting them from Finnegan, but the state Dept. of Revenue didn't get around to reviewing those figures until the end of October.

When the state finally gave its preliminary approval in the last week of October, the assessors made the values public and set up a hearing with the selectmen to set the tax rate.

The rate was set three weeks ago, then the town had to wait for final state approval.

The months of delays cost the town plenty. The town had to borrow money to pay bills until tax revenues came in, and lost money it usually gains by investing those tax revenues.

Comptroller Al Faggiano has estimated that the interest charges and revenue losses total $2,300 a day since Nov. 1, when the tax bills are usually due, meaning the delays will cost somewhere around $180,000.

Christmas In The Center

Local Shopping Avoids Crowds, Fills Gift Bag

By DAVE LEECO

Armed with a list of friends and relatives, the contents of a week's paycheck and absolutely no idea what to buy, I stumbled out onto the street last week to buy Christmas gifts.

The list, the pocketful of cash and the lack of ideas aren't unusual at this time of year — the entire country has set off on the annual binge of spending. What was unusual was the street. This year, I was trying to do all my Christmas shopping in Winchester.

I got two reactions upon telling people I was going to do all my Christmas shopping in Winchester Center during this round of the annual holiday madness: "You'll never find anything," or "You'll spend a fortune."

Let them go on thinking that about Winchester, while they fight the throngs at the Burlington Mall or collect parking tickets while browsing in Harvard Square or Downtown Crossing.

As for me, a Saturday afternoon of shopping in Winchester Center left me unharmed, still financially solvent, and with an armful of packages to slip under the tree.

The merchants, of course, will tell you shopping in Winchester Center is only one step down from going to the Grand Bazaar in Istanbul.

"I've done my shopping here in Winchester," said Zeta Ware at Temptations. "It's very convenient. I find everything I need, and it sure saves time."

Hugo LaFauci at Winchester TV and Video chimed in. "You can save yourself a lot of aggravation by coming here — the Center's got the same things people go all over the countryside for."

Even if you couldn't get anything but

Contract Time

Every Major Town Union To Head For Bargaining Table

BY LIZ WILLEN

As the new year approaches, town officials and town employees are beginning to think about a New Year's Resolution that may be more difficult to keep than quitting smoking or going on a diet.

That resolution will be to settle contracts for teachers, clerical workers, DPW employees, firefighters and policemen.

But it may be a pretty rough winter for negotiations.

For the first time in years, town officials will be negotiating contracts with virtually every employee union in town, doubling the workload. And those negotiations will be colored by the long and loud debates at this year's Spring and Fall Town Meetings, when Town Meeting members rejected, then reluctantly accepted, police, school custodian and principals' contracts.

Town employee union heads say they feel pressure from the Town Meeting warning that employees should not expect raises over 5 percent. Realizing the importance of getting support in Town Meeting, the teachers' union has gone so far as to stock its bargaining team with Town Meeting members.

And town officials who will be negotiating have their own pressures to think about. They will be the ones under fire from Town Meeting members if the settlements seem too high. And, they are all too aware of the budget crisis the town faces in the near future.

But although they're not looking forward to it, town officials and employees are getting ready for this year's round of bargaining. Selectmen and School Committee members have been appointed to the various negotiating teams and many union members have begun to think about how they will approach this year's negotiations.

Union leaders have a lot to think about this year, and not all of it is pleasant. The clear message they heard from Fall Town Meeting members about not giving out any more 7 percent salary increases will undoubtedly be ringing in their ears even louder than "Auld Lang Syne" as they begin to work out bargaining strategies.

So will the somber tone of the town's recently completed financial forecast showing that Winchester will be $1 million in the red by 1987 unless spending is cut or revenues are increased.

In that forecast, Town Manager Thomas Groux estimated only 5 percent raises for employees. And selectmen have stated that they will try to hold employee raises down.

With all this in mind, plus their own hopes, goals and desires for new contracts, negotiators are feeling a little bit

Bad Timing

Borggaard's Plea Comes Too Late For New Police Station

By DAVE LEECO

Lack of an alternative site and a rush to rehabilitate the run-down police and fire station overrode an orator's quest for "a police station Winchester can be proud of."

After hearing a unanimous message — "Get on with fixing up the station" — from two town committees and two chiefs, selectmen refused to help 34-year-old Town Meeting member Clarence Borggaard stop the plans.

"I have a great deal of respect for Clarence, and what he's accomplished," said Paul Amico, the head of the committee that recommended keeping the present station. "But this facility is outdated, overused, and a disgrace to the community. To defer would only cause our impetus to wane."

Borggaard claims the planned additions to the rear of the building will make the place look like a "rabbit warren" and eat up parking spaces vital in the congested downtown. Instead, Borggaard proposes to renovate the Fire Station without building additions, then move the Police Dept. to a new building.

"I want to see something we can be proud of for the next 100 years," said Borggaard. "Let's do it right."

Borggaard's night before the selectmen drew several who wanted to move both departments out of the building, so it could be renovated as a shopping area.

Such as shopping area, they argued, would bring in enough taxes to pay for a new police and fire station, and help bring a renaissance of Winchester Center.

"The economic benefits could be enormous," said former Economic Development Committee member Dan LaGatta. "By leaving the police and fire station where it is, it pre-empt's that opportunity."

That last argument might have swayed some selectmen, such as Alan Macdonald. But Borggaard's proposal, which would have left the Fire Dept. in the old station, shut off the possibility of shopping in a former cell.

"I too, was disappointed with the Town Meeting vote," said Macdonald. "But it's going to take more than aesthetics to reverse what we've done."

If nothing else, the two-hour debate showed there are still strong feelings, on both sides, about Town Meeting's spring decision to keep the Police and Fire Depts. where they are and renovate and add to the current headquarters. That decision came in the form of a vote to spend $175,000 on the engineering plans for the rehab work.

Town Meeting will get one more crack at the station debate this spring, when the $1.3 million appropriation for the station will come up. And Borggaard plans to fight then.

Winchester High School Rocks For Music Fest

By DEMETRA TSECKARES

Winchester music fans didn't have to travel to reach a rocking concert this past weekend. Friday night, junior and senior high school students and some adventurous parents flocked the high school auditorium to be part of Winchester's version of the UST festival, the Winchester High School Music Fest.

The audience was treated to a night of rock and roll mingled with some classical and punk music. The small acts which came between each band act were mellow, but equal in talent to the bands. Ron Purdy entertained with some songs from various musicals including "South Pacific." And Kathy Shao arrived on the scene soon after, displaying her incredible talent at the piano. All of the small acts put on vivid shows despite the lack of the rock and roll must — the drum.

But the band acts each had powerful drummers. Some incredible drum solos graced the ears of appreciative fans on Friday night thanks to Mike Blasi of "The Solution," and Kevin Indigaro of "Trial and Error."

And "Amageddon," only a three-man band, put on a powerful show making the audience forget the lack of a keyboardist. Vocalist Kristen Kelly and Pilar Pittas, of the bands "Trial and Error" and "Dreams of Wine" respectively, lit up the stage and left the audience yelling for more.

The final act, "Visual Image," practically ripped up the stage with their intense rock and roll. David Shao used his guitar to every advantage reeling off some incredible solos that left the audience gasping.

This wide variety of talent displayed on Friday night surprised many of the performers' peers. Senior Pat Cresse said, "I was surprised at the talent everyone had. I didn't know kids my age had that ability." But Gerry Skinder, the coordinator of the event didn't seem to be surprised. "Overall, I think the performers did a great job and the stage crew was wonderful."

The bands, in turn, were surprised by the rowdiness and often the rudeness of the audience. Pilar Pittas said, "The energy flowing between the performers and the audience was terrific." Scott

CZECH CHRISTMAS — Singing "Silent Night" by candlelight in her native Czech, 6½-year-old Paula Turanec of Roslindale helps close an afternoon exchange of Christmas customs between Czech refugees and Winchester residents at the Crawford Methodist Church Sunday. The church adopted Turanec's family, and many residents pitched in to provide bags of food to the refugees. At the Christmas party, traditional foods, songs and plays were part of the afternoon. Traditional Czech customs for Christmas include fasting all day, eating fish in the evening, opening all presents on Christmas eve, and cutting an apple open. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

Adjustable Rate Mortgage

Lower closing costs
Lower monthly payments

12.14%

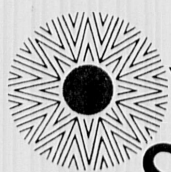

Annual Percentage Rate

If buying a home seems out-of-reach, or if you've been waiting for interest rates to drop, then look into an Adjustable Rate Mortgage at Winchester Savings Bank. You'll find the interest rate is well below our fixed rate mortgage. This means you can save on monthly mortgage payments. On an average, loan customers with our Adjustable Rate Mortgage save about $100 a month. But, that's not all.

You'll save when you close on your home too. That's because closing costs on our Adjustable Rate Mortgage are less than our fixed rate mortgage. Often as much as $1,000 less.

To find out how much an Adjustable Rate Mortgage can save you, call our Mortgage Department at 729-2130, or visit the Winchester Savings Bank offices nearest you today. The interest rate on our Adjustable Rate Mortgage is subject to change over the term of the mortgage.

Town's New Numbers

Town Hall And School Dept. Numbers Change

A new phone system in town offices might cause residents a little confusion for the next few weeks when they try to call the town clerk or the school superintendent, but eventually the system will make calling town offices simpler and save the town money.

Putting in the new system will also protect the town from the expected rise in telephone charges when AT&T is broken up Jan. 1. When it signed up for the new system, the town got a contract that will keep charges from rising for the next three years.

With the new system, according to Rick White, assistant to the town manager, a department can transfer calls, contact other departments over an intercom or call another department for information while a resident with a question waits on hold.

The system will also save the town the message unit charges for calls between departments. White said the savings from the Town Hall system will pay for the $4,500 installation cost in one year, and continue to save money after that.

Now, each office has a separate telephone line, meaning town offices can't transfer calls to another department, and calls from one department to another cost the town message units.

Worker's Comp. Public Hearing Will Be At The State House On Jan. 19

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh announces that a public hearing on the Workmans Compensation system in Massachusetts will be held on Jan. 19 at the State House in Gardner Auditorium from 1-7 p.m.

"This hearing will conclude the statewide hearings that have been ongoing for the past month," said Saltmarsh, "and will provide information for the first major comprehensive study of the employer-financed system in years."

A Gubernatorial Task Force has the responsibility to compile an overall review of the problems in the workmans compensation system and recommend improvements to the Governor by the spring of 1984. "I expect legislative action on the Governor's proposed changes during the 1984 session," said Saltmarsh.

The cost of workmans compensation has escalated from an annual premium cost of $211,000,000 in 1973, to approximately $600,000,000 today. "At that rate," commented Saltmarsh, "the cost will exceed one billion dollars a year in the not too distant future."

The issue must be addressed now to rectify the inequities in a system which was originally intended to promptly assist those with work-related injuries but has become so bogged down and complex that it has lost its effectiveness in helping those who are entitled to benefits," concluded Saltmarsh.

Police Log

Monday, Dec. 12

• A 16-year-old Winchester girl driving a Toyota sedan west on Cross st. struck a tree after she apparently fell asleep at the wheel shortly after 3 a.m. According to police reports, the girl was transported to Winchester Hospital, where she was treated and released. She was issued a citation for operating during restricted hours.

• A Church st. resident reported that the vent window on the passenger side of her Volkswagen Rabbit was smashed sometime during the night.

• A Wagonwheel rd. resident reported that an alarm wire and a vacuum cleaner were stolen from his home. Police did not determine if the house was broken into.

• A power outage in several parts of town, including the Main st. area, left residents without power for slightly over an hour on Monday morning. McCall Junior High School and the Lincoln School closed for the day. Power was restored at 10:45 a.m. A spokesman for Boston Edison said that a blown joint in a manhole on Main st. caused the outage which left some buildings without power for two hours.

• A Madison ave. west resident said her 1983 Honda was broken into and an intruder attempted to steal her radio.

According to police reports, the intruder was scared away by the owner, and police could not find anyone when they searched the area.

Sunday, Dec. 11

• A Middlesex st. resident reported that a picket was broken on her fence and placed under a tire on her car with a nail sticking through it.

• An Amherst man reported that his 1982 Alfa Romeo had its antenna bent and its right rear tire punctured as it was parked on Aberjona dr. between 1:30 a.m. and 1:20 p.m.

Saturday, Dec. 10

• A Middlesex st. couple reported that their home was broken into when a storm window was pried open and a kitchen window pulled up. Two jewelry boxes and a camera were stolen.

According to a report filed by Officer Jonathan Dean, the couple had left their home for 24 hours, and returned to find their bedroom ransacked and several valuables missing. Police believe the intruder exited through sliding glass doors at the rear of the home. Neighbors in the area did not report seeing or hearing anything unusual.

• A Stevens st. man and a Quincy man came to blows over a minor traffic incident on Main st. According to a report filed by Officer Peter Hersee, the Quincy man was driving north on Main st. and claimed that the Stevens st. man, who was driving a Volkswagen, cut him off. A fight ensued, and when police arrived at the scene, the Quincy man had a bloody nose and the Stevens st. man had lacerations on his cheek and forehead. Both refused hospital treatment and no arrests were made.

• A Myrtle terr. woman reported that her 1979 Oldsmobile was rammed from behind on South Border rd. by a car that left the scene immediately after the accident. MDC police are investigating the matter further.

• A Main st. woman reported a camera and a home computer worth $550 were stolen from her home on or about Dec. 1.

• A Grassmere ave. resident reported that an unidentified Grinch stole a wreath off her front door.

Friday, Dec. 9

• A string of Christmas lights was broken on a pine tree on the Main st. Common. Shattered glass was found all over the sidewalk, but the culprit was not.

• A Swanton st. resident reported that her car was illegally towed from the Parkview condominiums.

• A Church st. resident reported that the window of her 1974 gray Saab was broken into during the night.

• A 1977 tractor trailer was torched as it was parked off of Cross st. Police do not know who was responsible.

Thursday, Dec. 8

• A Glenwood ave. resident reported that her RMC dirt bike was stolen from her yard.

• A Main st. resident complained that four youths were trespassing through his garage. The man told police he would seek a trespassing complaint.

Dr. Pastan To Speak On Dec. 15

ARTHRTIS TALK — Malden Hospital arthritis specialist Dr. Robert Pastan (c) will be speaking tonight at 7.

Dr. Robert Pastan, director of rheumatology at the Malden Hospital, will be the featured speaker at a meeting of the members of the North Metropolitan Homemaker Service on Thursday, Dec. 15, at the First Congregational Church on Church st.

This meeting is open to the public.

Beginning at 7 p.m., Dr. Pastan will present an overview on the basic facts of arthritis and discuss drug and other forms of treatment for arthritis. A member of the Malden Hospital Speakers' Bureau, Dr. Pastan will illustrate his talk with slides.

Dr. Pastan has published several articles in medical journals about his clinical research on rheumatoid arthritis and says, "It's very important for people to realize that there is more than one type of arthritis and that while it can occur even in infants, arthritis most often comes on during the prime-of-life years."

Following his talk, Dr. Pastan will conduct a question and answer period.

Scouts Outing At Ponderosa Pines Is A Huge Success

A crisp December day and a hayride at Ponderosa Pines in Essex combined to make Dec. 10 a memorable experience for over 40 Cub Scouts of Pack 503.

Cleverness and creativity was in abundant supply at Cub Scout Pack 503's monthly meeting in November. It was Genius Kit Night and each Cub was faced with the problem of creating a "work of art" out of a collection of some 40 to 50 assorted and totally unrelated objects ranging from paper clips to typewriter parts.

All present at the meeting came away fully convinced that a number of geniuses - or artists - or both had indeed been at work on their projects. The various pieces of "junk" had been assembled and converted into space ships, playgrounds, trucks, robots, obstacle courses and snow shovels.

The following young geniuses were awarded winners in the competition: Webelos, Alan Brown, Space Vehicle; Den 3, Matt Krajewski, Sailboat; Den 4, John Hamilton, Construction Site; Den 5, Phillip Kromer, Computer; Den 6, Peter French, Room; and Den 7, John Rauseo, N.Y. Express Train. Genius Kit Grand Award Winner was Michael Port. Fire Chief Robert McElhinney and Police Sergeant Pierce kindly gave their time to judge the competition.

During the judging, a paper airplane contest was held and Frank Swenson won the "hang time" at 4 minutes and 51 seconds. Martin Ward and Danny Hartigan tied for the distance prize.

Cubmaster Evans announced that the postponed Monadnock climb would be rescheduled for the spring. Cubs were asked to bring Christmas gifts to the December pack meeting for the residents of Fernald School.

It was further announced that the 48 Cub Scouts of 503 had sold 372 buckets of popcorn and had raised enough money through their hard work to erase the pack's budget deficit for the year.

Scouting badges and pins were awarded as follows: Adam Brandt, one-year pin; Frank Santosuosso, David Burke, and John Hamilton, Bobcat Badges.

FLOWER — Nancy Boudreau, the youngest Winchester resident performing in the upcoming "The Nutcracker," poses as "Flower" in the well-known "Waltz of the Flower."

Sugarplum Fairies And Snowflakes

Nutcracker To Be Danced

With a cast of over 40 men and women, several of whom are Winchester residents, the Winchester Ballet Theatre (WBT) will present their fourth annual Christmas production of "The Nutcracker" at the Winchester High School auditorium on Dec. 17 and 18.

Most cast members are now veterans of last performances, such as Carol Rigsby of Wainwright rd., a senior at WHS, and Nancy Boudreau, at age 11, the youngest dancer in this company comprised mainly of adults and teens. Both girls are making their fourth "Nutcracker" appearance this year, together as snowflakes and flowers, and as diverse confections in the Land of Sweets.

New Winchester dancers include Dawn D'Onofrio, Emily Rubenstein, Andrea Kazanjian, Jennifer Copabianco and Roberta Corey. For some, two family members will be performing, such as brother and sister Sean and Kathy Lake of Copley st., and father and daughter Ronald and Amber Williamson who portray those roles in the 1st Act Party Scene, then oppose each other as Teddy Bear (Williamson) and Mouse in the Battle of the Toys and Giant Mice.

The WBT is pleased to welcome in guest appearances two senior citizen couples from Lexington and a young man from Belmont.

Arthur and Bertha Ballou will be familiar to Winchester residents as exhibition ballroom dancers who have performed at the Jenks Center. They will dance in elegant style as the 18th century King and Queen who preside over the Land of Sweets.

Col. and Mrs. James Norris are cast as Clara's grandparents. Col. Norris, USAF (retired), has been a long-time resident of Lexington while stationed at Hanscom Field, and is one of the original members of the recreated 10th Regiment of Foot (British) of which WBT Director, Darlene Wigton, and partner, Lincoln Clark, have been members since 1974.

Another 10th Regiment member is Roger Honeywell, age 14, of Belmont. Well-known at New England area fife and drum musters as an outstanding drummer with the Sudbury Fife and Drum Co. and 10th Regiment, Roger will be drumming as the toy soldiers march into battle against the Mouse-King's troops, after playing a boy in the Party Scene.

Lighting and technical aspects for this season's "Nutcracker" have been designed and directed by Walter Begonis, of Reading, who has worked extensively for the Colonial Chorus' productions. Last year the WBT added the special effect of a growing Christmas Tree and looks forward to presenting the same this year.

Performance times are 8 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 17, and 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Dec. 18. During intermission, refreshments will be offered by Yvonne Brown and helpers, the proceeds to benefit the Animal Shelter project. Tickets for the ballet are available at Baskin-Robbins and Topsy Turvy on Main st. in Winchester Center.

TOFFEE — In "The Nutcracker," Jody Power of Cross st. and Carol Rigsby of Wainwright rd., both experienced dancers with the Winchester Ballet Theatre, will portray "Toffee."

Arthur Griffin's
NEW ENGLAND
THE FOUR SEASONS

With Original Essays by 51 Famous Writers

As with Arthur Griffin's previous books NEW ENGLAND and NEW ENGLAND REVISITED, the photographs alone make a handsome volume to browse through. Here he is joined by fifty-one well-known writers — among them Archibald MacLeish, John Kenneth Galbraith, John Updike, and David McCord — who, in brief essays accompanying each full page color photograph, share their most intimate feelings for their own special places.

And Griffin's loving lens captures the yellow fog over Mystic Lake, the pond in the Winchester Golf Course, Morgan horses prancing through the dandelions of a Vermont countryside, as well as 48 other beautiful photos.

New England and New England Revisited are now collector's items. I have a few signed copies left at $50.00 each.

Hospital Unit Named To Honor Reading

Winchester Hospital's new 28 bed patient care unit will be named the Reading Unit according to an announcement by hospital president Jack R. Hunter.

"The town of Reading has been an important part of Winchester Hospital's patient service area from the day we were founded in 1912 and, over the past 71 years, the people of Reading have played a prominent role in the hospital's growth and expansion," said Hunter.

"Members of the Reading community have served on the hospital's board of directors while countless other residents have given many hours of volunteer time," he continued. One of the town's well known citizens, Kenneth C. Latham, served as chairman of the board of directors from 1974 to 1978. Reading physicians have been a vital element of the hospital's medical and dental staff and they, along with many other Reading residents, have also served as members of the corporation.

"In addition to the time and effort expended by so many Reading residents, the hospital has received strong financial support from the Reading community for its annual fund appeal and, at those several times in our history when major capital campaigns were conducted to provide funding for expansion and renovation," Hunter explained.

"Last year, over 1200 Reading residents were patients at Winchester

Hospital. Four members of our board of directors, 39 members of our Corporation, 15 physicians on our medical/dental staff and ninety-seven volunteers are residents

"In view of this strong Reading community involvement in and association with Winchester Hospital, we believe that it is fitting and proper to designate our new 28 bed patient care unit in honor of the town of Reading," Hunter concluded. "We look forward to a continuing association with Reading in the years ahead."

Red Cross To Teach First Aid Jan. 11

An American Red Cross Multimedia First Aid course will be given by Winchester Hospital on Wednesdays, Jan. 11 and 18, in the hospital's education department. There will be film demonstrations, guided practice sessions, and self-teaching workbook.

Multimedia Standard First Aid certificates will be issued to all who successfully complete the course.

Enrollment is limited to 12, and pre-registration is necessary. Those who have questions, or who wish to register may call the hospital's education department. There will be a fee for the course.

Monthly Blood Pressure Clinic Is Dec. 17

The monthly Blood Pressure Clinic of the Winchester Red Cross will be held on Saturday, Dec. 17, at the Chapter House on Church st. Hours are 10 a.m. to noon.

The clinic is open to all residents of Winchester and surrounding towns. No appointment is necessary, and there is no fee.

Nurses next Saturday will be Joan Merrow and Helen Quinn. Red Cross volunteers will be Gertrude McPeake, Lou Maroney, Grace Mahoney, Molly Copley, and Molly Davis.

A (Much Too) Candid Camera

By TERRY MAROTTA

Getting a good picture of a person is no easy thing, as any photographer will tell you. There are 99 unflattering snapshots of any one individual for each good one.

Everyone knows this; no one knows it better than the tabloid newspaper people who use these dog-photos to further sensationalize their Stories of the Stars. A piece on Johnny Carson's divorce, for example, might show him looking haggard and skinny-necked, his white hair apparently growing whiter and wisper by the moment as he contemplates the money he's going to have to fork over. By the same token, a story on some Hollywood love triangle will use photos that are not only unflattering but deceptively spliced together, with the couple emerging from an illicit love nest looking both rumpled and sated, while the third one, the odd-man-out, so to speak, is pictured just next to them, his mouth open wide in shock and horror.

These scandal-sheet producers are merely availing themselves of a bountiful harvest, of course; there's simply no end to the number of terrible pictures you can take of any given person. And when it comes to getting one good shot of two or more people at the same time, the odds against you are nothing short of overwhelming.

I realized this fact afresh each year when I assemble my four-person family for the annual Christmas card portrait. I wait for a fine fall day when the sun is shining brightly and the haircuts are still relatively fresh. I corral my troops together and nag them into decent outfits.

The tripod goes up, the family is artfully seated on the grass, and I go to work: endlessly focusing, at last pressing the time-delay button, and finally sprinting 25 feet to get into the picture myself in time to sit down, look natural and smile when the shutter lifts to wink its snappy electronic eye at us.

The whole procedure takes about 10 minutes, generally. That's 10 minutes of fussing and fidgeting, some punching among the children, and not a few critical or sarcastic exchanges between the parents as well. But at the end of that interval, we've usually managed to squeeze off a couple of dozen shots of what I take to be a normal smiling family.

I trot the film downtown for processing and wait a few days.

Then comes the rude shock. These pictures of people gathered in the grass are things you wouldn't send to anyone. We look by turn like huddled refugees, like half-wits, like surly strangers forced to sit together and submit to a series of mugshots.

Still, we must select one pose for the Christmas card. The process goes something like this:

Frame One: no good. Dad's glasses are crooked.

Frame Two: Mom's bra straps show.

Frame Three: Didn't sprint fast enough in this one. Mom is represented as one leg, and this out of focus.

Frame Four: The kids look like child-abuse victims.

Five: The big one is seen to be pinching her sister's bottom.

Six: General tears.

Seven: faintly strained and uneasy expressions all around. Are we sitting on that anthill?

Frame Eight: A pleasant picture marred only by our similarity to a quartet of propped-up corpses.

Frame Nine: Dazzling fake smiles all around.

Ten: Promising, but the little one has her thumb in her mouth.

Eleven: Less promising. Now it's in her nose.

Twelve: Another shot of the living dead.

... And so on, through 24 memorable frames.

It's a shock to immortalize your family thus, and hold in your hand an impartial witness to their imperfection and their squirming humanity. Up until the time that the camera was invented, I guess we didn't have too much opportunity to see ourselves as others see us. Today, however, it's another story. This photographic Christmas greeting will present us, warts and all as they say, to the world.

The holiday approaches. A choice is required of us, and soon.

We pick the fakely smiling foursome and hope that when the dog sees it, she might be fooled after all.

(Although she is only a seasonal photographer, Winchester resident Terry Marotta is a weekly columnist for The Star.)

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records votes on roll calls from the week of Dec. 5-8. Roll calls from late session at the end of the week will be included in next week's report.

BELOTTI PROBE (H 6875): House approved 76-74, but failed to gain the two-thirds margin necessary to suspend rules and allow introduction of an order for an investigation of alleged corrupt practices in the Revenue Department and Attorney General Bellotti's probe of the department.

Some supporters argued that a fair-minded legislative study would address charges that Bellotti's probe was politically motivated and would clear the air one way or another. Others said the investigation by the AG was simply designed to help defeat former Gov. Ed King.

Opponents said the study is ill-conceived and is simply an attempt to unfairly discredit the AG. They defended Bellotti and noted no indictments in the case were handed down until after the primary.

A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow consideration of the order. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension.

Saltmarsh voted no.

HARBOR TUNNEL (H 6617): Senate, 30-7, approved an amendment striking a section of the transportation bond bill prohibiting any money from being spent for planning or constructing a third Boston harbor tunnel or for a depressed central artery. The section prohibits any spending until the Secretary of Transportation has detailed the cost and source of funding for the projects and the legislature has approved them.

Supporters of eliminating the section said leaving it in would send a signal to the federal government that the state may not be serious about the projects. They claimed this could result in the state losing the federal money for the projects.

Opponents said the section saves the taxpayer money by prohibiting millions from being spent in initial stages before the state is certain it wants to go ahead with the projects.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment eliminating the prohibition. A "Nay" vote is for retaining the prohibition.

Kraus voted yes.

RULES REFORM (S 2227): Senate, 22-12, rejected a motion to discharge the Rules Committee from further consideration of a bill making changes in the rules of the Senate. The changes include requiring secret ballot ratification of the Senate President's leadership appointments and committee chairs; requiring all bills to be in print 24 hours before consideration by the Senate; and providing easier methods by which members can discharge bills from committees onto the Senate floor for consideration.

Supporters argued the changes were long overdue and would make the Senate more open, dilute the power of the leadership, and give individual senators more input.

Opponents said the Senate already approved several rules changes after careful study by a committee. They noted another committee is studying further changes and urged the Senate to get on with other business.

A "Yea" vote is for discharging the bill onto the Senate floor for debate and vote. A "Nay" vote is against discharge.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted yes.

INTERSTATE HIGHWAYS (H 6617): Senate, 24-13, rejected an amendment to its version of a $541 million transportation bond authorization. The package is for development, improvement and construction of the state's transportation facilities. The amendment would provide $40 million for cities and towns to rebuild highways.

Kraus voted yes.

Letters To The Editor

Resident Concerned Over Class Size

(The following letter to the School Committee was sent for publication in The Star.)

To: Members of the School Committee
A great effort was made to convince the School Committee to save Mystic School last winter and spring. Despite our determination and our statistics, the committee decided to close our neighborhood school.

Now our young children are bused to Lincoln. From all accounts, it is a fine school. However, the kindergarten has 59 students. My daughter's class has 30 children. This is too many!

Many of us moved to Winchester due to its reputation for excellent public schools. We pay exorbitant property taxes to support them. Then when our young children are finally old enough to attend the schools we have been supporting, the neighborhood schools close and the classrooms our children attend are overcrowded.

A good school system helps escalate property values, and everyone benefits - not merely those who have children attending school.

It is mandatory to appropriate money from the budget to guarantee small class sizes. What happened to the thousands of dollars that were supposed to be saved by closing Mystic?

I certainly hope my daughter doesn't have to be "lost in the shuffle" of large classes throughout the next 12 years just because she was born during a year with an unusually high birth rate.

Our children deserve individual attention, and that cannot be accomplished in overcrowded classrooms.

Sincerely,
Kate Frisoli
Hollywood rd.

Thanks Offered To Church Members For Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

O wonderful, wonderful, and most wonderful wonderful. And yet again wonderful.

William Shakespeare
Dear wonderful members of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church, dear friends in Winchester. On behalf of all the Czech and Slovak refugee families in the Greater Boston area, we wish to thank you for the joyous Christmas celebration you provided for us.

You shared customs, food and we sang carols, we joined together in a candlelight ceremony in your church.

For many families, this was their first experience with Americans and their first Christmas in America. The celebration was deeply touching and full of the Christmas spirit.

Deep thanks to all of you - to Rev. and Mrs. Purdy, to June Cannon, our heartfelt thanks to the Rotary Club, the Town Day Committee, to Marshall Mead and to the good Santas Dr. Murray and Dr. Norberg who sent each family back to home laden with shopping bags of Christmas goodies.

How wonderful you all are!

Miriam and Leos Zeman on behalf of the new Czech and Slovak refugee families P.S. Special thanks also to Fells Hardware for donating a hammer, saw and nails to a family.

Efforts Continue To Get Rules Changes In The Senate

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Eleven Senators, including myself, filed an order requesting six Senate rules changes in early November. The President of the Senate responded by appointing another special committee to review and propose rules changes in the Senate.

For my part, I applauded the appointment of the new committee. It may be useful in the longterm effort to achieve more thorough reform in the Senate; however, as a response to the order we have filed, the committee is an evasion - a delaying tactic.

On Dec. 5 we moved discharge of the order from the Senate Rules Committee where it has been bottled up for weeks. The discharge motion failed on a vote of 12-22.

The six changes proposed are not terribly complex, have been publicly debated and have been common currency in the State House for several weeks now. Every person and surely every senator who has some concern pro or con about rules reform has had an opportunity to consider and evaluate them - there simply is no

Council On Youth Thanks Star For Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On behalf of the Winchester Council on Youth, I would like to thank the staff of The Winchester Star and Century Publications Inc. for their support of the youth in Winchester.

The donation of $384 from the last subscription campaign will go toward furnishings in the new Youth Center at McCall Junior High School.

This is just another fine example of the way the members of the staff at The Winchester Star have supported the Council and the Recreation Dept. in our efforts to open the Youth Center in Winchester.

Respectfully,
Veronica Fiorillo

Remembering An Old Building

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I wonder how many people now living in Winchester remember when the so-called "old Parity" building was built on Shore rd? It was about 1912 when Mr. Kelley of the Kelley and Hawes firm realized that the automobile was here to stay, replacing the horse and buggy days, and built the large garage to take the place of his livery stable on Park st.

The very modern garage housed every car - Cadillacs, Studebakers, Buicks, Fords - you name a car of that day and it was there. These cars were for rent mostly. A thriving business went on in the big building for several years. If one goes on the second floor of the old building now, one can see the original turn-table for convenience in turning the cars.

On the Winchester pl. side there was a mortuary for Mr. Kelley's funeral business, but it didn't suit him and it was then that he converted a two-family house on the corner of Vine st. and Elmwood ave. into a funeral parlor and chapel, now owned by the Norris Funeral Home.

Tone Up With Tunes At Youth Center's New Class

Are you looking for the right type of exercise/dance class but you find dance classes don't provide enough information and exercise classes are too technical? Then you should sign up now for Body Tuning, one of the many, new programs being offered by the Recreation Dept. for students in Grade 7 through 12 starting in January.

Body tuning combines aerobic dance routines with discussions on the hows and whys of the human body. It's a fun way to learn about the physical changes that your body is subject to and how you can get in shape.

The fun begins Monday, Jan. 16 from 3 to 4 p.m. in the Youth Center at McCall School. Registrations are being accepted on a first come basis. A fee of $15 is required for the 10-week course.

Nuclear War Is Topic Dr. Pastore To Appear On Cablevision On Dec. 21

Dr. John Pastore of Winchester will be the guest of the Rev. John Swencki on Winchester's cable station 19. The program is "A Different Perspective" and it is broadcast to Winchester residents every Wednesday and Thursday at 6 p.m.

Dr. Pastore, a physician at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Brighton, is a member of the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War and Physicians for Social Responsibility.

During a visit to Russia Dr. Pastore was instrumental in the production of a TV program filmed in the Soviet Union on nuclear war. The film was shown in the USSR and on PBS. Dr. Pastore has testified before Congress on the effects of nuclear war.

Time To Tune In To Winton Cabaret

Show To Look At Golden Age

Winton Club members are looking beyond the holiday season to this year's Cabaret — "Tune In" — look back to the golden days of radio and television. The show will span more than 50 years of radio and television history.

"Tune In" will be presented at the Winchester Town Hall from Jan. 31 through Feb. 4. Auditions for dancing and singing roles will begin on January 9th under the direction of Jerome Cargill of New York. Everyone past high school age is welcome to try out.

Carolyn Gunby is the chairman of the 1984 show, and she and her general committee began their work shortly after last year's show closed. Kick lines, comedy, solos — all will be featured, and the traditional Winton Club Drill will be the exciting conclusion of the first act.

This effort on the part of Winton Club members, volunteer singers and dancers, program advertisers, and sponsors is all directed toward raising funds for Winchester Hospital. All proceeds from Winton Club's Cabaret and its hospital gift shop are used to help maintain the linen supply at Winchester Hospital.

BEHIND THE SCENES — The general committee working on the Winton Club's 1984 Cabaret, a look at the golden age of radio and television, were chosen in October and have been working ever since. They are (front row) Leslie French, Jennie Lou Brockelman, Diane Culver, Carolyn Gunby (chairman), Jan Duffy, Janet Jones, Jane Twichell; (rear row) Rita Harms, Judy Lynch, Mary Barger, Berta Swanson, Margaret Kennedy, Carol Johnson, Edna Dayton, Dot Santos, Laurie Bradlee, Janet Coakley, Ann Sutherland and Ruth DeSanctis. Missing from the picture are Patricia Harte, Mary R. Barger, Mary Vitka, Phyllis Gleason, Marjorie Taylor, Jean Nowicki, Sue Powers and Peg Stockwood.

Hospital Employees Don't Give Only On Holiday

By ORA BAER

Gift-giving is one of the most popular traditions of Christmas. As the holiday season approaches, thoughts turn toward sharing with those we love and care about. But this spirit of giving reigns all year round at Winchester Hospital, where hundreds of employees contribute regularly to the ECHO Fund, a voluntary employee program whose monies are used to purchase patient-care equipment.

"ECHO" stands for "Employees' Concern Helps Others." Since the fund's inception in 1975, it has done just that by raising more than $60,000 for charitable purposes. The bulk of those funds, $57,707, have gone toward the purchase of equipment for patients, such as electronic thermometers, infant isolettes, and emergency crash carts (carts stocked with supplies necessary for treatment of patients with cardiac or respiratory arrest.) The remainder has been given to the United Way.

What motivates employees — from maintenance workers and laundry crew to administrative staff — to have money deducted from their semimonthly paychecks to buy equipment they may never use themselves?

Leroy Clarke, director of the hospital's

Central Material Services, and chairman of the ECHO Fund, believes a variety of factors are responsible. Because the ECHO Fund is managed completely by hospital employees (mainly hourly employees as opposed to salaried staff), participants feel they have a real voice in the decision-making process, and they see the tangible results of their efforts when equipment is purchased and put to good use, Clarke noted.

"In this age of tight money, I think it (the ECHO Fund) is great, and a unique way to raise money for important things we couldn't get otherwise," the chairman said.

For those directly involved in patient care, there is another compelling motivation. "This equipment, from the employees' point of view, makes each one's job easier, more varied, and interesting," according to James Kieran, chief laboratory technician at Winchester Hospital.

Equipment such as "one-to-one communicators," for example, have made nursing a much more pleasant job for those treating patients with hearing disorders. Nurses used to feel frustrated because of the strained communication between them and hearing-impaired patients. The communication barrier made the nurses' job difficult, and the patient's hospital stay less pleasant than it could have been.

STAFF DONATION — Five "one-to-one communicators" have been donated to Winchester Hospital thanks to the ECHO Fund, which is supported by hospital employees. Following ear surgery, Alma Robbins of Wilmington uses a communicator to talk with R.N. Dorothy Craigie.

Nurses proposed that ECHO Fund monies be earmarked for the purchase of amplification devices known as "one-to-one communicators" that would enhance communication between nurses and hearing-impaired patients. For $373, five such devices were purchased and are now in use in the hospital's nursing units.

Much of the equipment purchased by the ECHO fund does not simply offer convenience, but may actually save lives. Not long ago, employees purchased a thermal blanket for nearly $4,000. The blanket, a "sub-zero blanket thermal unit," is used to raise or lower abnormal body temperatures to the normal range. This blanket was used to save the life of a 4-year-old girl whose temperature had dropped to 87 degrees Fahrenheit after she had fallen through ice into a pond.

According to the bylaws of the ECHO Fund, any hospital employee, even if not a contributor to the program, may submit a proposal for new equipment to be purchased. Once a month, members of the fund's 11-member board convene to vote on proposals and discuss other organizational business.

So as not to interfere with or detract from Winchester Hospital's capital campaign, the ECHO Fund has not launched any major solicitation drive during the past two years, Clarke said. But this past July, the fund used the occasion of a bicycle race to raise money for hospital equipment.

A radiologist at the hospital, Dr. John B. MacDonald, decided to spend part of his vacation participating in the Des Moines Register's 11th annual "Great Bike Race Across Iowa." For each of the 500 miles he pedaled, scores of hospital employees contributed a few pennies to the ECHO Fund, yielding a total of $1,300.

Overall, nearly one-third of the hospital staff, or more than 300 employees, contributed to the fund regularly this year, yielding about $7,500 for patient-care equipment and the United Way.

"I get a great deal of satisfaction from being involved in this program," said Clarke, who is completing a two-year term as chairman this month, and who has served on the ECHO Fund board for the past five years. "People like the idea of feeling their money is being spent for patient-care equipment, and they have a voice in it. They feel committed to the hospital. That's why they get involved."

Added Chris O'Kane, an administrative secretary and longtime member of the ECHO Fund because it might help someone in their family, themselves, or just someone they care about in the future. Beyond that, people like to help other people.

A new bank is coming with a new kind of interest: Human Interest.

Middlesex Federal is coming to Medford Square this winter. And with it comes the kind of personal service that seems to have gotten lost in the shuffle of today's automated banking world.

People you can talk with to help make plans for retirement, finance a new car, put your children through college or to find a way to buy a new house.

People who not only take a genuine interest in your financial problems—but have the experience and expertise to do something about them.

The new Medford Square office will be joining our offices in Teele Sq. and Davis Sq. in Somerville to bring a full range of banking services with "Human Interest" right to your neighborhood.

SAVIORS, SAINTS, PATRIOTS AND POLS — Chestnut st. resident Louis Mian has, with stone, portrayed Jesus and Mary (for St. Anthony's Church in Lowell), former Gov. John Volpe (the hardest thing I ever did in my life) and a Revolutionary War patriot (a restoration of the front of Boston's Battery March Building which he copied for his latest mural at the Bedford VA Hospital). Jesus, Mary and the governor are done in mosaic, the patriot in terrazzo framed with brass.

Mosaic Master Mian Carries On Old-World Craft Of Painting In Stone

By DAVE LEECO

The touch of the old world is still with Louis Mian — in the tilt of his native Italy, he invites guests into the kitchen of his Chestnut st. home for a glass of wine from his hometown of Fanna.

Mian also has the touch of an old world craftsman. For 50 years, Mian has practiced the craft of mosaic and terrazzo work, creating art out of stone.

He is one of the last of a breed of craftsman, trained in old world building techniques, who came to America in the 30s looking for work.

Even then, when every graduate in his class at the Collegio Don Bosco Scuola Musaicisti (School of Mosaic) in Spilimbergo, Italy, was headed to Boston and New York, Mian was something special.

In his first year in America, a German company asked Mian's employer for a loan of the mosaic artisan to work on the Christian Scientist's Mother Church in Boston.

And today, when Italian-trained mosaic artisans would rather stay in Italy, Mian has become even more special — about the only man in Massachusetts, and perhaps New England, who can create works of art out of chips of marble.

At 70, Mian is more in demand than ever to do mosaics and art work in terrazzo, a mixture of marble chips and cement that are poured into a brass frame to create a picture.

"It's funny — now when I'm

Bees Are Busy

CHRISTMAS CHEER FOR 200 — Members of the Busy Bees of the Volunteers Assn. at New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn, have spent many hours making souvenir Christmas wreaths and other items to adorn the breakfast trays of patients on Christmas morning. Winchester Busy Bees (l to r) Mary Nunziato, Norma Errico and Ann Wright also make souvenirs for nine special holidays.

Davidson Conducts

Douglass Davidson of Thornberry rd. will conduct "The Magnificat" by Johann Sebastian Bach at the Old North Church, 193 Salem st., Boston, on Sunday, Dec. 4, at 4 p.m. The Old North Singers, five vocal soloists including Carole Davidson, mezzo-soprano, a 13-piece orchestra and organ will perform this significant work. The historic church, which is observing its 260th Anniversary, will be lit by candlelight from antique brass chandeliers that were first lighted Christmas Day, 1724. The public is cordially invited. There is no admission charge.

Budd Studies

William B. Budd Jr., of Winchester, a Dartmouth College junior, studied geology in the western United States and Central America this fall as part of the college's Foreign Study Program. Budd, a geology major, is the son of William Sr. and Nancy Budd of 34 Wedgemere ave.

Budd has also studied French in Arles, France, on a Dartmouth Language Study Abroad program last spring. During the summer term, he earned a citation for academic excellence in a French course on advanced writing and speaking.

Budd, who has played soccer at Dartmouth, graduated from Belmont High School where he received high honors and was a member of the cum laude society.

Josephson Attends

As real estate and the overall economy continue their recovery, Sherman R. Josephson, owner of Josephson Realtors of Main st., joined more than 14,000 other members of the National Assn. of Realtors attending the group's recent 76th annual convention in Las Vegas.

Josephson, accompanied by his wife, Elinor, attended educational sessions, seminars and workshops designed to keep Realtors abreast of current and future real estate market conditions and prepare them to meet the challenges of a rapidly changing economy.

"Fluctuating interest rates and rapid changes in the mortgage lending community underscore the need for real estate professionals to gain an up-to-date understanding of the challenges facing the industry now and in the years to come," said Josephson. "This year's convention provided the opportunity to obtain that understanding and offered Realtors a much greater chance for success today and in the future."

Day Gets Brother

Wayne Day, a sophomore management major at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, recently completed the volunteer orientation program of the Big Brothers Big Sisters of Worcester County and was matched to his little brother.

Susan Sample R.N., formerly of Winchester, recently spoke at the Boston College School of Nursing on the topic, "Pain Management on Oncology, Pediatrics and Pain Syndrome."

Sample is the Patient Care Coordinator of the Pain Unit at the Spaulding Rehabilitation Hospital, formerly called the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital, in Boston. She is a graduate of Drake University in Iowa and Lawrence Memorial School of Nursing in Medford, and is a member of the American Pain Society.

Hoyt Appointed

RISING — The election of Marlene P. Hoyt to assistant vice president of the Winchester Savings Bank was announced by Robert Nickerson, president of the $190 million institution. Hoyt, who joined Winchester Savings in 1980, will be responsible for the bank's loan servicing division.

Kane Commended

Mairne Capt. William A. Kane, son of Joseph F. and Mary E. Kane of Wyman ct., has received a Certificate of Commendation.

He received the letter for superior performance of duty while serving at Marine Corps Base Camp Butler on Okinawa.

A Certificate of Commendation is official recognition of an individual's outstanding accomplishments and is presented during formal ceremonies.

Kennery Trained

Navy Seaman Recruit David F. Kennery, son of Frank D. and Barbara A. Kennery of Cottage ave., has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Included in their studies were seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid.

old and want to take it easy, the work is piling up," said Mian as he sipped white wine at the kitchen table. "Nobody else in New England can do what I do."

The work isn't piling up because Mian is slowing down — he still gets up at 5 a.m. every day, seven days a week, to go to his shop where he works until the evening.

"I work 6 to 6 every day — it isn't because I have to, I love it," he said. "I'm up at 5 in the morning, waiting for the alarm to go off."

Last Sunday, Mian confessed, he had to go into Boston to check the granite work his men were doing on the facade of Jason's. "I got up at 5, but I realized it was silly — the men wouldn't be there, no one else was up," he recalled. "So I stayed in bed until 7." And then he went to work.

But although Mian puts in long hours, he can't turn out enough work to meet the demand. One of his mosaic or terrazzo pieces could take up to a year — three months at the least, if Mian worked at it eight hours a day.

His latest work, a mosaic of two patriots for the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford, took nearly a year. But Mian wouldn't rush on his latest masterpiece — when he decided his first, nearly completed efforts weren't just right, he scrapped the entire mosaic and started all over again.

To keep the cost of the artwork down, Mian tried a new technique for the VA mosaic — instead of using tiles, he used crushed marble held in place by an epoxy resin. The going was slow, because Mian could only do one color and one area at a time. But he wanted to do it.

"No one had ever done anything that complicated using those materials," he explained. "The eyes took me a long time, because I had to do white, then black, then white again and wait each time.

"People told me, 'Louis, don't try this, you'll get into trouble.' " Mian recalled. "But I got stubborn when they told me I couldn't do it. And I did it."

Mian makes the last statement with obvious pride. He takes deep satisfaction in his success, in the widespread recognition of his talents. Folding his strong but gentle hands in front of him, he observed, "When you reach a certain age, and you've had success in life, life becomes very interesting."

The success was built, piece by piece, like one of Mian's mosaics.

Mian came to America from Italy in 1932, fresh out of the Scuola Musaici. "Six of us came — the school always had requests for graduates," he recalled. "There was no trouble finding a job when we got here — which was good, because we came to America during the worst times, the Depression."

Working for a variety of employers, Mian created artworks for many Boston churches, including the Trinity Church and the Christian Scientist Mother Church. With the money from the latter job, "I bought a brand new Chevy convertible — it really put me on my feet," he recalled.

As word of his talent spread, Mian began to get many jobs. And when he returned from a three-year tour on the Atlantic with the U.S. Navy during World War II, he set out on his own.

For years, Mian worked by himself with his wife, Emily, doing the books. He worked mainly in terrazzo. Marble slabs were hard to come by, he explained, so terrazzo work, where marble chips are mixed with cement, poured and then polished, took up most of his business.

Even in terrazzo work, said Mian, he stood out. "I adapted my schooling in mosaic to terrazzo, and that made me the top man," he said.

Locally, an example of Mian's terrazzo work can be seen at the Knights of Columbus Hall, where he made the K of C symbol inlaid in the floor of the entryway. Using thin brass straps to form the edges of the symbol, Mian poured in different colored terrazzo for a gleaming marble emblem.

With his services in demand for the many churches and office buildings erected in the 50s and 60s, Mian began to take on more help. Soon, he had a dozen men working for him and was able to concentrate on "my art, mosaic."

It was a mosaic portrait of then-Gov. John A. Volpe, created out of 5,000 pieces of marble over the course of a year, that made Mian famous.

Mian created the portrait for his fellow Winchester resident "because I was so proud to have an Italian governor," Mian said. "I couldn't have been prouder if he was my own brother."

"That picture was the hardest thing I ever did in my life," recalled Mian. "He had that salt-and-pepper hair then — I couldn't use black, I couldn't use gray, I had to mix the tiles. And the — I wanted them to look right. I must have done those seven times."

But the hard work brought recognition. "I got work from far as Georgia, because people had seen that picture," Mian.

Since then, Mian has mosaic murals for St. Anthony Church in Lowell, the Memorial on Mt. Greylock Adams, and Don Bosco Technical School in Boston, as well as restoring the mosaic work in State House's Hall of Flags.

Now, with his business run by his son, Louis Jr., an fame assured, Mian has only goal.

"I have in mind a mural of three astronauts landing on moon," he said. "If I do that, it will be my last one. I'm 70, that's enough."

Art Gallery Opens

ON DISPLAY — The works of Winchester's artists can be seen three times a week at the newly opened Winchester Art Assn. Gallery, which was christened with a gala recently. Chatting at the reception were artists Carolyn Latanision and Cathy Indigaro (top photo), while the officers of the Art Assn., Director Joyce Colvario, President Diane Pearson, Vice President Gloria Giello and Publicity Chairman Christine Loomis posed for a portrait. Colvario, right, was chosen to be director of the new gallery.

Art Assn. Opens Its New Gallery With Colorful Paintings And Exhibits

The opening exhibit features oils, watercolors, photography and sculpture by several members of the Winchester Art Assn. A wide range of subject matter will please all discerning art lovers and simply delight others.

On Jan. 9, a one-artist show will feature Nancy Watts of Winchester, president of Winchester Art Assn. Picture Lending. Other shows to follow will be mentioned in the Gallery's Newsletter that will be mailed periodically. Those interested in receiving a copy should stop in and leave your name for the mailing list.

The Art Assn. would like to mention and thank many people who without their help and dedication - the Gallery would not be a reality today. Tony Albani and his family were generous enough to donate the building facility, and the Art Assn. members are very appreciative of the gift and thank them.

The lovely guest book hand bound in leather by Nancy Schrock, a bookbinder, will be a treasured keepsake. Gloria Giello, Christine Loomis and Joyce Colvario were on the hanging and decorating committee and their end result is obvious.

The sign that graces the front of the building for all to see was built by Danny Pearson and designed by Bill Miga who also is responsible for all the other posters inside the Gallery. The interesting antique easel was donated by Mary Jacobs.

The committee who helped log in paintings and assisted in scheduling were Jean Barber, Peg Albani, Elaine Chipman, Alice Arden, Diane Pearson, Anita Stinson, Gloria Giello and Mildred Kane. Ivan Latanision was the official photographer during opening ceremonies.

Of course, last, but by no means least, Joyce Colvario, the director, spent many hours formulating plans to insure a successful operation of the Gallery. Her endeavors are appreciated by the entire membership of the Winchester Art Assn. and certainly by all those who will get enjoyment out of the Gallery.

Judging by the response received by the visitors and friends, the town of Winchester was ready for its new Gallery owned and operated by the members of the Winchester Art Assn. and located at 600 Main St.

The Gallery opened its door to the public this past week and people not only from Winchester and neighboring towns, but visitors from out of state were in and out all days — admiring, complimenting and being so enthusiastic.

Several paintings have already been sold as were several items from the table of small gifts which will be on display during the month of December for Christmas shoppers. There is also a permanent bin containing unframed prints and paintings that are for sale.

47 Give Gift of Blood For Holidays

The friendly atmosphere, delicious home-cooked Italian lunch and holiday spirit brought 47 generous people to the Sons of Italy Hall on Saturday, Nov. 19, to give the most valuable gift of all — a pint of blood.

The drive was sponsored by the Sons of Italy, the Ladies' Lodge and the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross.

The following volunteers gave of their time and energy to make the drive a success: Tony Staffiere, Gus Baldacci, Tony Saraco, Bucky Borsini, Jerry Borsini, Andy Buzzotta, Eleanor Yore, Kelli Moynihan, Jane MacIssac, Angie Tuttle, Bank Warns Residents Of New Withholding Law

Remember interest and dividend withholding?

This 1982 law turned out to be so unpopular Congress repealed it before it went into effect. Taxpayers therefore will not have 10 percent of interest and dividend income held back in advance.

However, in exchange for removing this burden from the great majority of honest taxpayers, the Internal Revenue Service insisted on better enforcement tools against tax cheats. According to Thomas Dickinson of the Winchester Savings Bank, this primarily involves an accurate taxpayer identification number to go with every bank account and other source of interest or dividend income.

"For most people, this will simply mean assuring a correct social security number or supplying one in the case of new accounts," Dickinson said. "There is really nothing to it, but people should be aware of the new law, because a missing or incorrect number could result in penalties, including 20 percent backup withholding."

When backup withholding is applied, 20 percent of the interest payable to a customer will be remitted to the IRS and credited toward the customer's income tax obligation.

Between now and January 1, many banks will be sending forms and notices to existing customers asking them to check the taxpayer identification numbers on their deposit accounts, provide correct ones if necessary, and certify that the numbers are correct. IRS Form W-9 may be used for this purpose. After Jan. 1, customers opening new accounts will have to provide and certify identification numbers as part of the account-opening process.

For most people, their taxpayer number will simply be their social security number. According to Dickinson, customers who do not have social security numbers should see about getting them. This can be done by visiting or otherwise contacting the local office of the Social Security Administration or the IRS.

Also if customers have questions about the new certification and withholding requirements, they should contact the IRS or stop by the Winchester Savings Bank where a customer service representative will be available to help.

★ Contracts nervous.

"It's a lot of pressure," said Phil Coss, who will represent the DPW. "It will be the first time we're going in with a cap (the 5 percent Groux projected) and there will be pressure on both sides."

Coss said he wanted "to do the best for our men" and was gathering information from other towns in the area to see what they are doing. "In the past, we just wanted a wage increase in line with other towns' unions. We'll have our own strategy but it gives us a basis."

Coss said he and his men have yet to sit down and go over exactly what they want to give their proposals some kind of direction. But he did mention he was concerned with health care costs because of the chunk they take out of the paycheck every week.

"We're really looking for a fair day's pay for a fair day's work," he said. "Last year we were pleased with the outcome and we'll just see what happens. But we really don't want a long, drawn-out negotiation. We'd like to finish before the Spring Town Meeting."

Joanne Martignette, who is the president of the Winchester Education Assn. and will serve as an ex-officio member of this year's bargaining team, agreed.

"I think that they are going to be difficult negotiations," she said, adding she would like those negotiations to be complete in time for the Spring Town Meeting. "And I think it's going to be very important to have some fresh ideas and be creative in our package."

Martignette said the teachers' negotiating team has already been appointed, and will include several Town Meeting members.

"A lot of us teach in town, live here and pay taxes and are interested in what goes on financially as well as philosophically," she said.

Martignette said the teachers' association took a different tactic last spring than it had in previous years. Instead of going in with volumes of requests, teachers asked for a minimum number of controversial items.

They hope to aim that way again this spring, and hope to get a quick agreement from Town Meeting.

School Committee member Catherine Alexander, who along with Dr. Michael Ronayne will represent the School Committee during the collective bargaining for teachers' salaries, said she realizes negotiations with teachers are the most costly for the town because it is the largest group.

And she also said she realizes the significance of Town Meeting's message. "There's no doubt that Town Meeting has given us a strong message about contract negotiations," she said. "They are going to want to make sure that their dollars are well spent and it will be incumbent upon the School Committee to justify any significant changes in policy language and the impact of a raise on the overall budget."

Kevin Yore, who has led negotiations for the Winchester Fire Dept. since 1973, said he believes it will be a tough year for collective bargaining.

"It seems as though that 5 percent figure we've heard is a mandate — at least that's how it seems," said Yore. "We've faced austerity before but this is a new idea (the strong message from Town Meeting) of hearing that the town is in rough shape."

Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell agreed that it will be "a damn hard year" for negotiating, but he insisted that the 5 percent figure is only an illustrative one.

"The figure was only intended to show something that's going to be reasonably close," he noted. "Otherwise there is no collective bargaining."

Yore said the firefighters have not started meeting yet to talk about negotiations, but he hoped to do so before the first of the year.

"We'd love to finish before Spring Town Meeting," said Yore.

While most of the union leaders expressed this same wish, others said they couldn't even think about starting negotiations again, much less finishing.

"We just got finished with last year's negotiations," said Police Sgt. Francis Manzie. "We really haven't talked about next year yet."

Once police do begin talking about it, they will have to consider the reality of the town's financial predicament.

"There will be heavy pressure all around," predicted O'Connell. "Part of it is because of Town Meeting and part of it is the mood of society."

And the mood of selectmen, according to O'Connell, is to be prudent with public funds while considering the needs of the town's employees.

This year, with every employee's contract coming up, that's a lot of needs to consider.

★ Music

Kessel of the band "Solution" agreed. "They were a rowdy crowd but," he added, "sometimes smaller acts suffered because of this."

Kessel echoed other performers in referring to the often unpleasant reactions the small acts drew from the crowd. Because there were small acts between each band act, the crowd was given a chance to mellow out before the next band came on the stage.

Unfortunately, according to many band members and single performers, the crowd stayed just as rowdy, jeopardizing the small acts. Ed Nazarian, who performed several songs with Mark Herlihy said, "The crowd was too rowdy in a way, they could have given the small acts more respect." Pittas, on the other hand, contended that the crowd's rudeness was not meant to be disrespectful. "I don't think it was intentional. Everyone was in such a rowdy mood and the small acts were quieter so everyone talking could be heard, but the bands were loud enough to drown out the noise." Skinder disagrees with this saying, "Largely the crowd was fine, but it only took a few isolated groups to spoil it for quite a few performers."

Despite the problems with the audience, most of the performers would agree that the Music Fest was a success. Dan Parsington, drummer for the band "N.M.S." said of the night, "It was a blast, definitely worth it." And Lauren Hartnett answered an enthusiastic yes when asked if the night was worth it, "everyone was really great."

When asked if being in a band was an ego trip one performer answered, "Yeah, it's an ego trip, well, that is if everyone in the audience claps." If this is true then all of those performers' egos are definitely soaring now.

The proceeds from the Music Fest will go to the Friends of the Winchester High School Music Dept. where it will probably be put into a scholarship fund. Last year, the funds went to the Howard Niblock Scholarship Fund. As of now, due to the audience difficulties, Skinder is unsure whether he will be coordinating the event again next year.

It was with the help of Skinder that the idea of high school students Tom Porrell, Kevin Indigaro, and Pilar Pittas had last year turned into a reality. Those three recognized a need for a demonstration of the talents and the arts that so many high school students possess. With this in mind, a Music Fest seemed like the perfect way to display these many talents.

Hopefully the show will go on next year. From both sides of the stage, it seemed like a perfect way to spend a Friday night.

DeMouleys Go To New Candidate Initiation

Members of Winchester Chapter Order of DeMolay, a youth organization for young men 13-21, were among 40 other DeMolay chapters from around the state of Massachusetts who attended an initiation class for new candidates in honor of the Grand Master of Masons in Massachusetts, J. Philip Berquist.

The class, held at the Grand Lodge Masonic Building in Boston, was a tribute to a man who was a dedicated DeMolay member in his youth. After a luncheon, initiation degrees for over 50 new members, and entertainment that afternoon, there was a dinner that evening with a Legion of Honor award investiture to 11 outstanding Senior DeMolays and Master Masons.

The Graveyard Shift At The Purity

(Or Who Goes Shopping For Quail At 2 A.M.?)

BY LIZ WILLEN

After 1 a.m. only one Winchester establishment is still alive with music, packed with possibilities for meeting people and stocked with everything from bananas to barbeque sauce.

The fixings are there for a romantic dinner for two, a Mexican feast or a junk-food orgy.

The place boasts delicacies and a diverse clientele ranging from nurses who work odd hours to hungry high schoolers returning from a party.

Piped in "Muzak" is replaced with WBCN's Rock-n-Roll during the late night and early morning hours. And beyond the dark, peaceful center of town, most every food fantasy or nicotine craving can be fulfilled at the Purity Supreme.

Or perhaps even a late-night romance could blossom among the broccoli.

Anything's possible in a 24-hour supermarket. The customers filtering in and out of the Purity Supreme during the "Graveyard Shift" (midnight to 8 a.m.) could be purchasing quail, cat food, candy or caviar. They could be shopping after work, before work or just because they get hungry at odd hours.

There is an endless variety of reasons why people shop during the early morning hours. They may want to avoid having to stand on line behind a housewife with a teeming cart full of screaming children and a week's worth of groceries, they may have insomnia, or they may desperately need one thing.

On Friday night at 1 a.m., one couple needed Listerine. They went up and down the aisles looking for it before they found it, paid for it and left.

Ron Primeterra of Swanton St. was shopping because his cat was having hunger pangs. "If the Purity Supreme wasn't open, I'd have to give her a 95 cent can of tuna fish," he said, while checking out with an enormous bag of Purina Cat Chow and several cans of liver and kidney special dinners for cats.

Helmuth Pichler came in because he believes shopping during the daytime is a "horror show."

"It's quiet and silent and peaceful here now," he said. "I just finished watching a movie and I decided to go shopping. I like the irregular hours — I do this all the time."

According to Purity Public Relations Manager Jack Murphy, people don't usually think of a supermarket as a place to go during the night.

But Winchester High School students Randy Carswell and Mike Wunder said they do, mostly because they get hungry after going out to parties.

"We come in here a lot," said Carswell, while picking a quart of apple cider off of a shelf. "Usually it's to stock up on junk food or because we are thirsty."

Because the Purity doesn't sell alcohol, the management has few problems with teen-age drinkers. But Carswell said he believes most people out shopping after midnight have "a little buzz on."

"Just figuring out how to get in here requires a little buzz," he said, noting the signs on the doors that direct the customers to use a different entrance after

Teen-agers have not caused a lot of problems at the Purity Supreme, save for a few isolated incidents. Both Night Manager John Ranauro and Police Chief John McHugh said that the 24-hour openings have been relatively quiet since Purity began opening after midnight two years ago.

"I had serious doubts when they first opened up," said McHugh. "I was sure there would be a big problem — that teen-agers would be raising hell, consorting and congregating in the parking lot. But really, we've had relatively few complaints — it's been a pleasant surprise."

McHugh said that his men check the supermarket regularly while they are on duty during the graveyard shift. And he admits that "the potential is there" for problems in the parking lot and in the store. But aside from an occasional report of "strange behavior," usually drug- or alcohol-related, Winchester police are generally not plagued by Purity problems.

"The management uses very good judgment," McHugh noted. "It's really designed for convenience," noted Murphy. "I know many people appreciate the chance to shop at odd hours because they just can't make it during regular hours."

But even some residents who can make it during regular hours say they prefer shopping during the graveyard shift.

"It's a different type of person that shops after midnight," noted Steve D'Onofrio, who shops for frozen pizza and ice-cream at odd hours. "It's a lot more laid-back — and it's less dangerous. You don't have to worry about potential dangers like getting your cart rammed into — or coming home with a kid who isn't yours."

Nighttime cashier Jerry Lyons admitted that he enjoyed working the odd hours. "It's less pressure and more relaxed," he noted. "And I think the customers are friendlier."

For the management of Purity Supreme, staying open 24-hours actually makes a great deal of sense.

"The lights would have to be on anyway, and most of the activity (such as stocking the shelves and receiving deliveries) would still be taking place," said Ranauro. "And now, people never have to question if we're open or not — we are."

The hours between 3 and 5 a.m. are the quietest, Ranauro said. "It's pretty steady until 2, but it slows down a little after that," he noted.

Cigarettes, milk and bread seem to be the most popular items purchased after midnight, according to the night manager. However, most of the customers at the check-out counter on a recent Friday morning seemed more inclined to purchase unusual snacks.

Guner Pamir of Cambridge St. came in to buy quail. And a hungry Frank Chiara of Arlington stopped in on his way home from work, as he does about three times a week, to satisfy his sweet tooth.

"I'm on a diet," he said, piling watermelons and bananas on the counter. "I'm eating fruit because I want to lose weight."

Pointing to a package of cookies the cashier was also ringing up, Chiara admitted that he has a sweet tooth that sometimes gets in the way of his diet plans.

"I couldn't resist," he admitted, blushing.

The open supermarket has the potential to destroy any diet. It's as simple as heading over to the Purity Supreme and spending a few bucks.

And you never know who you could meet squeezing the Charmin, gazing at the ground beef or stroking the celery.

Church Women

Will Deliver Meals

Church Women United, under the direction of Hilde Zerwekh and assisted by the Jenks Senior Center, distributed six meals to members of the community for the Thanksgiving Holiday.

This program will be repeated for Christmas. Church Women United believe there is a special need during the Holidays to distribute these meals to anyone who is alone or is unable to prepare such a meal.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records votes on roll calls from the week of Nov. 14-18. The House was still debating the proposal requiring the Speaker's appointments to be ratified by secret ballot when the report was written:

LAND (H 6810): House approved 120-29 and sent to the Senate for action, a bill authorizing the state to sell some 17,000 square feet of MDC land near Boston College.

Supporters argued the bill is designed to sell the land to Boston College which will use it to build a parking garage with 286 spaces. They said BC officials have met with neighborhood groups and that the bill is acceptable to both.

Opponents said the land should be retained as open space and claimed the garage, in addition to a proposed stadium enlargement, will increase traffic and congestion and is unfair to residents.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

HOUSE RULES PACKAGE (H 6824): House unanimously approved 154-0, the package of new House rules drafted by a special subcommittee. Key provisions include making House committees subject to many provisions of the open meeting law; requiring a roll call of a House committee on a bill if one member of the committee requests it; allowing bills to be discharged from the House Ways and Means, House Rules, Bills in Third Reading, and Counties by a member obtaining signatures of 40 percent of House members on a petition and allowing a majority vote on the floor to discharge the bill; requiring all bills to be in print 24 hours before action in the House; requiring a roll call vote on all legislative pay hikes and prohibiting any hikes from taking effect until the next legislative session; and allowing a majority party caucus to be called by the Speaker or 25 percent of the majority party membership.

EFFECTIVE IMMEDIATELY (H 6824): House approved 86-66, an amendment making the new House rules package effective immediately instead of at the beginning of the 1984 session on Jan. 4.

Amendment supporters said the rules were crucial to diluting the leadership's power and giving members more of a voice in the House. They said there were still several weeks left in the 1983 session and it makes sense to implement the rules now.

Amendment opponents said immediate implementation would rush things and could cause chaos and confusion. They urged members to wait a few short weeks to insure smooth implementation.

A "Yea" vote is for making the rules effective immediately.

A "Nay" vote is for making the rules effective in January 1984.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

SECRET BALLOT (H 6824): House 80-73, defeated an amendment requiring a secret ballot under a proposed new rule making the Speaker's appointments of the leadership team and committee chairs subject to ratification by the majority party caucus. The amendment also requires secret ballot okay of the minority leader's leadership appointments. Without the amendment, the new rule specifically prohibits the use of secret ballots.

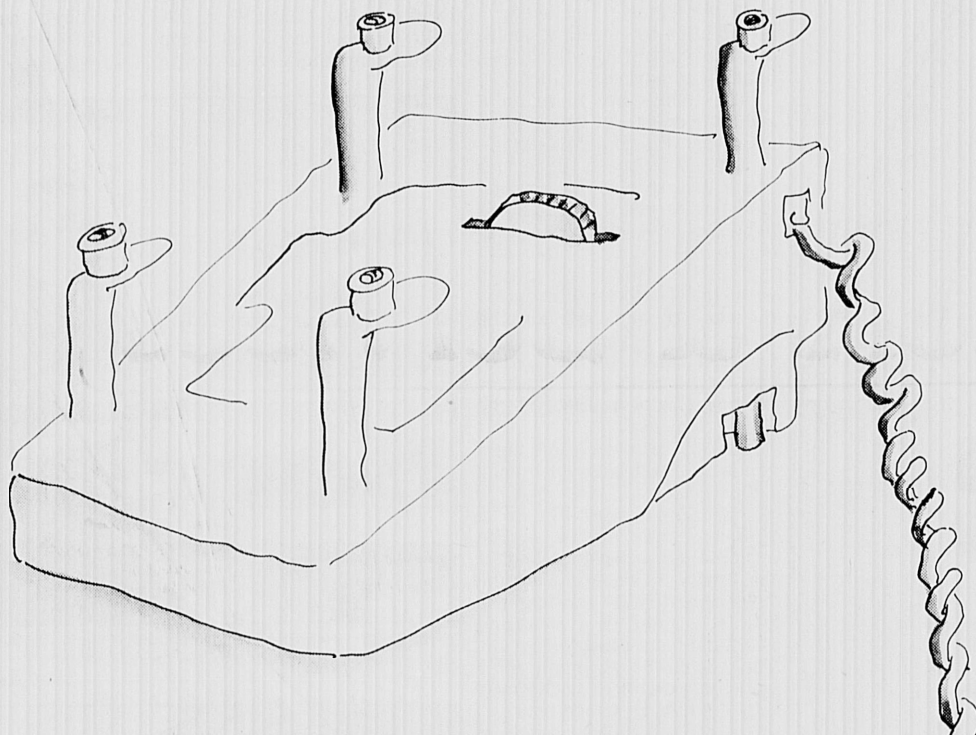

Amendment supporters said a secret ballot is used in all public elections and argued it was essential to meaningful reform and was necessary to protect from retribution members who oppose the Speaker's key appointments. They said similar retributions have occurred regularly over the years. Many noted the votes would not be on the House floor but in individual party caucuses which have already been closed to the public for many years.

Opponents said secret ballots are undemocratic and claimed all House votes should be open and available to the public. They said members unwilling to stand up and be counted are cowards.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment requiring a secret ballot. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment requiring a secret ballot. Reconsideration and further action and votes on the secret ballot amendment will be included in next week's report. Saltmarsh voted no.

LOGGING THE FUTURE

An emblem of good luck, the Yule log should only be half-burnt. The remainder of the log should be kept to light a new log on the next Christmas Eve. It is believed to be bad luck if a bare-foot or squinty person comes in to the house while the fire is burning.

What to do if your phone rolls over and plays dead.

With the Bell System breaking up on January 1, a lot of people have become concerned about how they'll get telephone repair service.

Not to worry. New England Telephone will still be your local phone company. And we'll still maintain and repair phone lines. Just as we always have.

However, New England Telephone will no longer provide home telephone equipment. So we can no longer repair telephones.

Therefore telephone repair service is now being divided into two parts: phones and phone lines.

Understanding the new policy will save you time and money. And give you the service you need when you need it.

How to get your phones fixed.

Just think of your phones the way you think of any other appliance. The company that sells you the appliance generally provides repair service.

So, if you buy phones—whether from AT&T or any of the many companies that now sell phones—check into their repair policies. And make sure you get a good service warranty.

If you bought your phone from New England Telephone, it will be serviced by AT&T after January 1.

If you decide to lease your phones, simply keep the ones we've provided. After January 1, you'll automatically be leasing from AT&T. And they'll maintain them.

The new number to call for phone repair is 1 800 555-SILL.

What if the problem is in the line?

After the break-up, New England Telephone will continue to maintain and repair phone lines so you'll continue to get the good service you've always been able to count on.

If your problem is not with your phone, but with your phone line, call us. We'll come out and fix it right away. Free. As we always have.

The number to call for line repair is 1 555-1611.

How can you tell whether it's the phone or the line?

If you're not sure whether the problem is in the phone or in the line, here are some suggestions.

The problem is probably in the phone if the phone is obviously damaged.

Or if you have more than one phone and only one is not working, chances are the problem's in the phone.

But if none of your phones work, the problem is probably in the line.

You can test your phone by unplugging it and trying it at a neighbor's house. Or, if your phone's from AT&T, you can test it at an AT&T PhoneCenter.

It's important to determine whether it's the phone or the line that needs repair. Because, after January 1, if New England Telephone sends a repair person out to fix the line and it turns out the phone is broken, we can't fix it. And we have to charge you for a service call.

It's not as easy as it was.

Nor as difficult as you feared.

After the break-up, New England Telephone will maintain and repair phone lines. Whoever provides your phones will be responsible for their repair.

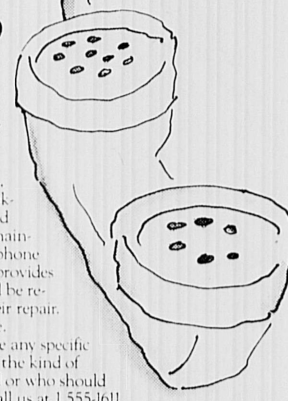

It's that simple.

But if you have any specific questions about the kind of repairs you need or who should provide them, call us at 1 555-1611.

If you have general questions about the changes outlined here, call our toll-free "Let's Talk" number. It's 1 800 555-5000. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Or watch for more detailed information with your bill.

Keeping you informed about all the changes that are taking place is part of our commitment to giving you the best phone service we possibly can.

The Bell System is breaking up, but New England Telephone's got it all together.

Chosen As Outstanding Alumni Cullivan Is Honored

Donald E. Cullivan of Sheffield rd., senior vice president, international group for Camp Dresser and McKee Inc., was chosen as one of six outstanding alumni by Northeastern University. He was honored for his achievements in business and industry.

Cullivan received a degree in civil engineering from Northeastern in 1956 and a master's degree in sanitary engineering from Harvard University in 1957.

In his 27 years with Camp Dresser and McKee Inc., Cullivan has gone from co-op student to senior vice president. His achievements include a commitment to providing basic sanitation and health services to the rural and urban poor of developing nations.

Cullivan's work for CDM has taken him to Brazil, where he served as community water supply adviser for the U.S. Agency for International Development, and to Bangladesh, where he worked as deputy project manager, providing advisory services in public health engineering for that country.

Returning to Boston in 1971, he assumed responsibility for all of CDM's international work, including major projects in Singapore, Bogota, Sao Paulo, Bangkok, Taipei, Dacca, and Istanbul. Since 1981, he has spent nearly 35 percent of his time away from home and logged almost 150,000 miles of travel per year.

Cullivan is a member of the executive committee of the International Federation of Consulting Engineers, The Singapore Institution of Engineers, and the Australian Assn. of Consulting Engineers. He is a registered professional engineer in Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, and Mississippi. He is a diplomate of the American Academy of Environmental Engineers and a fellow of the American Consulting Engineers Council.

In 1979, Cullivan traveled to the Peo-

Naval Commendation

Dobbins Cited For Cartoon

A bit of patriotism and the artistic talent of a veteran cartoonist was recognized at an award presentation recently at the Navy Recruiting District, Boston.

It has been 40 years since James Dobbins last received an award from the Navy, but instead of being cited for military heroics, this award was presented for his civilian contribution to the Navy Recruiting Command.

Two months ago Dobbins created a cartoon with the message urging young people to stay in school and complete their high school education. The poster featured a navyman with the message "We Want You To Finish School." With the complex equipment used in today's Navy, having a high school diploma is almost a must before one can join.

Rear Admiral J. D. Williams, Commander, Navy Recruiting Command, found the message worth sharing with the rest of recruiting nationally. For his efforts, on Friday, Dec. 2, Dobbins was presented an award by Captain Michael A. Rose, Commanding Officer, Navy Recruiting District, Boston.

It read in part, "Presented with gratitude to Mr. James J. Dobbins, in recognition of his contribution toward meeting the challenge of recruiting for the U. S. Navy."

Accompanying the award was a letter from Admiral Williams. It read in part, "Because of your cartoon, 'We Want You To Finish School,' our important message for young people to complete high school was seen throughout the country."

Dobbins is no stranger to the Navy. He served during World War II, and is the holder of the Air Medal and Distinguished Flying Cross. His son, John, is currently attending the Naval Academy Preparatory School in Newport, R. I., in pursuit of becoming a Naval Officer.

During the past 30 years, Dobbins has received more than 70 awards for his cartoons, including Christopher Literary Award, 1958, and Freedom's Foundation Grand Prize, 1961 and 1962. Accompanying him at the ceremony in Boston was his wife, Dorothy, their daughter Rita, and her husband Robert McGoldrick.

Dobbins says "I hope this cartoon carries the right message and will help the total recruiting effort. I have seen a renewed sense of patriotism lately."

Resident Develops Questionnaire

Tufts Chairman Rates High On Personality Scale

By Theresa Pease

Under no circumstances would you buy something that you suspect might be stolen.

The more people reveal about themselves to you, the more inclined you feel to reveal things about yourself.

Sometimes the most considerate thing one person can do for another is to hide a bit of the truth.

When you make a telephone call, you find yourself wondering what the operator is like as a person.

If you agree with all of the above statements, there's a good chance that you may rank high on a 29-point measure of interpersonal orientation — a sophisticated questionnaire revealing sensitivity to others and to yourself. Developed by Tufts psychological professor Walter Swap, a Winchester resident, along with a Tufts colleague, the questionnaire is useful in predicting how you might behave in certain sets of circumstances.

Another questionnaire, developed by Swap with former Tufts graduate student Cynthia Johnson-George, examines men's and women's perceptions of trust, while a third study, co-authored by Swap with past faculty member Joel Brockner, draws some surprising conclusions about the effects of placebos on self-proclaimed insomniacs.

What is this new chairman of Tufts' Dept. of Psychology up to?

As a social psychologist, Swap, a 40-year-old associate professor who has worked at Tufts since 1971, looks at the effects of environment on an individual's behavior. Expanding beyond the tradition of the discipline, however, Swap also examines the different attributes of different individuals' personalities in a given environment — in psychologist's jargon, he studies the interaction between "personal variables" and "situational variables."

For example, by using the sensitivity questionnaire — which Swap and colleague Jeffrey Rubin, also a Tufts Psychology professor, actually titled an "interpersonal orientation" (IO) scale and published in The Journal of Personality and Social Psychology earlier this year — Swap was able to predict correctly how a research subject would divide a sum of money with another person.

"Student volunteers who had achieved high IO scores were generally sensitive to praise and criticism and interested in other people's feelings, while those on the low end of the scale were more interested in economic considerations," Swap says, noting that those facts made it possible to anticipate rightly that the high IO subjects would divide the money equally with their partners, while those with low IO scores apportioned the money on the basis of who performed better the tasks they were being paid to do.

The study, an ongoing one which has involved administering the questionnaire to thousands of students, also includes follow-up interviews with extreme scorers at both ends of the scale to see what experience or traits they had in common. Perhaps not surprisingly, high IOs were more often female than male; more often humanities majors than mathematicians or engineers, and more often the products of two-parent homes than families of divorce.

While Swap is interested in learning from people, the reverse also holds true. Encouraged by rave word-of-mouth reviews of his teaching style, undergraduates flock to his classes by the hundreds. His "Introduction to Psychology" section, which was forced to cut off enrollment this semester at 240 students, may be the largest single class on campus. With a reputation which also places him in demand as an academic advisor, Swap — who apparently ranks very high on the IO scale — spends abundant time counseling both undergraduate and graduate students on all kinds of personal and academic concerns.

"Although he is not officially my advisor, I feel he is watching out for me," comments Kathy Lloyd, a Tufts graduate student who last spring sat on the joint faculty-student panel which selected Swap as the recipient of the 1983 Lillian Leibner

Walter Swap

Award, presented annually to a Tufts arts and sciences faculty member in recognition of outstanding teaching and advising.

Lloyd, who spent three years observing Swap's interaction with undergraduate students as his teaching assistant, explains, "I regard him as a model teacher. He is very articulate — and he not only keeps his subject matter interesting, but has a sense of humor that's inborn, a real knack for making people feel comfortable."

"I remember a girl approaching him after class one day to tell him that she had a problem taking tests — that she got really nervous. He asked what he could do to help, and I remember being very impressed with his ability to respond to her and to understand what she was saying."

Letters of support for Swap's nomination as the Lillian Leibner Award recipient came from graduate students, and faculty members praising his sense of humor, his ability to communicate, his availability to students, his patience and his capacity for provoking the thought processes that will start them down the roads to their own research projects.

One of three graduate students who jointly presented at an American Psychological Assn. convention in Montreal a research paper based on a project they had done in one of Swap's seminars testified, "Without Dr. Swap's encouragement, advice and assistance we would not have achieved this recognition."

"He is so comfortable when teaching. While some professors come across as condescending, nervous or even annoyed and bored with having to teach, Walt very clearly comes across as friendly, relaxed and doing something that he likes to do," wrote one faculty member who confessed to having adjusted her own teaching style for the better after observing his classroom performance.

Undergraduate course evaluation sheets used to support the award nomination included comments like, "This is the best course I've ever taken" and "You are the best teacher I've ever had."

Wrote one student, "He talks to his students on their level, treating them as intelligent adults, yet he is always willing to explain an idea that has not gotten across. Due to his courses I believe that I may very well want to go into social psychology."

"My philosophy," says Swap, "is that at the introductory level it is more important to excite than it is to communicate a body of knowledge. I believe my excitement about the subject gives me lots of nervous energy, and that nervous energy gets translated into contagious enthusiasm which makes the students want to go on and learn more in other psychology courses."

Swap, who was raised in Alaska and attended Harvard as an undergraduate, says that one of the formative factors in his teaching style was his participation in master's and doctoral degree programs at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, in "the tumultuous 60s."

"Some people at Michigan in those days thought it was unimportant to really teach anything. They believed that the function of education was merely to stimulate. They were doing away with exams and attendance requirements, not wanting to introduce 'coercive elements.' What I took from that was a belief in the value and desirability of stimulating an intrinsic desire to learn," Swap says, adding, "I happen to believe, however, that good requirements will not stifle the desire to learn, but will enable that learning to take a disciplined form that is beneficial."

Though Swap's enthusiasm for his subject may sound like a kind of fanaticism, it is the opposite quality his breadth of interests — that draws the praise of many of his colleagues. No narrow-minded specialist, Swap has a wide range of interests, and goes a long way with each of them," according to Rubin, who notes that in the yard of the Winchester home Swap shares with his wife Susan, a Wheelock College professor, and children Clifford, 8, and Alison, 5, he has a sizeable vegetable and flower garden that is a horticultural heaven.

While the same energy that characterizes his teaching, research and hobbies will undoubtedly be well spent on the new challenges he will meet as department chairman, Swap confesses that he will miss teaching more than the one course per semester he will continue to carry, especially a course like social psych research, which I developed myself," he says.

"What's most important to me in teaching is my relationships with my students," Swap explains, adding, "One of the most satisfying things is when I hear from or about one of my former students who is working in the field, when I learn that one of the tons of recommendations that I wrote contributed to a successful career. I got a journal today where a former student of mine was listed as the author of one of the papers. I thought that was rather nice."

JAMBOREE — Winchester's Paul Ferullo goes down racing a Woburn opponent for the puck in the Middlesex Hockey Jamboree Saturday in Stoneham.

Skaters Skid In Jamboree

BY LIZ WILLEN
At the very least, Winchester High School's hockey team can now claim they are a little more experienced.
Before they scrimmaged Woburn on Saturday, they had no idea of how they would play in a game. Three weeks of practicing skating fundamentals and drills gave them virtually no indication of what would happen once the referee's whistle blew and the puck dropped.
They found out the hard way, but at least the game didn't count.
In a jamboree, against Woburn on Saturday, they lost 2-0 after Woburn consistently capitalized on the Sachems' mistakes. And unfortunately, the Sachems made plenty of mistakes.

Fortunately, the Sachems were not discouraged.
"We've got a long way to go," admitted Coach Mike Whyte. "But I really wasn't disappointed because I think we really learned something."
And as long as the Sachems are learning, Whyte said he will be pleased. "We're a very young team," he explained. "Each time we play we'll learn a little something."

You've got to go at it a few things at a time."
That's the way Whyte has been structuring practices. And he is starting to see results. While the Sachems gave up two goals against Woburn, Whyte was still pleased with his goaltenders.
"All three goalies were superb," he said. "Peter Sullivan, Jim Chute and Jay Barbuto all took turns and they did a superb job."
The goalies couldn't stop Woburn from

Track Team Ready For '83

TRACKING PROGRESS — The members of the Winchester boys and girls track teams are getting ready for their upcoming Middlesex League indoor season, which begins Saturday against Burlington at the Lexington Field House (Winchester's "home" field) and will wind up with the state meets Feb. 10 and 11 and the all-league meet Feb. 17. The team has been hurdling, sprinting, throwing and leaping to get ready for the opener. Working on the shot put for the boys team is Eric Svahn, while Zoe Layden goes over the bar in the high jump for the girls.

Gymnastics Team Full Of Talent and Potential

BY LIZ WILLEN

It takes a combination of grace, strength and agility to make a good gymnast. And while most of the girls on this year's Winchester High School gymnastics team possess those qualities in abundance, it still remains to be seen whether or not their combination of qualities will win meets.

At the very least, they should make for some exciting routines — on the difficult four-inch balance beam, the uneven parallel bars, the vaulting horse and the tumbling mats.

Seventeen girls, at least seven of them freshmen, will be leaping, dancing and flipping all season, in the hopes of bettering their 13-4 record of last winter.

Only four seniors were lost to graduation. Four seniors have been on the team since their sophomore year. Several returning juniors round out a well-balanced team that looks like it could be one of the best Coach Carla Saunders-Scuzzarella has ever coached in her three years at Winchester High.

"The team looks excellent — we really have a lot of talent and potential," she noted recently. "If we put it all together we'll be all set."

Scuzzarella said the large number of freshmen who went out for the team will make a big difference. "It was a pleasant surprise to have so many good freshmen come out for the team," she said. "This year's team looks much better than last year's."

And last year's team looked good. A 13-4 record was nothing for the Sachemettes to be ashamed of, and Scuzzarella claims that her gymnasts had the best floor exercise routines in the league. But no matter how much potential her gymnasts have, it will take a little bit of luck along with talent to get the high scores necessary to win meets.

When it comes to events as nerve-racking as balance beam, staying on the equipment is what counts most. A whole point is deducted from a gymnast's score every time she falls off the beam.

And when girls like freshman Debbie Maida are performing moves like tuck back somersaults on the tiny piece of wood, the chances of staying on are even more threatened.

"It's a very scary event and the entire room is quiet during the routine," noted Scuzzarella. "Last year, it was one of our weakest events, but this year it should be one of the strongest."

Scuzzarella has several polished gymnasts, as well as promising newcomers, who have the potential to do extremely well on the beam. Aside from Maida, freshmen Kerrie Williams and junior Maura Cullen have demonstrated their proficiency on the four-inch beam. Pam Getson, who was a Boston Globe All-Scholastic winner last spring, is also back — joined by junior Lisa Reinfeld and Co-captains Danya Reich and Cathy Skahan.

The floor exercise event, considered one of the most beautiful to watch because of the combination of dance and tumbling routines set to music, will also be full of both new and old Sachemette talent. Although only six girls can compete in the event each meet, there are at least 10 tumblers Scuzzarella can choose from to perform.

"Everyone loves to do floor exercise, and we have some excellent dancers and tumblers," she noted.

Freshmen Mary Ann Driscoll, Debbie Maida, Robyn Rogers, Kerrie Williams, and Carrie Rowley will all get a chance to tumble in several of the 12 meets.

Also, returning gymnasts Pam Getson, Rhonda Glick, Charlotte Hartunian, Beth Jones and Cathy Skahan will be performing for the Sachemettes.

Scuzzarella is still not sure who will compete in vaulting or on the uneven parallel bars, an event she called "brutal."

"It will take the girls a while to pick up moves on the bars," she said. "It was our worst even last year, and we're working hard now — I see a lot of improvement

Stamina And Strength To Carry Wrestlers

It takes a certain kind of athlete to wrestle. It's not just anybody who wants to come face to face with an opponent, look him in the eye and take him down on a mat and hold him there.

Yet Winchester High School's wrestling team is full of athletes who will be anxious to do that in every meet this season.

They were so anxious in pre-season practice that a total of six bones were broken by prospective wrestlers.

Fourth-year coach Larry Tremblay recognizes that that's a lot of bones to break. Although he regrets the injuries, he appreciates the stamina, strength and sheer determination that his wrestlers have been showing in practice.

He also realizes that wrestlers are different from other athletes.

"It's a tough sport," he admits. "It really is. And we've got some tough wrestlers this year."

Tremblay said last year's 13-4 team was a good one — but he expects this year's to be even better. The Sachems lost several talented wrestlers — including Roger Baldacci at 100 pounds, Tom Funk at 107 pounds and John Medzorian at 147 pounds. But, happily, several new wrestlers are getting in shape to take their place.

And several returning wrestlers have been running, dieting, and polishing their moves to get ready for the season.

At 128, junior Jay Rice, who placed in the sectionals last year, is returning. Joining him are veteran Charlie Cowen and Joe Lawrence, who placed fourth in the sectionals last year.

Tremblay is looking forward to competent performances from Bob Anderson at 140 and Don DiVincenzo at 157. DiVincenzo went 11-0 last year before he was injured in the sectional finals.

Rounding out the squad are Chris Farrar and Steve Cullen, both coming off of broken ankles last year. Also returning are Tom Fortunati at 147, and heavyweight wrestler Jim Vancini.

Sachem newcomers are freshmen

The combination of determination, depth and strength at the middleweights will be strong points for the Sachems.

And although there are quite a few new and inexperienced wrestlers on the squad, Tremblay firmly believes the Sachems can take home some tournament trophies this season.

"I'm really looking forward to the tournaments," he noted. "They are a lot of fun for the team and I think we can do well. We'll all be working together to try and gain some more experience this year."

The Sachems' first meet will be at home against Saugus on Dec. 14.

Hopefully, the Sachem mat men can take down their opponents without any more broken bones about it.

Sirchis Ninth In Nation

When Barry Sirchis traveled to San Diego for the first time in his life last week, he was nervous and excited — and he wanted to win the Kinney National Finals.

He didn't win them, but his ninth place showing against 63 of the nation's best high school runners was nothing to be ashamed of. And his time of 15.18 for the three-mile course was one of his best ever.

Ninth place in a national championship, a trip to San Diego and an undefeated season are just a few of the memories Sirchis will treasure from this fall.

★ Hockey

scoring, though. The first goal materialized in the beginning of the second period, when a Woburn player capitalized on a partial breakaway and a Sachem defenseman got trapped.

In the second period, Woburn scored again when a Woburn player just scrambled into the goal before a Sachem stick could stop him.

The Sachems had a few good opportunities to score themselves — but they couldn't quite finish off their plays enough to sink a shot in the net.

Despite their inability to score, Whyte pointed out that several players showed substantial promise — so much that he is optimistic about the start of the season against Watertown on Wednesday.

"Bobbie Collins played really well at center," he noted. "And I was also pleased with Scott Binding, Bobbie Paine and Scott Paine."

Whyte said that forwards Steve Moros, Chris Giso and Mike Dellasalla also proved their potential on the ice.

"We just need to play together," he added. "And we'll get better. I know we'll get better."

Between Whyte's confidence, and the full schedule of games that Sachems have coming up, that prediction should be realized pretty quickly.

Youth Hockey Off To Flying Start

Winchester youth hockey has been off to a flying start ever since the junior-in-house program consisting of evenly matched teams has begun playing every Friday between 5 and 7 p.m.

In the most recent meeting, the Orange Tigers topped the Blue Knights 7 to 1, in a game much closer than the score indicates.

Top scorers for the Tigers were Len Nolan with three goals and one assist, and T.J. Raymond with one goal and four assists. Other scorers were Dan Elio and Andy Nolan.

Scoring for the Blue Knights was Dana Burke with assists to Jim Nagle and Dennis Phinney.

In the second game, the Green Machine edged out the White Sharks 2-1, in a great defensive game. The game featured outstanding goaltending by the Green Machine's Pete Karas and the White Shark's Philip Vultaggio. Green Machine scorers included John Ward and Matt Kromer, with assists to Peter Sullivan and Sean Colson.

The White Shark's only goal came from Mike McDonough on a fine centering pass from George Geoghegan.

The senior in-house program does not have the expected number of players and as a result, has only two teams which have played four times with two victories each.

Other towns are being contacted to find teams with the same age and quality of players. Before they have the chance to visit other towns, they will continue to hone their skills on each other.

Gerontology Program
The gerontology program at the College of Public and Community Service, UMass - Boston is accepting applications for the January 1984 term.

Massachusetts residents age 60 or older are eligible for a tuition waiver. Although preference is given to senior citizens who have some experience working or volunteering in the aging field, other interested persons working or volunteering in the field may apply. An internship in a senior agency setting is an integral part of the program.

The program offers a certificate in gerontology upon the satisfactory completion of two semesters of study and fulfillment of the internship requirement. The college is especially interested in enrolling older students who may want to continue at the university and acquire a BA degree.

The gerontology program has two sections, which offer the same courses but on different days of the week. Section 1 meets on Thursdays, morning and afternoon, and Section 2 meets on Wednesday, morning and afternoon.

★ Gymnasts

The team practices on the bars six days a week, during their strenuous three-hour practice sessions.

But it takes hard work and repetition to put together routines that must be performed in front of at least two judges in a silent gym.

It also takes a good measure of patience and pain in combination with the necessary strength, flexibility and coordination that a gymnast needs.

With all those qualities, plus the "spirit" and "cooperation" that Scuzarella is finding in this year's Sacemette gymnasts, it should be a winning season no matter what.

Holiday Safety Tips

Holidays are high risk times for fires. Christmas parties and family get-togethers frequently mean smoking in crowded areas, and can result in careless smoking habits. And careless smoking habits are the leading cause of home fires in the U.S.

Follow these easy steps for holiday time fire safety:

- After a party, lift all furniture cushions and look for live cigarette ashes. A hidden cigarette butt can lead to a smoldering cushion that bursts into flames hours later.

- Don't empty ashtrays directly into the trash. A partially lit cigarette can ignite wrapping paper or other trash, resulting in a house fire. Wet down ashtrays before emptying.

- Be careful with candles and other decorations.

- Be sure not to overload household wiring.

- Water a live Christmas tree often, and plan to remove it from the house two weeks after buying it.

Enjoy the holidays, but remember to keep your house fire-safe.

'Good Service, reasonable prices'

"A satisfied customer comes back," says Don Ward, owner and proprietor of Ward's Gift Shop in Medford since just after World War II. And, for the past forty years, Ward's "Good Service, reasonable prices," and standing behind his merchandise has kept them coming back. Many of Ward's longtime customers have moved away, but they still call to have china, crystal or figurines shipped to as far away as Florida, or California. He will ship to any part of the U.S.

Located at 224-26 High St. in Medford square, Ward's carries one of the widest selections of waterford crystal in the Boston area, along with three hundred patterns of china, limited edition plates, and hand-painted figurines. Among the 15-20,000 items at Ward's are such famous names as Lenox, Dalton, Picard, and Wedgewood.

While most orders are for gifts for anniversaries, weddings or showers, Ward says he has something for every occasion. Ready to assist customers in finding that "something special" is Dorothy, the Shop's manager for the past 27 years. She is on a first name basis with most of the shop's customers in keeping with the "personal touch atmosphere" Ward demands. Although he was watched Medford square "change like all squares have over the years," Ward has maintained a reputation for service, quality, and low prices. In fact, says Ward, "Word of mouth is my best selling point."

In addition to its wide assortment of items for anniversaries and weddings, Ward's Gift Shop will also carry a wide selection of Christmas patterns for the upcoming season.

The shop's hours are Monday through Wednesday from 9-6, Thursday and Friday 9-9, and Saturday 9-5:30.

Mexico Has The Perfect Antidote For Winter — The Warm Resort Of Cancun

By CAROL INTRAVIA

When my plane was making its final approach towards Cancun International Airport, I was struck by the stunning brilliance of the turquoise waters and mile-long, cloud white beaches that surround one of the newest of Mexico's resorts.

Ten years ago, an extensive search was conducted to find a resort in Mexico that would suit the needs of almost every traveler. With the assistance of com-

I found beautifully landscaped, ocean-front hotels, tastefully decorated restaurants, street vendors selling hand-made pottery and straw hats, and brightly colored Mariachi bands playing lively Mexican songs. What a difference one year can make!

My second trip to Cancun, was even more exciting because the resort area had been built up with several new hotels, restaurants and night spots, allowing for many more tourists to enjoy the puters, Cancun was found to be the ideal location — ideal because of its year-round sunshine, historic and archeological sites, powder white beaches, coves for snorkeling through schools of tropical fish, and its Mexican ambience. Since its discovery as the perfect resort, Cancun has grown from a population of 500 to over 75,000.

On my first trip to Cancun, I expected to see the typical 'honky-tonk' resort with rows of high-rise hotels and restaurants with blinking neon signs. Instead, spirit of this wonderful Mexican resort.

The El Presidente Hotel was one of the first in Cancun and its main attraction is a massive pool with a catwalk — suspension bridge across it. The Fiesta Americana is a lavish stucco, ocean-front resort featuring a courtyard with multi-colored lights, thatch-roof lounges and bridge-covered streams. It also houses Friday Lopez, one of Cancun's liveliest night clubs and restaurants.

Other waterfront hotels include, The Hyatt Regency, The Krystal Hotel, The Camino Real and the pyramid-shaped Cancun Sheraton Hotel. Most of these hotels feature gourmet restaurants, night clubs with live entertainment and a weekly Mexican Fiesta. There is also a Club Med, but you must be a guest of their hotel to enjoy their numerous facilities.

Cancun is divided into two sections — Cancun City and the "Hotel Zone." Both sections have shopping areas and restaurants but Cancun City is the most popular spot for shopping and authentic Mexican food. Try shopping on the side streets for better bargains (some proprietors will bargain. You'll also be pleasantly surprised at the prices and delicacies of the local restaurants.

★ Cancun

Cancun City can be reached by the local bus for approximately 25 cents from 6 a.m. until midnight, or by taxi from your hotel. The trip to Cancun City from the Hotel Zone takes about 20 minutes and, enroute, allows you to see the villages where the Mexicans live. Don't plan on shopping between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. — its siesta time and most of the shops are closed!

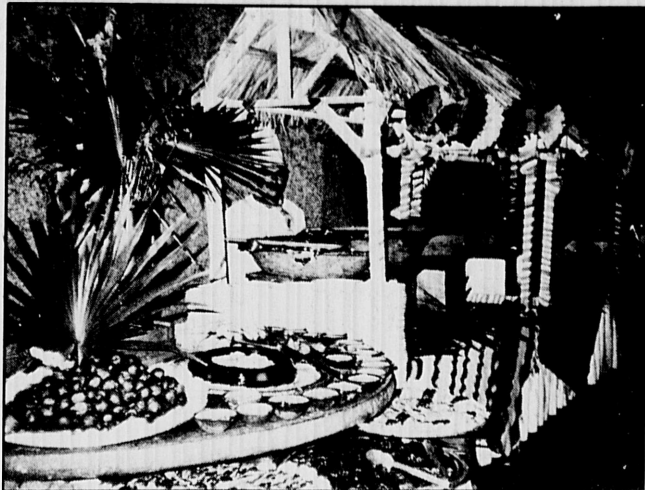

And if you are outdoors after midnight, you will be amazed at the construction workers who are repairing the roads or building hotels — they work at night to avoid the heat of the day.

The U.S. dollar has a strong purchasing power throughout Mexico and there are several areas in and around Cancun where you can put that purchasing power to use: The Ki-Huic Marketplace is located in downtown Cancun and is a great place to test your bargaining skills. The Moana Loa Shopping Complex is located on the lagoon side of Cancun and is the address of many specialty shops, houseware items and eating establishments. The El Ranchero shopping area located next to the Convention Center, is a great place to purchase Mayan hammocks, black coral, traditional Mexican dresses and wood carvings, and bargaining is practiced there as well. The El Parian Convention Center features banks, airline offices, a museum, a liquor store and many clothing shops. The Plaza Caracol is Cancun's first enclosed and air-conditioned shopping mall. It features many fine clothing and gift shops — but bargaining is not permitted here.

Restaurants

There is a wide selection of American, European, Mexican and Continental Restaurants in Cancun. Due to Cancun's geographic location, seafood (lobster, shrimp, sea bass and conche) is the highlight of most menus. But, you will also find many steak, chicken and pork dishes.

Before you order, however, you should check with your waiter on the spice content of your meal — some chefs use "hot" spices in their recipes for steak and chicken.

Many people are concerned about becoming ill due to the food and water in Mexico. Cancun has a modern water system that utilizes deep inland wells, which makes the water suitable for drinking, but nonetheless, you should not drink an excessive amount of the water or use an excessive amount of ice. (Please consult your physician for medical advice before your Mexican vacation)

Carlos and Charlies, located on the banks of the lagoon, is a fun eatery with jovial waiters, reasonable prices, and a very extensive menu. Cancun 1900, located in the convention center, is a intimate split-level restaurant featuring beef, fish and elegant desserts all at moderate prices. The Mauna Loa Restaurant features a Polynesian dinner show with dancing afterwards (two sittings nightly). Friday Lopez located at the Fiesta Americana Hotel, has generous portions, average prices and is one of the most popular restaurants and nightspots for all ages.

For the serious connoisseur with a healthy wallet, Maxime is just the place. This pink stucco building was formerly the residence of the Mayor of Cancun, which is evident in its beauty, elegance and charm. Gypsy's Pampered Pirate, located on the shore of the lagoon, is a thatched-roof restaurant resting on stilts. Both the food and the service are excellent.

At some Mexican restaurants, it is considered rude for the waiter to bring your check unless it is requested and this is the case at Pampered Pirates.

Several hotels have coffee shops, lounges and outdoor lunch grills for your enjoyment. At the Krystal Hotel, Bogart's Restaurant & Piano Bar is an expensive and very enjoyable dining experience.

For a great lunch or light dinner try the Pizza Otto overlooking the lagoon at the Mauna Loa shopping center.

Nightlife

If you like nightlife, take advantage of the afternoon seista period because most of the nightclubs don't open until 10 or 11 p.m. The Hyatt, Camino Real and Sheraton hotels all have discos that charge approximately $5 for admission and they also have lounges with a more intimate atmosphere and more relaxing music. The Karakatoa located in the Mauna Loa complex is another great disco except that it has a small dance floor.

Things to Do

For the water sport enthusiast, Cancun offers scuba diving, snorkeling, windsurfing, jet-skiing, deep sea fishing, and swimming. The Marina Mauna Loa offers jet-skiing and speedboat rentals. Cancun Water Sports offers parasailing service daily from the Calinda Hotel. If you are not staying at the Calinda, simply call them and they will pick you up.

If you are swimming on the east side of Cancun, beware of the severe undertow (watch the warning flags on the beach for the daily surf conditions). Cancun's 14 miles of beach is ideal for the beachcomber in search of the perfect sea shell as well as for the serious sunbather in search of the perfect tan. (Cancun's latitude and the reflective properties of the water may cause severe sunburns — you should not spend long periods in the sun at first; take it slow and easy and gradually build up time spent in the sun. Land sports include golf, tennis and bicycling.

The Isla Mujeres is a beautiful island five miles from Cancun which offers shopping, swimming through coral reefs and snorkeling. I took a few pieces of leftover breakfast bread and fed it to the multi-colored tropical fish while I was snorkeling. It was amazing to see the fish jump from the water and eat the bread right from my hand.

Isla Mujeres is full of winding and curving roads which makes moped driving very dangerous. There are only a few small restaurants on the island, so I packed a picnic lunch to eat while enjoying the breathtaking scenery.

Back at Cancun, if you have time to explore, you should visit the archeological sites of the Yucatan. One of the most popular spots is the ruins of Chichen Itza. It is two and one-half hours from Cancun by car or you may set up a tour through a Cancun travel agency. Chichen Itza is full of thousands of individual structures (ruins) that were once used by the Mayan astronomers who charted the planet Venus, which they thought was their god Kukulcan. There are many other archeological zones to explore: Uxmal, Labna and Kabah, all of which offer numerous ruins to explore and learn about the Mayan culture.

Cozumel is a quaint city south of Cancun and can be reached by ferry, air or hydrofoil. Outside of air transportation, the hydrofoil is the fastest passenger route to Cozumel and it's easily the most fun. It leaves daily at 8 a.m. from the dock next to the Convention Center, arriving in Cozumel at 9:30 a.m. Originally, Cozumel was a fishing village, but now it is a popular spot for scuba divers and sport fishing. Once in Cozumel, visit the Palancar Reef, a beautiful national park which is the home of the 2nd longest reef in the world. Cozumel is not very lively at night, but does have restaurants, hotels and museums and is a great place for a day trip.

General Information

Brush up on your Spanish — it is the native tongue of Cancun (the natives understand very little English). You need only a birth certificate voter registration card or a driver's license for admittance through customs — a passport is not necessary. A Mexican tourist permit will be issued to you on the plane for admittance into Mexico. Mexican banks are open Monday through Friday. The peso fluctuates rapidly and, therefore, the rates will change daily. There are hospitals in Cancun and you can check with the front desk of your hotel for more information.

Weather

The climate is very tropical and is warm year-round. The temperature rarely goes below 70 degrees Fahrenheit and averages 90 degrees. There is very little rainfall and low humidity.

Dress

Cancun is very casual, with most people wearing shorts and T-shirts. Only a few restaurants require jackets for men. Sneakers are a must if you are planning on climbing through the ruins or are on a boat to an island.

Cancun is accessible by most major airlines and some cruise lines. The majestic waters and sealife, the abundance of activities, and the specialty restaurants in and around Cancun make it one of the most exciting of Mexico's resorts.

MONEY DOWN THE DRAIN

Some authorities say close to 50% of the water from a municipal system is wasted. Consciously work at saving water until it becomes a habit.

Have leaky faucets fixed. An average leak wastes up to about $40 per year. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, add from $30 to $40 for heating the water.

If you have an old fashioned shower head — replace it. New ones on the market use less water and permit you to regulate the spray

Leaky toilet tanks waste from 3,000 to 5,000 gallons of water a month, costing you from $30 - $40 per year. They are simple to repair.

Use full loads when using your dishwasher or washing clothes. You'll not only save water, but fuel too. Some little things to remember: stopper your sink whenever you wash dishes by hand. Stack them and rinse them with a hose spray. Don't leave the water running while shaving. Keep drinking water in the refrigerator instead of running it for long periods prior to drinking.

Obituaries

56 Year Resident Madora C. Deroo Dies

Madora C. Deroo of Elmwood ave. died Dec. 9, three days before her 76th birthday, at the Winchester Hospital.

Mrs. Deroo was born in Winthrop and attended the Winthrop High School. She was a resident of Winchester for 56 years. She was a member of both the Grace Chapel in Lexington and the Order of the Eastern Star, Aletheon Chapter 154.

She is survived by her husband, George F. Deroo; her daughter, Elizabeth M. Knight of Winchester; her sons Charles F. Deroo and Robert C. Deroo, both of Winchester; and her sisters Ruth C. Graustuch and Marion C. Clarke of Winchester; as well as 11 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held at the Norris Funeral Home on Dec. 14. The service was performed by the Rev. Robert Wessel of Grace Chapel.

Burial was at the Puritan Lawn Cemetery in Peabody.

Memorial donations may be made to the Winchester Hospital Building Fund.

30 Year Resident

Aileen Everett Dies

Aileen Holly Everett, 77, died at the Pine Knoll Nursing Home in Lexington on Dec. 10 after a long illness.

Mrs. Everett was born in Luric, Va., and was a resident of Winchester for 30 years.

She was a manufacturing representative in the wholesale giftware business for over 35 years with her late husband, Allen T. Everett.

She was a member of the second Congregational Church in Winchester for many years.

She is survived by nieces and nephews and a friend, Mrs. Lou Cataldo of Wimsquam, N. H.

The burial was private and the funeral arrangements were made by the Lane Funeral Home.

A memorial service will be held at a later date in the second Congregational Church.

LETTERS POLICY

Letters to The Editor are welcome on matters of interest to local readers. Deadline for submission is 4 on Monday. Letters should be typed and double-spaced.

Saltmarsh Debates Bond Issue

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh vigorously debated the compromise version of the 1983 Transportation Bond Issue on the House floor during the recent all-night session.

As one of three House members appointed to the Joint Conference Committee to work out an acceptable compromise between the House and Senate versions of the bond issue, Saltmarsh said, "I am pleased that after many hours of deliberation our goal to provide a much-needed funding mechanism for transportation-related projects was achieved, and the measure sent to the Governor for his approval."

The total bond authorization of $617.8 million will generate $720.4 million in additional federal funds to the commonwealth, reported Saltmarsh. It is a comprehensive program which includes state and federal highways, bridges, local highway aid, bike paths, vans for the elderly and handicapped citizens, freight and passenger rail improvements, off-street parking, airports, and increased bonding authorization for expansion of the Hynes Auditorium.

"The fiscal restraints on our cities and towns was uppermost in our minds," said Saltmarsh, "and several sections of the bond issue provide necessary local assistance. There is $40 million in local aid for road replacement, Winchester will receive $55,202 annually for two years, and for the first time the money will be paid up front rather than be reimbursed after appropriation by the town."

The Off-Street Parking program was funded at $15 million and the Public Works Economic Development program was increased in committee by Saltmarsh from $5 million to $10 million. The MDC road construction projects, also of local importance, were funded at $27.7 million.

Increased bonding authorization for the Convention Center Authority from $100 to $200 million for renovation and expansion of the Hynes Auditorium in Boston insures completion of this project," said

Saltmarsh, "and will have a tremendously beneficial impact on our state's economy and the New England region in general."

"A first class, modern convention facility is a necessity in a state where tourism is the second largest industry," commented Whip. "Thousands of indirect jobs will be created and millions of additional revenues in sales, meals and room taxes will be produced. The minimum estimate of additional revenue is $20 million annually, but could go as high as $40 million, increasing the economic vitality of Massachusetts."

"This is the first major comprehensive transportation bond issue since 1961," said Saltmarsh, "and it will enable our state, cities and towns to continue to improve the infrastructure of our transportation system. I was pleased to have been able to provide input in its development, initially as the ranking member of the House Transportation Committee and finally as a member of the Joint Conference Committee."

Owner Of James Collins Plastering Dies

James Patrick Collins of Sargent rd. died on Dec. 11 at the Winchester Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mr. Collins, a resident of Winchester for over 23 years, was born in Paisley, Scotland.

He was a former owner and president of James P. Collins Plastering Co. of Boston and a retired manufacturer's representative for Woman's Clothing.

He was a member of St. Mary's Mr. and Mrs. Club, the Nahant Council 4682 Knights of Columbus, and the 4th Degree

Knights of Columbus J. F. Kennedy Assembly.

He is survived by his wife, Grace Killion Collins; his sister, Mrs. Isobell Methven of Florida; as well as several nieces and nephews.

The funeral will be held at the R. J. Costello Funeral Home on Thursday, Dec. 15, at 9:15 a.m., followed by a Mass of the Resurrection at The Church of St. Mary at 10.

Burial will be at the Wildwood Cemetery.

★Shopping

a toenail clipper in Winchester, the merchants would say that in hopes of selling toenail clippers as stocking stuffers. But in this case, the merchants know what they're talking about.

Besides toenail clippers (available at Woolworth's), the shops of the Center offer the bizarre, the cute, the fun and the practical.

Christmas shoppers can find hand-made knick-knacks, silky negligees, toys, clothes, records, as well as a thousand variations on the "gift item," that brass or glass knick-knack that you hope people don't stick in the attic three days after Christmas.

The shops also offered gifts that fit my most important criteria — they were inexpensive. On a reporter's salary, you don't go looking for presents at Neiman-Marcus.

Being one of the world's worst Christmas shoppers, I have never yet sat down in advance of the yearly shopping torture to decide what to buy anybody. So when I go Christmas shopping, I'm hoping to stumble upon a shop full of unique presents that will make the grandparents, uncles and aunts think I'd been shopping for weeks for just the right item.

Fortunately for my reputation as a careful gift-buyer, there are several stores in Winchester you can find one-of-a-kind items.

For the truly odd, wander into the Winchester Camera Shop on Waterfield rd., where owner J.J. Connelly collects an assortment of antiques as well as selling film and camera accessories (which in themselves are potential gifts for shutterbugs).

"People come in here looking for ideas," said Connolly. If your ideas run to an antique electrical meters, silver spoons or jewelry, you might just find something. Connolly's buy of the week is a 4 foot by 3 foot framed needlepoint of an Indian sun god. "It's only $10," said Connolly. "It would be a good gift for somebody who's into something like that."

The classic Winchester store for the "gift item" is the Praying Mantis on Thompson st., where owner Joan Blank brags that customers come from miles around to get her one-of-a-kind items.

But for my money — not that there is a lot — the top gift store in Winchester this season is Winslow Gifts on Main st., tucked up next to Dress Unique and Puffer Insurance.

Winslow's provided me with a gift for the person on my list who have been getting presents so long there is nothing left to give him. For my grandfather, who has been getting ties for the last two decades, I got a tie travel bag, a miniature version of a suit travel bag intended to keep cravats creased in flight.

The creator of the tie travel bag, "Paprika," has sewn a slew of items available at Winslow Gifts. I also picked up a "Paprika" gift for my 1-year old niece — her own miniature backpack made out of yellow gingham that embodies the word "cute."

Buying for the ladies on my list was a cinch. Robert's Candies and all of the downtown's three florists provide the basic candy and flowers. And for something special, there is always Temptations.

The walls of the tiny shop on Winchester terr. are filled with robes, negligees, camisoles and other silky creations in black, beige and white. Camisoles are only $11, and even long, lovely negligees go for $25. Shoppers can also pick up scented sachets for $3.50 or china pomanders that can double as Christmas tree ornaments for $8.

If you're talking Christmas ornaments, of course, Woolworth's is the place to go. The classic 5-and-10 has tinsel, tree stands, candy canes, streamers and anything else to hang on a Christmas tree.

Woolworth's is also a gold mine for stocking stuffers — soaps, colognes, perfume, candy, paperbacks, silk flowers, nail polish and a menagerie of tiny animals and toys.

It also had my big gift of the year — the much-heralded "Mr. Microphone," which, according to numerous late-night television commercials, allows its owner to sing like a real rock star over an FM radio. The perfect silly gift for my friend who's been working with bands for years.

Over at the Continental Cow, I picked up a basketful of gourmet treats for my refined uncle — fruit in cognac, hollandaise and bernaise sauces, caviar and

French sparkling apple cider that's a non-alcoholic version of champagne. Owner Ralph Carasso noted that he will make up gift packages out of any item in the store — "People can pick out the favorites of the person they're buying for, and we'll ship it anywhere," he said. "Some customers just give us their Christmas lists."

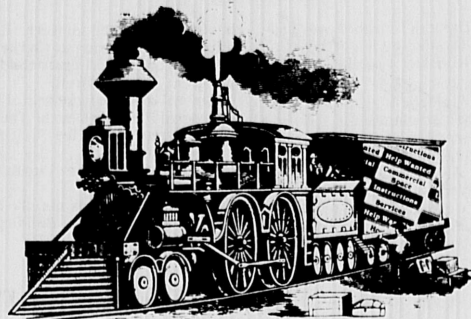

The buying spree continued all over the Center — sheet music, records and tapes at Winchester TV and Video (where prices on new record releases are the same as the big record store chains), sweaters at Arlene's and Chitel's, wallets at Black Horse Bootery, earrings at Winchester Ltd.

And that doesn't even include a visit to upper Main st., where you can pick up a baseball glove at Ruggles and Bowker Sports Shop or the fixings for a top-rate Chinese meal at Tahnk's Gourmet Kitchen.

For all you Christmas shoppers who haven't crossed off the last name on the list, many of the Winchester merchants will be open into the evening and on Sunday during the week before Christmas.

The only problem is, once the word gets out about shopping in the Center, the lines might get a little bit longer.

Inside Christmas Caroling

Winchester residents can have a traditional Christmas Eve of carol singing by coming to the Common Saturday night between 7 and 7:30. The Fortnightly — Winchester Women's Club is sponsoring its annual evening of caroling, which will feature instrumental music by the Winchester High School Band, directed by Priscilla Miller.

Mother, 41, Is Killed

A 41-year-old Myrtle terr. woman was killed in an accident Saturday in Woburn. Joanne Schuurman, a widowed mother of six, died when she fell out the passenger door of a moving van and struck her head on the pavement. — Page 3.

Sharing On Holidays

For those who are away from their families or alone on the holidays who would like a Christmas dinner, a group of residents has begun a "Share A Meal" program, where volunteers bring a plateful of their own Christmas feasts to the elderly and the lonely. — Page 13.

Acting Supt. Is Leaving

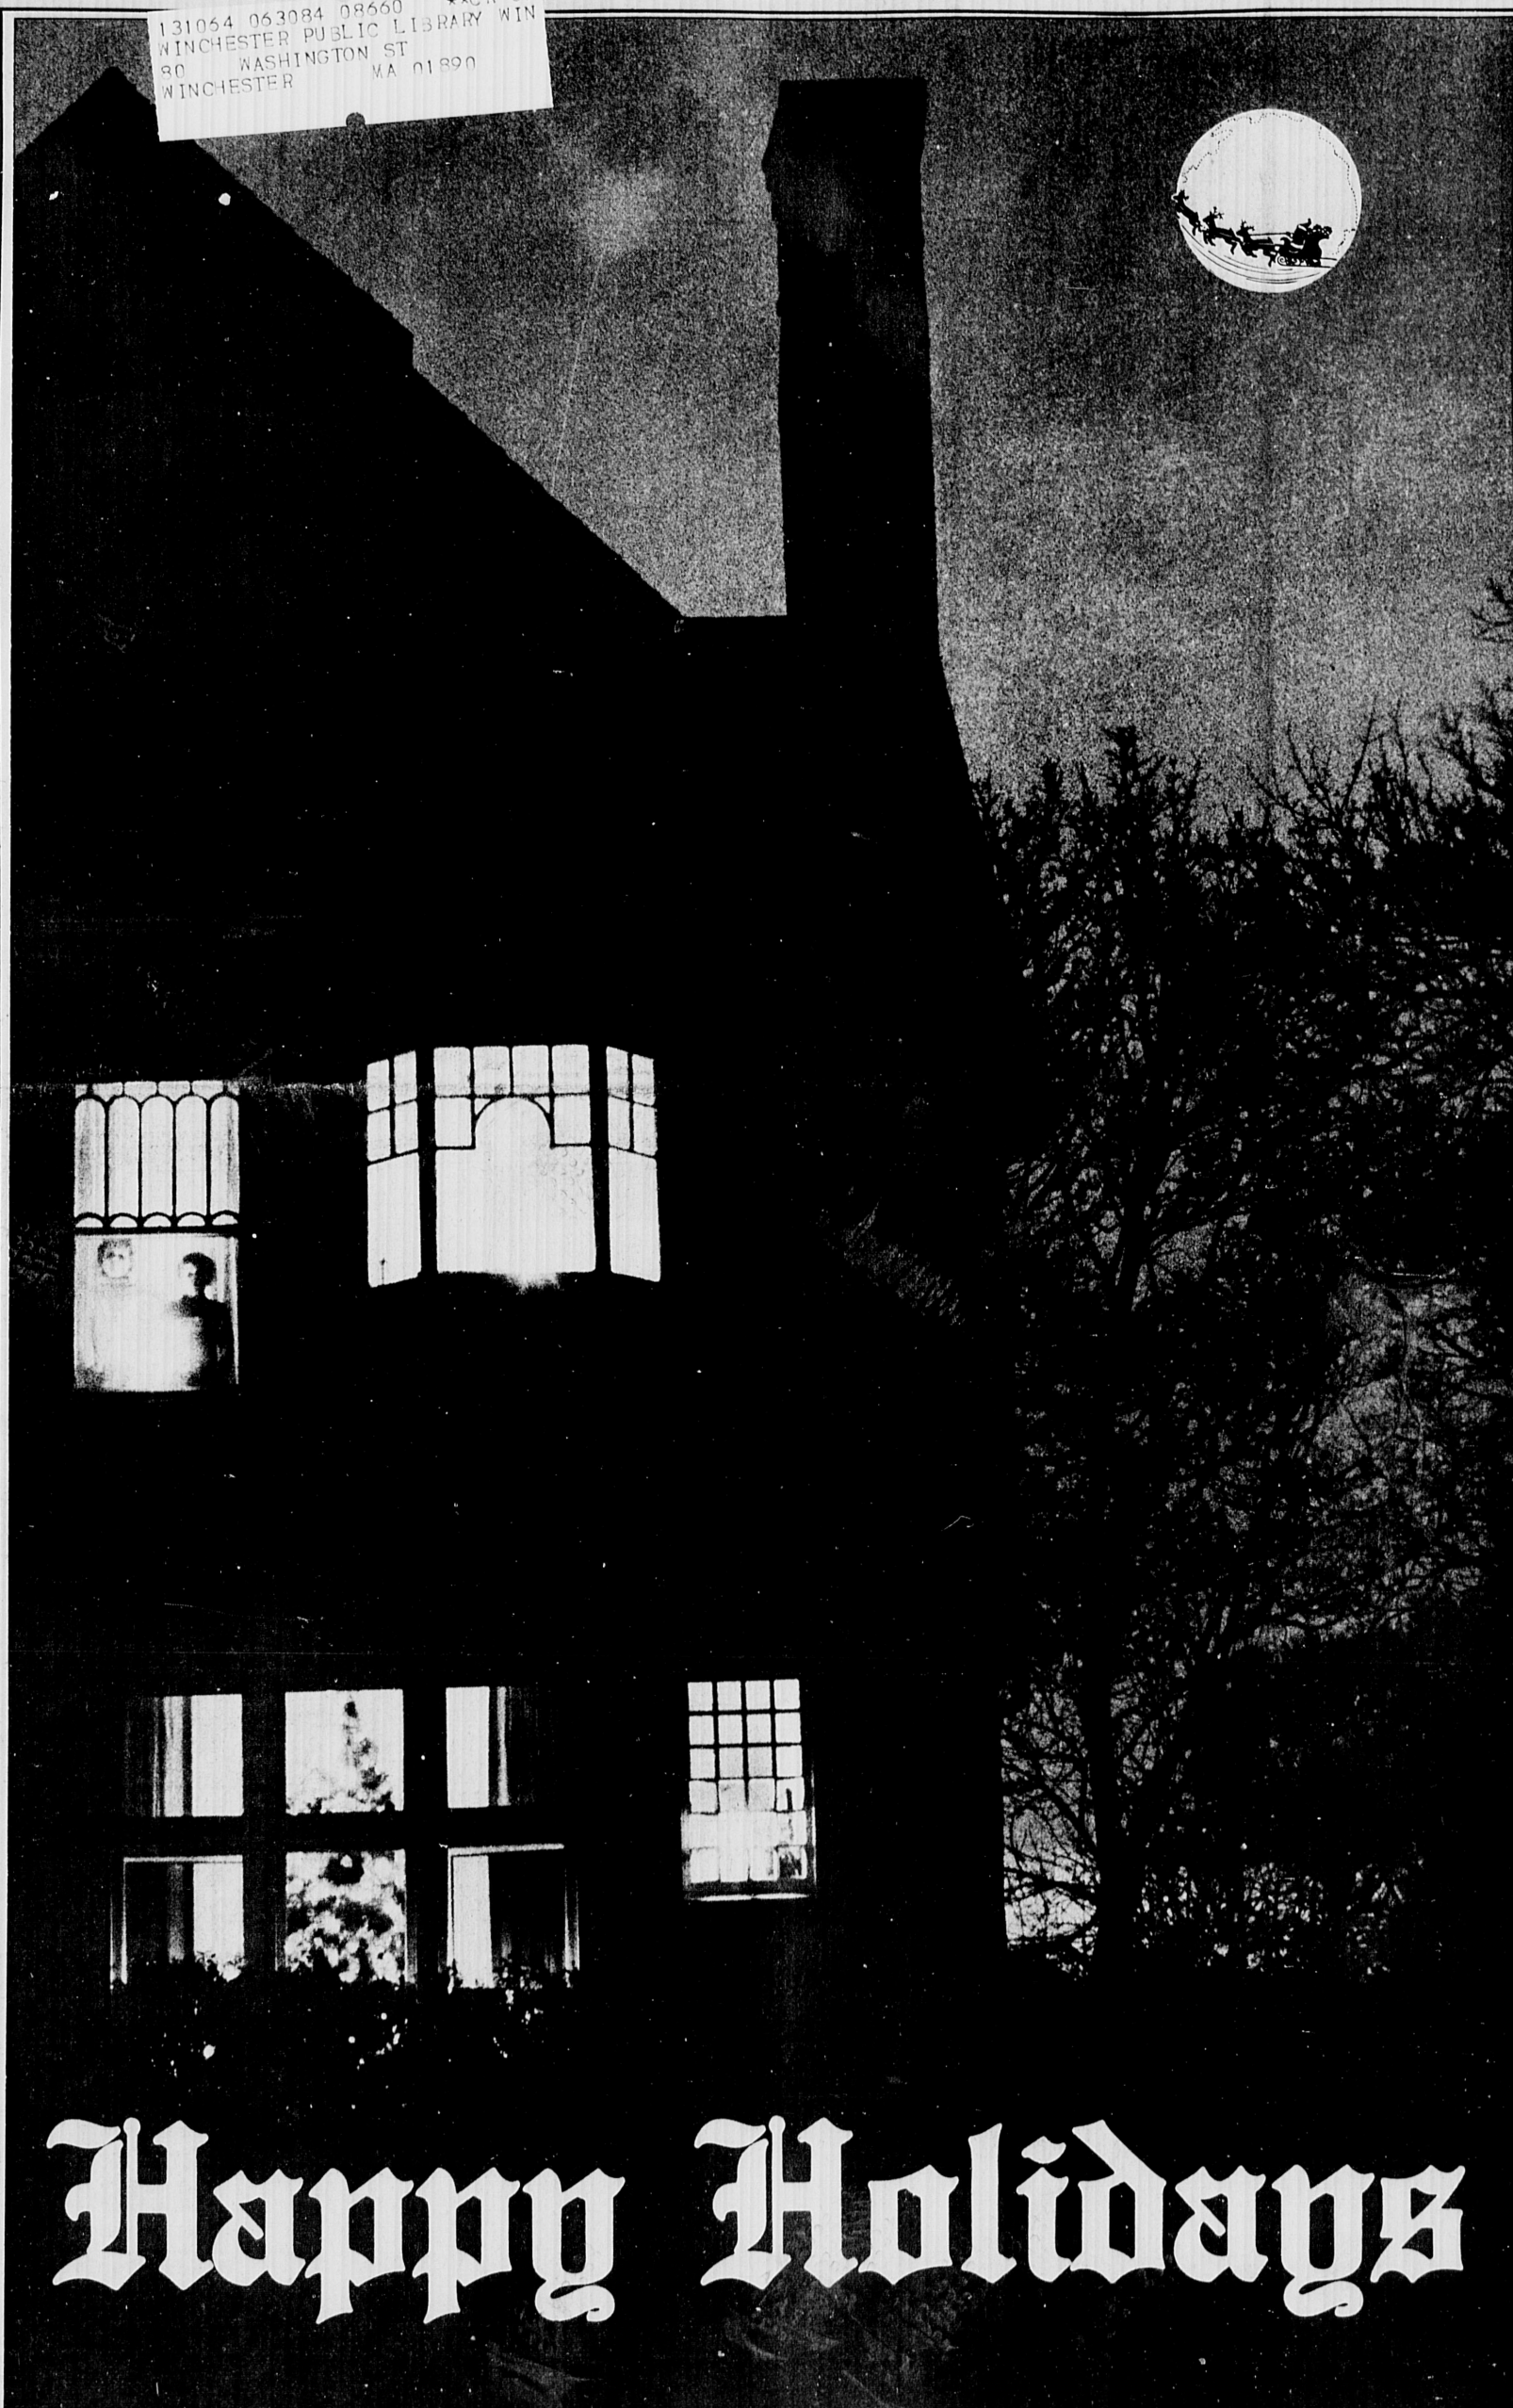

Robert Forest, who was due to go back to his job as Ambrose School principal after acting as Winchester's superintendent of schools for six months, has taken a leave-of-absence from the Winchester school system. Forest said he wants the time off to write a spelling textbook. — Page 3.

Musical Founder

Corie Nichols says that music has always been a big part of her life, and she wants it to be part of the lives of others. So the Oxford st. resident helped establish the Winchester Music Program, which provides lessons to junior high and high school students. — Page 25.

Goodwill Donations

You can get a tax deduction for 1983 on any clothing or household goods you donate to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries — if you make the donation before Dec. 31.

Clothing in good condition (not stained or torn, shoes, housewares, toys and games, drapes and linens may be left at the Morgan Memorial attended donation trailer in Arlington, at the Stop & Shop, 905 Mass. ave., in Lexington at the MediMart Shopping Center, Bedford st., and at Assembly Square Mall in Somerville.

Trailers are open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The attendant will give you a tax receipt for your donation. You claim the fair market value of all the goods donated on the receipt.

Christmas Caroling

The Fortnightly traditional Christmas caroling will be Christmas Eve, Dec. 24, at 7 to 7:30 on Winchester Common.

Instrumental music will be by Winchester High School Band under the direction of Priscilla Miller. The public is invited.

Defensive Driving Workshop

A two-day program on defensive driving for older drivers will be held in two three-hour sessions at the Jenks Senior Center on Dec. 28 and 29 from 9 a.m. to noon.

Developed by the American Assn. for Retired Persons, the program looks at the hearing, seeing and slow reaction time of older drivers, and shows ways to make drivers more alert.

Winter Recreation Sign-Up

Registration for the upcoming winter season of programs, sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Dept., will be held Saturday, Jan. 7 and Monday through Friday, Jan. 9 through 13. Call Recreation Dept. for specific times and dates.

Alzheimer's Disease

Next monthly meeting of the Alzheimer's Disease Support Group for relatives will be held on Thursday, Dec. 22, at the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center, 441 Main st., Woburn, from 7-8:30 p.m. The group is free and will be led by Esther Gruber, M.A.

ABC Bottle Drive

The Winchester ABC Program will be holding a returnable bottle and can drive on Saturday, Jan. 7, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Bottles and cans will be collected in the Sons of Italy parking lot and by volunteers canvassing neighborhoods.

To get bottles and cans collected, call Richard Goodlatte, Mystic Valley pkwy.

Health Insurance Program

Health Insurance, Medicare and Social Security will be discussed by Wendell Coltin, Blue Cross/Blue Shield advisor and syndicated columnist on senior matters, during a meeting at the Jenks Senior Center Jan. 14 at 1:30 p.m.

The program is sponsored by the Education Committee of the Winchester Seniors Assn.

Mini-College Program

Every Wednesday after school at 2:15 p.m. in the Cafeteria of the High School, the Guidance Office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

Getting Goosed

FLYING INTO TOWN — Mother Goose visited the Muraco School last week to entertain and educate the pupils with her collection of nursery rhymes. Besides telling rhymes, the visitor from 1600s Boston taught the pupils a little about reading, history, music, dance and of course biology (at least of a goose). (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

Star Office Closed Monday

The Star office will be closed on Monday. News copy should be brought or sent to the office by Friday afternoon. Advertising deadline is Tuesday. Classified ads can be placed at 729-8100.

Goodwill Donations

You can get a tax deduction for 1983 on any clothing or household goods you donate to Morgan Memorial Goodwill Industries — if you make the donation before Dec. 31.

The trailers are open Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The attendant will give you a tax receipt for your donation.

New Program For Retired To Be Presented In Three Sessions

The American Assn. for Retired Persons (AARP) has developed a program entitled, "55 ALIVE," to be presented in two three-hour sessions at the Jenks Senior Center on Dec. 28 and 29 from 9 a.m. to noon.

It is based on hearing, seeing, and slow reaction time among older drivers who do not notice their changes in driving habits. With the onset of years, there is a decline in focusing ability and distance and depth perception that is normal in the aging process.

To make drivers more alert, the workshop will use workbooks, engage in small group discussions, and participate in exercises to test skills. The rules of the road will be reviewed with each participant having an up to date copy of the regulations from the Registry of Motor Vehicles.

Frank Martin, AARP assistant coordinator of defensive driving in the state of Massachusetts, will conduct the two morning sessions using slides and other media to develop greater awareness concerning safety on the road.

This course is sponsored by the Education Committee of the Winchester Seniors Assn., and will be well worth the time invested in reexamining ways to prevent accidents. Advance registration at the Jenks Senior Center is required.

Coltin To Speak At Jenks

Wendell Coltin, Blue Cross and Blue Shield advisor on senior concerns, will be the guest speaker at the Jenks Senior Center during a special program on health insurance sponsored by the Education Committee on Wednesday, Jan. 14, at 1:30 p.m.

Coltin is a well-known syndicated columnist on senior matters pertaining to Medicare and Social Security. For many years he was a staff writer for The Boston Herald until the paper was sold. He is a knowledgeable and interesting speaker, — one who has much to offer. It is hoped that many people will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the meeting and to get some of their insurance questions answered.

Mother Of Six Killed In Woburn Van Accident

BY LIZ WILLEN
A Myrtle terr. woman was killed Saturday after she fell out of a moving van in Woburn and struck her head on the pavement.
Joanne Marie (Cappello) Schuurman, a 41-year-old widowed mother of six, was pronounced dead at 8:55 Saturday night, less than an hour after the accident.
Schuurman was a passenger in a 1983 Ford Econoline van driven by 19-year-old Kevin Holding, who lives at the same address as Schuurman. According to Woburn police reports, the van was traveling north on Bryant st. towards Playstead ave. when the accident occurred.
Holding told Woburn police he hit a bump that caused the door to open suddenly, and Schuurman fell out of the van and onto the sidewalk, striking her head on the pavement. She was knocked unconscious.
Holding rushed to the nearest telephone to call for assistance, and Woburn Fire Dept.'s emergency medical technicians administered aid. Schuurman was transported to Choate Memorial Hospital, where she died 55 minutes after the accident. She had lost a lot of blood in that hour, according to police.

Woburn Police Chief Leo McElhiney called Schuurman's death a freak accident. "It was the hand of God," he said.
McElhiney said that Woburn police officers have thoroughly investigated the accident and found no evidence of criminal negligence. However, the State Police's Emergency Fatal Team is still investigating.
"We've taken pictures, questioned witnesses and taken all kinds of measurements," said McElhiney. "No one saw or heard anything. There were no witnesses."
McElhiney said there was no evidence of alcohol or drugs, and no charges have been filed against Holding.
Schuurman, who was a quality control inspector for an electronics firm, was a resident of Winchester for seven years. (See obituary for further information.)

Real Estate Tax Bills Mailed; Payments Due On Jan. 13

All first payment real estate tax bills have been mailed for fiscal year 1984. Payments are due in the Tax Collectors' Office Friday, Jan. 13, 1984.
New home owners who purchase property after Jan. 1, 1983, and have not received a real estate tax bill should contact the Tax Collector's Office for a duplicate. All bills have been mailed in the record owner's name as of Jan. 1, 1983.

The Tax Collector's Office will be extending office hours as follows for taxpayers wishing to make payment before the end of the year:
Thursday, Dec. 29, 8:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.
Saturday, Dec. 31, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Vans For Patients In Need Of Radiology

The New England Medical Center provides a van service to transport Winchester Hospital patients who require regular — sometimes daily — treatments in the Department of Therapeutic Radiology.
The transportation program was implemented by Hywel Madoc-Jones, M.D., Ph.D., Chairman of the Dept. of Therapeutic Radiology at New England Medical Center, who realized that traffic and parking posed unnecessary stress for those patients needing to travel to the Medical Center on a frequent basis. The van service is designed to eliminate these problems by picking patients up and returning them to Winchester Hospital after receiving treatment.

Funded by the Dept. of Therapeutic Radiology, the transportation program is provided free of charge. If space permits, patients visiting other departments at New England Medical Center may also use the free transportation service.
The van — which comfortably accommodates 12 passengers — also services Newton-Wellesley, Lawrence Memorial, and Whidden Memorial Hospitals. For additional information or scheduling, patients can contact Jeanne Adler at New England Medical Center.

Volunteers Needed On Two Committees

The Board of Selectmen is seeking volunteers to serve on two committees.
Committee On Names
This committee recommends names of public buildings and lands to Town Meeting.

Fair Housing Committee
This committee will oversee and coordinate the implementation of the town's Fair Housing Policy.
Citizens interested in serving should send a letter of interest to the Board of Selectmen, Town Hall.

Flynn To Remain At Ambrose School

Forest Takes Leave Of Absence

GOODBYE, MR. FLYNN — Teachers and students at the Ambrose School bid farewell to George Flynn, who has been acting as principal for Robert Forest, who has been acting as superintendent. To tell Flynn they liked his act, kindergarten students presented him with a life-size model, showing "We are always happy to see your face" and "We know you love us in your heart." But Flynn won't be leaving after all — he will remain Acting Principal of the Ambrose School until Dr. Forest returns in August.

BY LIZ WILLEN
After six months of serving as Acting Supt. of Winchester schools and liking it, Dr. Robert Forest has decided to take a six-month leave of absence without pay to pursue another interest area — educational writing.

Forest will spend the next six months working with teachers to revise a textbook for Curriculum Associates in Wellesley, a publisher he has already worked with to assist in writing and publishing spelling textbooks.

The leave of absence that the School Committee unanimously approved for Forest on Monday night means that there will be no more "trading places" among the principals in the school system this year. George Flynn will continue to act as principal of the Ambrose School until Forest returns to his old position in August.

"George Flynn has done an exemplary job for me and for the town," noted Forest, who said that parents and staff were happy with Flynn's performance as Acting Principal and Maryann Benjes' performance as a sixth grade teacher at the Vincent Owen School in Flynn's absence.

"Both schools are in good hands and the timing is right — this will be the least disruptive arrangement," he added.

School Committee member Sandra Rodgers stressed that it was the timing of Forest's leave that made the arrangement so acceptable.

"If it were any other time, we might not have granted Forest's request," she said. "But this is a great opportunity for him and it doesn't disturb the school system."

Forest noted that the new position will provide a fitting ending to a "learning year."

"This will be just another phase of it — I'm on a roll and I believe it's a good time to make an investigation. I've wanted the chance to finish some writing I've been working on for a long time."

School Committee Chairman Constance Papas praised Forest's performance as Acting Superintendent and said she was happy that he would have the opportunity to take advantage of something he's always wanted to do.

She added, "We're looking forward to getting you back in August with new and creative ideas."

Forest will return to the Ambrose School on Aug. 19.

Music Boxes

On Dec. 29 and 30, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., a display of "Music Boxes" will be presented at the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington, in the lobby area. This free display of charming and unusual music boxes includes an old-fashioned hurdy-gurdy (monkey organ) and is being presented by the Music Box Society International, East Coast Chapter.

"Music box" is a popular term covering the broad field of automatic musical instruments in general. These range from small table-top musical boxes that use a cylinder or disc to play tunes on a steel musical comb to large orchestras and circus organs which have the musical capability of a symphony orchestra or a military brass band.

In between these extremes are dozens of other types of mechanical music makers, including reproducing pianos, automatic violin-playing machines, clocks with musical attachments, musical toys and novelties, the familiar player piano, and many more.

Twelfth Night

A Twelfth Night Jubilee will be held Jan. 14 at 8 p.m. and January 15 at 3 p.m. An old-fashioned celebration of the last days of the Christmas season with music and dance, mime and magic will send off Christmas and bring in the new year. Students of all ages will join the Pinewoods Morris Men, Sussex Song and Bells, Calliope Consort, bagpipes, and The Tom Fools at the Performing Arts Center, Concord Academy, Concord. For tickets contact Calliope Consort, P. O. Box 63, Carlisle, 01741, or buy them at Richardson's Drugs in Concord.

Pre-School Gym and Swim

The Cambridge Family YMCA, 820 Mass ave., Cambridge, is offering a program of pre-school gym and swim for children 6-weeks through kindergarten. The next session begins the week of Jan. 3, and runs for seven weeks. Coordination, balance, large muscle development, basic tumbling and water orientation are just a few of the skills incorporated.

Museum Hours

The Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington, has changed its Sunday schedule effective Jan. 1, to noon to 5 from noon to 5:30 p.m.; all other hours remain the same, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., through March.

From April through October, hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 5 p.m.

Police Log

Thursday, Dec. 15

• A Hinds rd. woman lost control of her 1983 Cadillac as she was backing out of her driveway. According to police reports, the car rolled through a neighbor's yard, smashed a tree and then hit the rear of a house on Royalston ave. Damage was done to the tree, the house and a 10-year-old passenger, who was treated and released at Winchester Hospital.

• Employees from the Dept. of Public Works reported that a rock was thrown at their pickup truck on Amberwood dr., breaking the windshield on the passenger side.

• An Englewood home was entered and ransacked while the owners were out of the house. According to police reports, a storm window was pried open and a bedroom window pushed up to gain access to the home. It was not determined what was missing, and the intruders were not found.

Friday, Dec. 16

• A Newton man was arrested on an outstanding warrant for traffic violations and ordered to pay $380 to the town of Winchester.

Saturday, Dec. 17

• The insulation of a Boston and Maine boxcar was found in flames at the end of Lowell st., and Winchester firefighters, who put the blaze out suspected arson. According to police reports, charred pieces of wood were discovered all over the ground. B&M officials were notified and are investigating the matter.

• An 18-year-old Sheridan cir. man was arrested for operating under the influence of alcohol after police found him slumped over the steering wheel of his car at the traffic light at the intersection of Main st. and Skillings rd.

According to police reports, Andrew Strange was found asleep at 6 a.m. with his car in drive, his foot on the break and the motor running. Police took Strange to the station where he was issued a breathalyzer test and a citation.

Sunday, Dec. 18

• A Washington st. resident reported that vandals smashed the rear window of his 1979 Buick sometime on Saturday night.

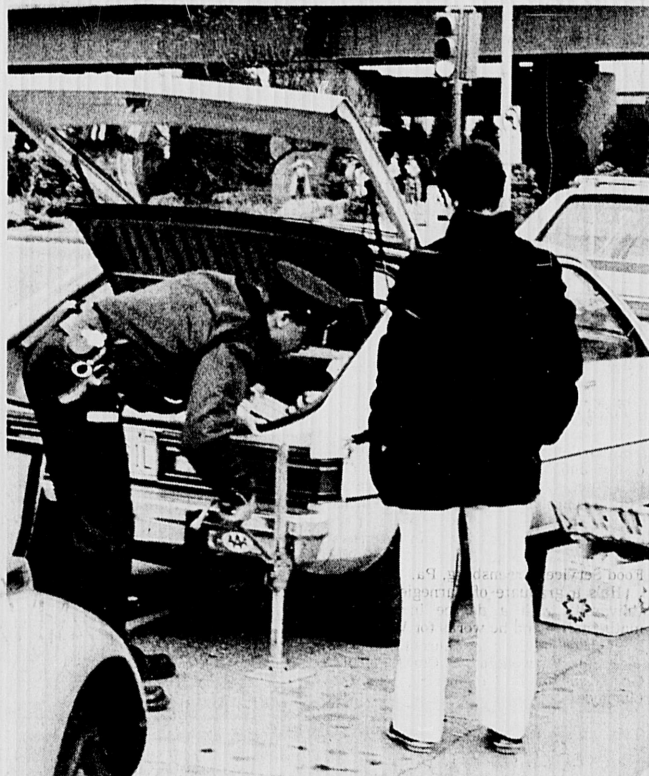

• A Wolcott rd. resident reported that his mailbox was knocked down and newspapers were scattered all over his yard.

• Police received reports that a male with dark curly hair in a big white car was exposing himself to women in the area of Nathaniel rd. The area was investigated but the flasher was not found.

• Reports of a vicious dog in the area of Robinson cir. turned out to be nothing more than a frisky puppy, according to police reports. Police received a phone call about a dangerous dog but turned up nothing but the puppy who was returned to its owner.

• A food fight that broke out at the Knights of Columbus Hall was loud enough that residents in the area called police and asked them to break it up. However, when police arrived shortly before 2 a.m., the area was cleared out and the food was cleaned up.

• A 25-year-old Woburn woman sustained multiple injuries in a bike accident after she flipped over the handlebars of her 10-speed bicycle and landed face up on Highlandview ave. According to police reports, the woman lost consciousness and was transported to Winchester Hospital by Fire Dept. EMTs. She was treated and released.

Winchester Begins To Tighten Its Budget Belt

Department Heads Asked To Cut Budgets By Up To 7 Percent

School Dept. Expected To Cut Nearly $300,000 Next Year

By DAVE LEECO

The town's tightening financial situation has forced Town Manager Thomas Groux to request town departments to cut their budgets by as much as 7 percent next year.

Recognizing that a new approach to the budget will be needed for next year — when the town is facing a $602,000 deficit if no cuts are made — Groux is going about putting together the budget a little differently.

Instead of asking department heads to submit their ideal budgets, and then cutting from there, Groux has asked all the department heads to find their own ways to cut.

Depending on the department, Groux has requested cuts between 0 and 7½ percent.

Groux said Tuesday that until he meets with all the department heads, he does not want to say which departments will receive the deepest cuts.

In general, he added, large cuts will not be made to programs which have received strong support from the selectmen, Finance Committee and Town Meeting, or departments that have suffered reductions in the past.

In deciding which departments would get the largest cuts, said Groux, "we look-increases in MDC assessments will also push up the town's spending.

In his five-year financial forecast prepared last summer, Groux estimated a $500,000 deficit for next year. Since then, that figure has been increased to $602,000 because Groux fears increases in MDC and other state charges.

With the new budget system, Groux will be able to show the Finance Committee and Town Meeting exactly what is being eliminated to get rid of the $602,000 deficit.

"We're telling the department heads, 'We'll give you a dollar figure and you tell us what you can accomplish with it — what services you will provide, and what services you ordinarily provide that you now can't, as well as what services you might ordinarily expand that we now just can't support,'" explained White.

"If Town Meeting then wants to know exactly what raising the water rates will buy them, they can see it," continued White. "They will have a choice between services and lower costs."

Besides giving Town Meeting members a shopping list of endangered programs, the new system gives department heads the feeling they have some control over the cuts.

ed at reversions — which departments may have been budgeted for more than they needed. And we looked at areas where there may be some softness — services that aren't in demand. We also looked at areas that have not been cut before."

Exactly what will be cut, however, is up to the department heads — Groux only told them how much money they could expect.

From the department heads' suggestions, Groux will draw up a list of services and projects that will have to be dropped because of the cuts.

"With the special problems we have financially this year, we really needed to come up with a process that defines exactly what the citizen gets for his money," said Rick White, assistant to the town manager. "We always do that to some extent, but this year we needed to do it a little bit louder."

This year is special because it will be the first in which the Proposition 2½ limit on the tax levy will force a budget deficit if no cuts are made. Under Prop. 2½, the town can only collect 2½ percent more taxes next year than this.

But even though the town's revenues are held down, its costs aren't. Pension, insurance and debt service costs are expected to rise next year. White noted that

By LIZ WILLEN

The first round in the battle of the School Dept. budget has begun — and it looks like it's going to be a tough fight.

At a School Committee meeting last week, the elementary school budget was presented so that members could get a preliminary idea of some of the options that he ahead as they begin to prepare the final budget. Each budget will be presented and voted on separately before January.

The presentation made one thing perfectly clear — the options are not exactly numerous considering some of the restrictions the Proposition 2½ tax limitation law imposes on the budget.

Coupled with the target budget figure of $9.9 million that Town Manager Thomas Groux expects the School Dept. to aim for (which Acting Personnel Director Robert Fitzgerald told the School Committee represents a $298,000 — or 3 percent — reduction over the current year's operating figure of $10.3 million), it looks like there could be a lot of cuts to come.

Members of the audience seemed a little bit shocked at the figures (one resident stood up and told the School Committee that the school system had already hit "rock bottom"). And Fitzgerald implied the administration didn't really think it could cut the budget that much.

"Some of the numbers can be reduced," he noted, citing the negotiated raises for principals, custodians, and central office personnel. Fitzgerald also noted that cuts could come in other areas such as money set aside for sabbaticals and a full-day kindergarten.

"My feeling and my hope is that it is an unrealistic budget," he told the School Committee. "We have to have more money to run the kind of school system we need — the pie simply isn't big enough and we have to increase our piece of it."

And while Fitzgerald stressed that the reduction would be a difficult one, he also acknowledged that the $18 million left after expenses to divide among the town's departments could not possibly be enough.

The School Committee received assurance earlier this month from Finance Committee Chairman Daniel Ciotti that there are no new sources of revenue in the town.

The gloomy budget predictions made the evening even more frustrating for the parents and teachers who packed the Lynch meeting room to listen to a carefully prepared presentation urging that Winchester adopt a proposal for a full-day kindergarten.

Many of the same parents who had sat through discussions of kindergarten staffing earlier in the year came once again to voice their support for both the all-day kindergarten and a proposal of Acting Supt. Robert Forest to increase kindergarten staffing to reach a student-teacher ratio of 22-to-1. The School Committee had decided to put off adopting the proposal earlier this month.

"Dr. Forest has given you a reasonable, conservative and worthwhile proposal to resolve the battle of kindergarten staffing," said audience member Neil Hurley, who attended previous sessions on the issue. "I honestly don't understand why you don't want to resolve the issue."

School Committee member Sandra Rodgers told Hurley that Forest's plan wasn't disappointed because the School Committee didn't want to resolve the issue. She said it was put off until the rest of the budget could be seen and dealt with.

And while Forest acknowledged that his proposal was a modest one, he also admitted that the budget "is in a sorry state and even with the best scenario, there are going to have to be cuts."

School Committee member Cathy Alexander warned the audience that those cuts would not be easy to make without seriously deleting programs.

"There are not small areas where you can reduce it," she said. "If we're looking to cut dollars it will be very difficult to find them in the elementary school programs."

At the moment, the elementary school budget contains a total of $3,050,090 ($2.5 million for personnel services, $468,360 for expenses and $17,989 for equipment.)

And while the all-day kindergarten program might have sounded great to working parents and those concerned about teacher-pupil ratios, the idea of an additional expense at a time when money is especially tight is not an especially welcome one this year. The projected incremental cost of the full-day kindergarten would be $91,986.

The School Committee will continue to grapple with the budget and will be holding preliminary budget hearings for the next few weeks. A copy of the completed budget will be published in The Star in January.

WHA Appointment Trial Begins Monday

The trial over a controversial appointment to the Winchester Housing Authority began in Middlesex Superior Court Monday with a Middlesex judge agreeing to combine the suit brought by 15 residents with one brought by the state Attorney General's office.

Both the taxpayers and the Attorney General's office contend that July's appointment of Mary Pronski to a four-year term on the Winchester Housing Authority goes against state law and robs Winchester voters of their rights.

Meador was appointed during a joint meeting of the Board of Selectmen and the Housing Authority to the remainder of the WHA seat left vacant with the death of John Henry Van Dyke. That term will expire in 1987.

A group of taxpayers, led by Town Meeting member Mary Pronski and former Selectman Wade Welch, believes the vacancy should only have been filled until the next town election, and filed suit in Middlesex Superior Court to overturn the town officials' appointment.

Last month, assistant Attorney General Alexander Gray Jr., chief of the AG's Elections Division, also filed suit to overturn the appointment, noting that unless an election is held in March to fill the WHA seat, "state law will be violated and the voters of Winchester will suffer irreparable injury."

In court on Monday, Superior Court Judge Joseph S. Mitchell Jr. agreed to combine the taxpayers' suit with the Attorney General's. He also took under advisement a request by Welch to render summary judgment — meaning Mitchell would decide the case based on the lawyers' briefs, without hearing arguments from both sides.

Mitchell would be choosing between two interpretations — Welch's and Gray's versus Town Counsel Douglas Randall's — of the state's General Law Ch. 121, Sect. 26L.

That section states that housing authority vacancies "shall be filled for the balance of the unexpired term." But it also states "except elected members in towns." Elected members in towns, the law states, should be filled according to another section of the laws which provides for vacancies to be filled until the next town election.

Randall, before the selectmen when Pronski first brought her suit, and before the court on Monday, argued that his interpretation is correct.

In a letter to Gray submitted as part of the court documents, Randall stated, "First of all, it is quite obvious that the Attorney General's office has so little to do and is so unconcerned with important matters (such as the thousand 'gypsy' voters recently enrolled in Boston) that it seeks to substitute its judgment for mine as Town Counsel."

"However, I am satisfied that local counsels' opinion is correct and that the action of the joint convention... was correct and that the courts will so declare," Randall wrote. "I earnestly suggest that before you go dashing off to court, you reread the two statutes applicable and if necessary take a refresher course in English grammar."

Santa Goes To The Bank

CO-OP CHRISTMAS — Last Saturday, customers of the Winchester Co-operative Bank listened to Christmas music performed by nine Winchester High School music students — Nancy Sampson, Tom Herlihy, Dan Cummings, Eric Krusell, Elizabeth Obbard, John Reidy, Andy Thompson, Matt Mallo and Randy Henke — under the direction of Priscilla Miller. As Christmas carols were being played, the customers were also surprised by a visit from Santa Claus, who came to check on his Christmas Club account.

Committeeman Sorrento Is Guilty Of Extortion

Northeast Voke School Committee member James F. Sorrento of Revere was found guilty by a US District Court jury after a week of testimony in the case.

The head of the Northeast Metropolitan Vocational School's transportation committee was found guilty Monday of extorting a $12,000 bribe in return for a $1.8 million busing contract.

A second Northeast Voke School Committee member, chairman John F. Dunn Jr. of Chelsea, is scheduled to be tried Jan. 18 on charges that he too tried to extort money from the owner of the Fiore Bus Services Inc. of Saugus. Dunn's uncle, William Connery of Stoneham, pleaded guilty to extortion charges last week.

Northeast Voke buses students from 12 communities, including Winchester, to its Wakefield campus.

The three men were arrested after Rudolph Fiore, owner of the bus company, agreed to cooperate with Federal Bureau of Investigation agents.

Fiore secretly tape recorded conversations with Sorrento using a recorder supplied by the FBI. However, the recorder malfunctioned during the Aug. 10 meeting when Fiore testified Sorrento solicited the bribe.

Sorrento was arrested after a high speed chase that ended when the committeeman's car crashed into three FBI vehicles. The chase began after Sorrento accepted $10,000 from Fiore in the parking lot of Weylu's Restaurant on Route 1.

Sorrento, for his part, claimed that he was gathering information from Fiore about the bus company owner's involvement in a drug ring operated by school bus drivers.

He also said that on Aug. 10 — the day the recorder malfunctioned — he did not solicit a bribe from Fiore, but that Fiore offered him a $12,000 bribe.

The jury apparently didn't believe Sorrento's story, and accepted Fiore's. They deliberated for four hours before handing a guilty sentence to Judge Walter Jay Skinner.

Skinner scheduled sentencing for Jan. 23. Sorrento faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Recreation Teens Can Escape Boredom

Did you ever watch television and wonder how a show is made? You can learn how to be a TV producer, a cameraman, and a star — all in the same class.

The Winchester Recreation Dept. will be offering a winter session of Television Production starting Thursday, Jan. 19, from 3 to 5 p.m. for junior and senior high school students.

TV Production is done in conjunction with Continental Cablevision of Winchester. There is a fee of $25 for the 10-week program which is open to all Winchester students in Grades 7 to 12.

Students will also get a chance to visit a TV studio as selected classes will be held at the Continental Cablevision studio. During the scheduled visits, participants will get a chance to use and operate the studio equipment. Past TV Production classes have been aired on Continental Cablevision's Channel 19.

Learn The T.V. Biz

It's the week after Christmas and all through the town - Winchester teens are bored.

The new video games have already been mastered. There's no reason to shop at the mall and no money left to spend. The new clothes are neatly hanging in the closet waiting for the first day back to school. And the Recreation Department's first ski trip is still two weeks away.

But wait! This year everything has changed. The Winchester Youth Center is open and there's a special vacation schedule. All Winchester teens are welcome, and except for the movie, everything is free.

Here's the schedule:

Tuesday, Dec. 27, noon to 4 p.m., McCall Gym - Floor hockey tournament - Youth Center.

Wednesday, Dec. 28, noon to 4 p.m., McCall Gym - Youth Center, 7 to 9 p.m., Lincoln Gym - Youth Center.

Thursday, Dec. 29, noon to 4 p.m., McCall Gym - Girl's Soccer - Youth Center, 7 to 9 p.m., McCall Gym - Youth Center.

Friday, Dec. 30, 2 to 4 p.m., Movie (Call the Rec. Dept. for details), 7 to 9 p.m., Youth Center.

The 'Ideal' Of Christmas Punch

By TERRY MAROTTA

A favorite topic among journalists at this season is the contrast between the Christmas ideal of peace on earth and the harsh reality of a world engaged in perpetual conflict.

I read a column just the other day on this theme. Its author took snatches of Christmas carols and sprinkled them among short news accounts of warfare and brutality. The idea, I guess, was to highlight the irony in singing of silent and holy nights in a world grown drunk and reckless with indulgence in bloodlust.

I'm sure the man who wrote this piece had good intentions. He surely stands in an age-old tradition as he sounds this theme. We've all read accounts of Winston Churchill sending Christmas messages to a world engaged in the global strife of World War II; accounts of soldiers in that war's predecessor climbing from their trenches on Christmas Eve to sing carols across No Man's Land — only to climb back in them again and get on with the muddy and interminable slaughter.

So the journalist I speak of says nothing different from what hundreds of other writers have said at this season. But still, it bothers me to read it again in his column.

It's too easy, I think, to point out how far short we all fall from the ideals we purport to hold for ourselves. We know all too well about this shortfall already; to underscore it is to belabor the obvious. I think, and to rob us of some hope for ourselves as well.

What I'd rather read at this season is a theory showing how we're moving closer, if only by inches, to a more forbearing mode of existence; how humanity as a whole is gradually, if very slowly, coming to learn some important lessons.

There's as much evidence around for this kind of optimism's thesis as there is for the pessimist's one, after all. You just have to look around for it a bit.

The concept of a working space shuttle has become a reality, an everyday event now. Experiments can be conducted in zero gravity that are capable of opening whole new vistas in science and medicine.

Speaking of medicine, look at the strides being made on that frontier. The successful transplantation of such major organs as heart and liver would seem nothing short of miraculous to physicians a generation ago.

Great music continues to be written today, just as it was in the time of Bach or Beethoven.

A Roman Catholic pope attended services in the Lutheran church a week or so ago for the first time in history. His doing so, coupled with his visit to the Archbishop of Canterbury two summers ago, signals a new era of ecumenism and a possible end to the old doctrinal rifts that have so divided Christian peoples over the centuries.

The plight of the hungry, nationally and internationally, is taken more seriously now. If there are more hungry and homeless people in this country than there were five years ago, there are more people working to assist them as well.

Americans have fallen in love this season with a doll from a cabbage patch who neither cries nor wets nor eats french fries. In the great tradition of dolls everywhere, it does absolutely nothing except allow its young owner to take flights of imagination with it.

Pressure is mounting on all sides to dismantle the over-heavy nuclear arsenals that pose such danger to our green earth.

We are avidly sampling one another's cuisine in this last fifth of the twentieth century, a healthy prelude to sampling one another's cultures as well, and coming, as a result, to a better understanding among nations.

People are still buying live trees at the Christmas season, or decorating their doors and windows with bits of evergreen bough. In spite of their shedding needles and their early mortality, they still bring us their incomparable fragrance even as they whisper to us of hushed midnights spent in the holy and living forests.

And, we learn from increasingly sophisticated monitoring devices, stars are being born, even now, in this old old universe. New Stars, infant Suns.

So God isn't through with us yet, I don't think. Ours is a world evolving still, into something finer and more elevated.

And humankind is not stumbling into a decadent antiquity as our journalist implies, but just emerging, perhaps, from a long and error-filled youth.

We are, one might hope, coming of age at last, and coming as well perhaps a degree or two closer to fulfilling the ideals we honor at this season.

"Not much of a Nuclear Free Zone, though, is it?"

Letters To The Editor

Resident Has His Own Ideas Concerning Community Stations

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

With regard to the problem now facing the town in selecting a suitable site for the new fire and police station, I tried my best the other night before a combined committee and Board of Selectmen's meeting to prevent the town from making what I consider to be a very serious mistake. Faced with too much lethargy and inertia on the one hand, and too much momentum in the wrong direction on the other, I was unable to prevail for the time being.

I have not given up, however. I have, instead, simply broadened and intensified my efforts.

As I said at that meeting, it is of no importance whatsoever which solution is ultimately chosen, so long as it proves to be to the best interests of the town, as a whole, and in the long run. A few pennies saved today, one way or the other, is of no importance whatever in the perspective of the next 100 years. And inasmuch as the present structure will surely last another 29 years and is already 71 years old, I am sure that such a life-span is within reason for any structures that we build.

The present building was erected as a central fire station in 1914. It is still in excellent structural condition; but naturally after all these years does require considerable repair and renovation.

Whether my plan is followed, or the plan advanced by the committee, makes no material difference, except I do believe that my plan will involve fewer changes than their's and will be less costly. In either case, new heating system, new wiring, new plumbing, new roof — whatever, let's do it, and make the building as good as new.

BORGAARD'S VISION — This police station in Wellesley is what Town Meeting member Clarence Borggaard has in mind for Winchester. Borggaard wants the town to reconsider its decision to simply renovate the existing station, and build a new police station instead.

After this is done, however, is where we differ. The plan advocated by the committee proposes to make additions to the building in the rear, out into the present parking area, of some 5,300 square feet of foundation, or "footprint," area. The facility would then be used as a combined Fire and Police Dept. with separate quarters for each, but certain areas to be used in common. (To me, something like moving in with your in-laws — separate bedroom, perhaps, but the kitchen and bathroom to be used by whoever gets there first.)

My plan, however, is far simpler and, I think, much better. Instead of attempting to build a Siamese-twin sort of arrangement, I suggest that, after this building is thoroughly renovated (but not remodeled) it be turned over to its original owner, the Winchester Fire Dept., lock, stock and barrel.

To house the police, meanwhile, we shall have erected in one or another of a half-dozen suitable places, a brand new, free-standing Police Station, completely modern in all respects, located on a site with total visibility on a main road, having ample area for surrounding lawns, trees, flower gardens and other landscaping features.

Functionally as well as aesthetically, it should be a structure of which everyone in town can be proud for the next 100 years. I say again, "Let's make no small plans!"

To be continued. (In subsequent letters, I shall try to prove that my plan can be implemented for less initial cost than their's and, in the long run, will completely liquidate itself. In other words, in 100 years, my plan will have cost the town nothing.)

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records votes on roll calls from the late sessions Dec. 9-10.

ABATEMENT (H 5842): Senate 25-7, rejected a bill allowing the L. J. Richard Wholesale and Catering Company to file an abatement for overpayment of meals taxes.

Supporters said the company was required by the Revenue Department to pay $10,000 it is owed.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent and will open the door to many other special requests for abatements.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted no.

TRANSPORTATION (H 6617) Senate 22-0, gave final approval and sent to Gov. Dukakis a $600 million plus transportation bond authorization for development and improvement of the state's transportation facilities including highway, bridge, rail, and public transit. The package included a controversial $100 million for the Massachusetts Convention Authority to expand and renovate the Hynes Auditorium.

Supporters said the package was a reasonable one which is fiscally responsible and will improve transportation in the state.

Opponents said the package is loaded with unnecessary and costly items and claimed that the $100 million for the Hynes is excessive and doesn't even belong in a transportation budget.

A "Yea" vote is for the package. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

ENERGY CAPITAL OUTLAY (S 2238): Senate 26-0, gave final approval and sent to Gov. Dukakis a $25 million capital outlay budget for energy conservation programs, studies, and audits in state and city or town buildings.

Supporters argued the program was a good one which will promote energy conservation and result in a substantial savings to the state and local communities. Retirement board members, should have more power. Some said communities did not have enough input into the drafting of the bill.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Housing Authority Report Arouses Interest

League Of Women Voters Praise Accurate Report

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Star should be commended for its recent front-page article on the League of Women Voters' study of the Winchester Housing Authority. It was an excellent summary of the important issues discussed at the meetings. I would like to take this opportunity to clarify a few statements.

First, the Winchester LWV has been active in housing issues for 10 years. The Housing Needs Survey of Winchester Residents in 1981 was conceived, organized, and collated by the Winchester League.

Our recent study of the Winchester Housing Authority was a long-term, carefully planned project. It was first proposed in January, 1983, and voted by the membership at the Annual General Meeting in May. The committee has been studying the subject for four months. Their sources included: all available Minutes of the WHA Board Meetings since 1970, WHA Town Reports from 1970-1982, interviews with WHA Board members and tenants at Palmer and Westley Housing units, Housing Authorities in other towns, conversations with townspeople and the Executive Office of Communities and Development, and three observations at WHA meetings.

We are proud of our reputation of being a national, state, and local organization that is dedicated to nonpartisan, meticulously researched information. We do not feel that "The League seems to do things haphazardly" as expressed by Mary Meader, a WHA Board member, or "that the League research is limited" as commented by another WHA member, John Reagan. All Winchester Housing Authority members were invited to attend the League's presentations but no one did so.

In regards to a Grievance Policy to handle tenant complaints, as far as the League could determine, the procedures are not posted for the tenants to read in waiting areas, as required by the State. Also the WHA members seem unclear themselves as to the procedures. Three members gave different interpretations.

The League is most concerned with the resistance of the WHA to consider applying for state and federal funding. Some WHA members seem to be unaware of funds available. At the federal level HUD Section 8-Rental Assistance Funds have always been available. State funds under Chapter 707 (scattered site-Rental Assistance) and Chapter 705 (Housing Authority-owned new construction or rehabilitated units) are now being made available again in towns. Recently a letter was sent to all housing authorities, inviting them to apply for new 707 funds.

The League urges the WHA to make an effort to evaluate its policies and programs and work to make the necessary adjustments to meet the current housing needs of the citizens of Winchester.

The Winchester League of Women Voters thanks all those who have responded to the article in The Star and encourage others to contact us with your opinions. Citizens of Winchester should get involved and help bring about the necessary changes. We recommend that townspeople run in the spring elections for the vacancies on the WHA as well as serving on other housing committees. Don't just be satisfied, get active!

Thank you,
Betty Small
Marjorie Estridge
Co-Presidents
League of Women Voters

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

After carefully reading articles on the Winchester Housing Authority published by your paper Dec. 1, a large group of residents have met and discussed these situations mentioned, and have concluded that the majority must get their voices heard.

First of all, we are all very content and have no complaints about any conditions here — we are completely satisfied. As to remarks published that tenants are treated like "babies" in a dictatorial fashion, these are certainly not true, and should have been checked out with more of the residents here. In fact, we could find no one who would have ever heard of such conditions and stressed the fact that each and every one is completely content living here.

We are all so pleased that we have such a very attractive as well as pleasant place, and must state at this time, that much of our contentment is due to Mary Murphy, Chairperson of the WHA. She has done everything in her power to make it pleasant for all, and has been completely fair in all her dealings with us.

As for the recreation room being locked up, that is available upon request to the tenants, and the only reason for the request is that it makes the arrangement so that more than one group would not be planning on using it at the same time, and interfere with the smooth operating of each group's private function.

We can't say enough in the favor of Mary Murphy, as she has always conducted herself in a very professional way, and has been fair in all her dealings with all of us.

If you want to get a clear picture of how the majority of the residents feel at the Westley Apartments, it is suggested that you either call on each one individually or have a meeting at which we are all notified of the time and place and invited to attend, and we are sure you will get a clear and precise picture of how pleasant it is for us who are residing here.

We regret that the peaceful atmosphere has been upset which has prevailed here for sometime, and that all of this has been published in The Winchester Star, so that the residents of the town will feel that they have a large group of disgruntled so-called senior citizens in their midst. We want this picture clarified and will look forward to what you feel will be a solution to setting the record straight. Contented Residents of Westley St. Apts.

Red Cross Announces Two Blood Drives

The Winchester Red Cross announces two community blood drives during the holiday season. The drives will be sponsored by the Winchester Hospital, The Knights of Columbus and the Winchester Red Cross.

"The Gift of Life" — a blood donation — is the most important and self-satisfying gift one can make any time of the year. Because of the increased need for blood a donation during the holidays is even more important.

Community-spirited Winchester residents will have two opportunities before the New Year to make a donation. On Thursday, Dec. 22, the Winchester Hospital and the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a drive at the hospital from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"The daily transfusion needs of general surgery patients, chemotherapy patients, and accident victims never takes a holiday," said Ann Pereira, organizer of the hospital drive.

On Dec. 27, the Knights of Columbus and the Red Cross will sponsor a drive at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Mt. Vernon st. from 3 to 8 p.m.

"If you are in good health, between 17 and 65 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and have not donated blood in the last 56 days you are eligible. It is a simple and gratifying act which takes less than an hour of your time. The actual donation takes less than 10 minutes. You can be sure that this is one gift that will be used and appreciated during this holiday season," said Paul Brennan of the Knights of Columbus.

All 0 positive and 0 negative donors are urged to make this drive. For further information call the Winchester Red Cross or drop by the Chapter at 39 Church st.

ABC Program Holds Returnable Bottle Drive On Jan. 7

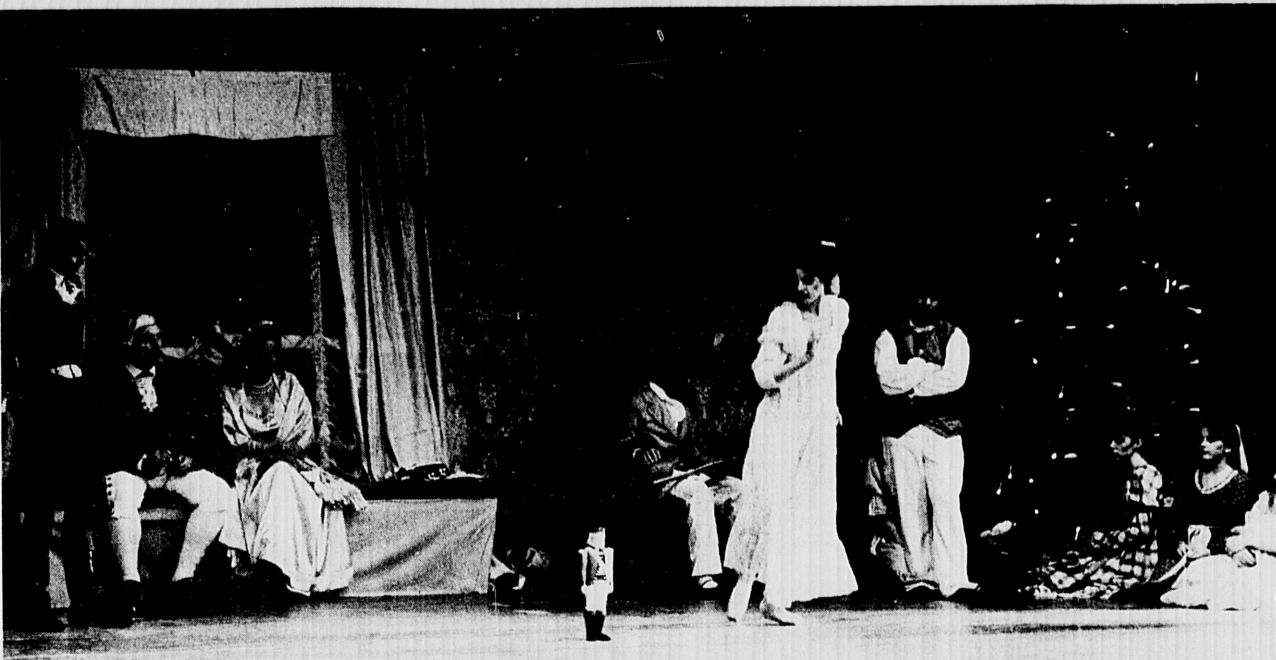

ABC volunteers will be collecting bottles and cans at the Sons of Italy parking lot for the convenience of people who would like to drop them off on their way to the transfer station.

Also, volunteers will be picking up bottles and cans in various neighborhoods around town. To ensure that no one is missed, people can call Richard Goodlatte, Mystic Valley pkwy.

The Winchester ABC Program is holding a returnable bottle and can drive on Saturday, Jan. 7, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Season's Greetings

We wish you a happy holiday with all the trimmings!

Here's hoping you and yours have the heart-warming holiday you hope for from the presents beneath the tree to the Christmas star on top, from visions of sugarplums to mistletoe, from plum pudding to candy canes and from the littlest angel at your house to Old Saint Nick himself.

Best wishes for a very merry Yuletide season from all of us to all of you.

It has been a privilege to serve you throughout the year and especially as you prepare for this festive season.

Commissioner Defends His Actions For Treasurer Decision

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Nov. 30 Rocco Antonelli resigned as Treasurer of Middlesex County. The circumstances of his resignation, as well as those surrounding the naming of his successor, William Gustus of Wilmington, have resulted in a measure of controversy. I would like to take a moment to place those events in perspective.

Antonelli resigned his office and agreed to drop his appeal of an earlier Ethics Commission finding of conflict of interest against him in his capacity as treasurer. He also agreed to pay a $5,250 fine levied against him by the Ethics Commission as a result of that finding.

The District Attorney's Office simultaneously agreed to forego trying Mr. Antonelli for a second time on a criminal complaint of the same charges. The first trial of Mr. Antonelli had ended in a mistrial when the jury was unable to reach a verdict. This series of events was not one which I had sought, nor was it one to which I looked forward.

The resignation of Mr. Antonelli has been under indictment. The record of conviction on charges previously upheld by the Ethics Commission is exceptionally consistent, and the statute which spells out the naming of a county Treasurer to complete unexpired terms is very explicit.

I would have been greatly remiss in my responsibilities had I not considered the desirable qualities of a treasurer should the necessity of appointing one arise.

When the resignation did occur, therefore, I was prepared to act with speed. I did so for three reasons:

1. Most importantly, I wanted to insure a smooth, orderly transition of office. At the time Mr. Antonelli informed us of the resignation there was no assistant treasurer available to conduct the necessary business of the county; no individual was authorized to sign county checks.

2. The office of the District Attorney not only informed us that these circumstances constituted an emergency meeting under the Open Meeting Law, but urged us to hold a meeting as soon as possible in order to carry out the necessary business involved in the transfer of office.

3. The final reason I had for acting with haste was to try to keep this task of appointing a treasurer from the realm of back-room deals and political opportunism. Knowing that I was recommending a qualified, professional candidate, whom I hoped would be accepted by the entire Board, I sought, by acting quickly, to forestall an auction of the post to the individual who offered the greatest political payback. As it was, in the three days between the resignation of Mr. Antonelli and the appointment of Mr. Gustus, I was called by more than a dozen politicians within the county who sought the job for themselves or their associates.

Others on the board saw the situation differently and sought to delay the process. Whether the delay was sought for the above-mentioned reason or some other I can not say. At any rate, the delay was sought through the bringing of civil action in the Superior Court charging a violation of the Open Meeting Law.

In my opinion this action was an abuse of judicial process a malicious, groundless prosecution which served only to disrupt and not to enlighten. Prior to a full hearing on this matter the charge was dropped at the request of the complainant, because there was no evidence to support the charge.

All of this brings me to the actual naming of a treasurer. For the entire 11 months during which I have held the office of commissioner, and, in fact, going back to the time I worked in the Sheriff's Dept. two years before that, I have been singularly impressed with the capabilities of Bill Gustus.

As Commissioner Larkin's head executive assistant and as the first policy manager of the reorganized Commissioner's Office, as the acting director of the County Hospital and its Acting Fiscal Affairs Director, and even as Commissioner McLaughlin's choice three months ago as permanent Hospital Director, Bill Gustus has never failed to impress me as a competent and capable administrator with an extraordinary grasp of the financial affairs of the County.

Mr. Gustus is also in the unique position of having the knowledge of someone who has worked closely with the county system over the past few years, while at the same time having the objectivity and the willingness to look at things freshly that a career Treasurer's Dept. employee might lack.

In addition to his professional qualities, Bill Gustus is a man of considerable character. He is trustworthy, diligent, open and honest. He has earned the respect of his peers, his subordinates, the Board of Commissioners, the Middlesex County Advisory Board, and the press.

Ultimately, though, the electorate will rule on this decision. It is my belief that, should Mr. Gustus choose to run for this office in 1984, the voters of Middlesex County will find that I made the right choice.

Bill Schmidt
County Commissioner

Commissioner Feels Gustus Is A Change For The Better

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I write to explain my position regarding my vote to appoint Bill Gustus to replace Rocco Antonelli as Treasurer of Middlesex County.

The criticism of this appointment falls into three areas. First, there has been criticism of Bill's credentials. Second, there have been charges of political cronyism because Bill served as my head executive assistant. Finally, it has been argued that the county would have been better served by an open search process.

Bill Gustus is uniquely knowledgeable about the financial management of Middlesex County. As the county's policy manager, he was responsible for its day-to-day operation. He prepared and defended the Fiscal Year 1982, 1983 and 1984 budgets which resulted in a decrease in county taxes from $23,146,939 in 1981 to $16,004,998 in 1984.

During the past year he has implemented a reorganization of Middlesex County. He set up a non-political search and interview process resulting in the appointment of new county professionals in the areas of budget, personnel, affirmative action and legal counsel. Virtually everyone who knows Bill Gustus respects him for his integrity and competence.

Commissioner Michael McLaughlin nominated Bill Gustus to serve as director of Middlesex County Hospital until the new director was hired, (after a nationwide search) in September 1983. Bill is an attorney and successfully used his legal skills in court to prevent the sale of the Third District Court in August 1982 when two county commissioners tried to sell that building for $175,000 in the face of appraisals stating the property was worth over a million dollars. Bill served, with his wife Terry, in Malaysia in the Peace Corps, for almost two years. Later, they adopted two Malaysian orphans.

The charge of political cronyism is not fair. I did not know Bill Gustus before he came to work as my chief assistant. He was recommended by a search committee. Bill was not active in my political campaign. I owe him no political loyalty other than my respect for his competence.

Commissioner Michael McLaughlin fought the appointment of Bill Gustus, charging there was a violation of the open meeting law. This was pure fabrication. Judge Edith Fine dismissed that charge, with prejudice, in Middlesex Superior Court, Dec. 8. The bottom line for Mike McLaughlin is a loss of power and influence. He didn't have a second vote for an alternative candidate. The citizens of the county benefit from that fact, in my opinion.

The appointment to fill a vacant elective office is, by definition, a political act. I maintain this was a good political appointment: good because there were no quid pro quos, good because there was no time to wheel and deal, and good because a highly competent treasurer now has the political advantage of ballot position and incumbency. I'm a politician. I'm not ashamed of it. I'm proud of this appointment. Bill Gustus represents change; change for the better.

I will attempt to explain why a search process was not initiated. I believe strongly in the value of process. Since my election, Middlesex County government is more open, accessible, and process-oriented. Process provides for participation and creates an opportunity to influence the decision-makers. The process must be fair. A sham process is dishonest. Sometimes process is vulnerable to abuse and is used to delay and obstruct.

You need time to make it work and the process (not the product) must be controlled. Unlike an executive officer such as a mayor or a governor, the Board of Middlesex County Commissioners is a unique troika: political, and unpredictable. The Middlesex County Treasurer's position is a highly sought political prize. The forces prepared to do battle for that prize are formidable.

Those resisting change wanted time: time to delay the appointment of Bill Gustus, time to influence the board toward a more acceptable candidate, time to succeed in leaving the position vacant to more easily effect geographical and ballot position factors in the Treasurer election of 1984. Timing is almost everything in politics. The time was right to act assertively on behalf of the public interest as I saw it.

An interview process would have been a sham under those circumstances; and at worst, a political carnival. I've made mistakes, but acting promptly to replace Rocco Antonelli with Bill Gustus wasn't one of them.

Thomas J. Larkin, Chairman
Middlesex County Commissioner

Mammola's Opens Salon

'We moved here last year and I really love the town.'

By ZOE CARTER

Those Winchester residents who have been traveling to Paul Mammola's Salon in Lexington to be coiffed, manicured or given a facial can now simply walk across the street from Purity Supreme and meet Maria — Paul's wife.

The new salon on Skillings rd. is also called "Paul Mammola" and it is a less elaborate version of the 14-year-old Lexington salon. Maria, who hopes to offer manicures and facials in the future, is doing what she loves best: cutting hair.

"I love hair," she said. And looking at her long chestnut colored hair, one can understand why. "I think you have to love it to work well with it," she said. "It's an easy thing for me to do. It's a natural ability."

Maria and Paul Mammola decided that Winchester would be a good place to open a salon when they moved here last year. "We moved here last year and I really love the town," Mammola said.

The Mammolas were not deterred by the presence of other salons in the area. Maria Mammola said that most areas around Boston are full of salons and they survive because of their individual character.

"Everyone who has come in has said — gee why'd you do it? Winchester has so many salons," recalled Maria Mammola. "But I don't know any place that doesn't have at least 20 salons already."

"But all the places in town are different, individual," she added. "What I feel is positive about our salon is that you don't have to go to Paul Mammola himself to get a good cut. We all work together. We train the staff — even if they've already been trained and have experience. They work as our assistants and we discuss certain hair cuts — what will work and what won't."

Although Mammola feels that all the hair-cutters in the Paul Mammola salons are highly skilled, there is a system of escalating prices among the staff. Those staff members who haven't been there as long, charge a slightly lower rate. This provides the customer with the option of getting a high-quality hair cut at a less expensive price.

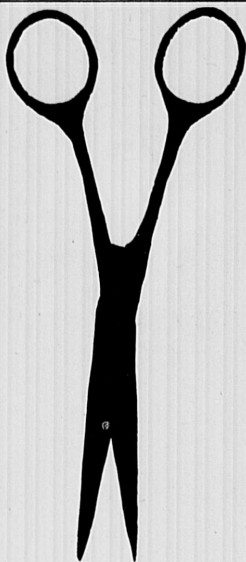

"We do have escalating prices," Mammola explained. "It's to suit everyone's needs. Some of the girls charge $15 to $17 apiece. It doesn't mean they have less experience, it just means they haven't been here as long. But it helps — some people really don't want to pay a lot for a hair cut."

Mammola said her clients are generally between 20 and 40 years old. She said the salon is doing a lot of "hair sculpting" these days.

"We're doing a lot of hair sculpting us-

'We're doing a lot of hair sculpting, using both lotions and the cut to create hairstyles that the client can really live with.'

ing both lotions and the cut to create hairstyles that the client can really live with," Mammola explained. "I've never met anyone who likes to spend a lot of time on their hair."

Mammola watched a young woman leave the salon and turned to the staff person who had done the cut to compliment her on her work. "It really turned out well," she said.

"You can never stop learning," she added. "We're very proud of the work we do."

That Maria Mammola is doing what she likes to do is obvious, but she says it has been somewhat of an adjustment not working in the same salon with her husband.

"We worked together in the same salon for years," she said. "And it was really great. This is the first time we've been separated. I feel like we've had a divorce," she said jokingly.

But Maria said she enjoys working and living here. "The people who have come in are very nice," she said. "I like Winchester a lot and I know I'll be comfortable here."

Neighbor Remembers A Good Man

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Arthur Govoni, our good neighbor on Myopia Hill, is dead and we must grieve for him and his family.

His passing is untimely — in the prime of his life and at a season of Christian rejoicing. Yet none of us who knew him goes unrewarded into the New Year.

We do well at this time to think upon his quiet but shining example: A husband whose love and compassion had been the support of his beloved wife during a prostrating illness; a father whose strength sheltered and reared a fine family in these peculiar and trying times; a man of this town, this community and this country who deeply felt but never vaunted the obligations of citizenship.

His hard work helped to bring a church into being, preserved a school and fostered the arts in this and other communities. He served his country abroad in posts of honor, responsibility and delicacy.

A man of business, not of great wealth, he yet made a good living and living a positive good. In Italy his grandparents would have had good reason to be proud of him.

In our neighborhood he improved his property and was always the first to volunteer to repair a road, to clear away the brush and lend a hand where needed.

He was that good neighbor towards the foot of our hill whose handsome smile and beckoning wave often opened or closed the errands of our day with good cheer.

And so, good cheer unto you, Arthur! You were the kind of man whom the Lord must have loved because he did so test you as one of his own.

For friends and neighbors of Arthur Govoni,
Edmund Gullion

Home For Animals Has To Close Doors

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

My holiday season will be a little less bright. I received a call from Conrad Denis. He offered to return the check I had sent for his Home for Abandoned Animals. He was surprised I had not seen that his Home was closed last September.

Increased development in his area led to barking dog complaints, I believe. It was all over the media, he said.

Now when I hear about abused and abandoned animals, I won't be able to feel a bit better by thinking of Conrad Denis and his work.

We can't all be crusaders for the things we believe in in the manner of Conrad Denis, but we can all support our crusaders. I hope Mr. Denis can find the help he needs to reopen in 1984.

Nurse Program Needs Support

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc., a non-profit agency, has provided home health care to Winchester for over 80 years. Traditionally we provide free and reduced fee for needy patients as Medicare, Medicaid and private insurances can and do run out.

Last year our contributions to free and reduced pay care zoomed to 143 percent over the previous year. It is literally impossible for us to provide more or we will be forced to cut off our health services to many needy patients.

We are currently conducting a year-end appeal both to Winchester residents and Winchester businesses. Donations to the Visiting Nurse and Community Health — Health Care Fund, 87 Pleasant St., Arlington, 02174, will be used 100 percent to provide immediate care to those who need it. The donation is tax deductible.

Thank you.

Residents Urged To Take Notice Of Library Calendar

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Attached is an item from the latest issue of the Friends of the Public Library's newsletter.

For some time now I have noticed how many Winchester affairs are scheduled on the same dates, especially fairs, rummage sales and teas. Perhaps this is because younger people and folks new to the town have taken over the reins from their elders and are unaware of the Community Calendar available at the Public Library. Since few of us have the time or money to support more than one event on any one day, it seems a shame that this situation exists.

It occurred to me that as a public service you might be willing to include a paragraph or two in your paper so that more people would use this service extended by the library.

Thank you for considering my suggestion.

Sincerely yours,
Marion F. Hatch

Are you aware of the wonderful calendar available for your use at the library? These days it seems to be suffering from neglect.

Every organization in town used to coordinate its calendar for the coming year by checking first for conflicts on the Community Calendar at the library.

Let's reinstate use of the Community Calendar! Conveniently located at the circulation desk, the calendar is there for you to record your events as soon as you decide on your next year's dates. If you find a conflicting event already recorded, you will then have time to do some rescheduling. It really works!

Season's Greetings

Twas the night before Christmas and all through the store
Santa's helpers were working like never before.
The shelves were all stocked with the world's finest booze.
And our local newspapers were spreading the news.
Suddenly Dave yelled out, "What's the matter?"
And Joe, who was stocking, fell right off the ladder.
Together they ran to the near parking lot.
And in unison shouted, "Oh, what have we got?"
For there before them in Sweetwater blue
Stood Santa, eight reindeer, and what did he do?
He pushed right by Dave and hustled by Joe
And dashed to the store without wasting a mo.
He loaded his sleigh to the tippy top.
And, despite all the jiggling, dropped not a "pop."
As he took to the sky his deep-powered sleigh
A discriminate car could hear Santa say.
"Whether Kelly, Jablonski, Russo or Hurwitz, Sweetwater's where you should buy Christmas spirits!"
So, to all of our customers, old ones or new,
Don, Dave and Joe have good news for you.
We'll be working our best 'till the end of the year
To assure you of quality holiday cheer.
And now that we've shared our seasonal fun,
All highlighted by an occasional pun,
All of us here, in the Sweetwater Crew,
Say, Peace in our time, Merry Christmas to you!"

Sharing Holiday Meals

Bringing Christmas Cheer

Share A Meal Program Delivers Holiday Dinner

BY LIZ WILLEN

Not everyone in Winchester got to sit down to a hearty, home-cooked holiday meal on Thanksgiving. But thanks to a new program called "Share A Meal," six elderly residents had the chance to indulge in a holiday repast prepared by volunteers from Church Women United.

Those volunteers happily carved up an extra portion of their own turkey and wrapped up potatoes, vegetables and other fragrant specialties to bring to the residents.

And on Sunday, the program will be repeated for Christmas. Once again extra plates will be wrapped up and delivered to the doorstep of people who don't have nearby families, tables laden with goodies, or the health and energy required to fix their own holiday meal.

"Thanksgiving was our first try at 'Share A Meal' and it went very well," noted Hilda Zerwekh, who is coordinating the new program. "The people who received their meals were quite pleased."

Zerwekh has been trying to get donors for Christmas ever since. Although she has at least 12 lined up already, she won't know just how many people have requested the holiday meal until she hears from the Jenks Senior Center at the end of the week.

"We've been looking for people who are willing to share their meal by inviting someone else to join them, or wouldn't mind wrapping up a portion of their's," said Zerwekh. "And it's not only for seniors — it's for anyone who is far away or alone during the holidays who would enjoy a holiday meal."

"Share A Meal" is sponsored by the Church Women United, and includes volunteers from different community churches.

Church Women United took on the "Share A Meal" project last January, after the Council on Aging wrote to them to see if they would be interested in delivery of holiday meals.

"We were looking for an extension of the 'Meals on Wheels' program," said Jenks Center Administrator Barbara Ciampa. "In the past, (Church Women United) had been very generous to seniors, and we'd had a number of requests for holiday meal delivery from people who knew of homebound residents who might be alone and without food during holidays."

The "Share A Meal" program sprang up out of that need — a need that "Meals On Wheels" fulfills five days a week.

After all, holidays aren't the only time when people are hungry, alone or undernourished.

And, for the past two years, "Meals on Wheels" volunteers

'It's for anyone who is far away or alone during the holidays and would enjoy a holiday meal.'

—Program Coordinator Hilda Zerwekh

have been seeing to it that many Winchester residents receive fully balanced hot and cold meals five days a week, for only $16 per week. The EnKa society will pick up the bill for residents who cannot afford to pay for the meals themselves.

Those meals have made an enormous difference in the lives of some residents.

"If it wasn't for 'Meals on Wheels' I'd be in a nursing home," admitted Priscilla Morse. Confined to a wheelchair, Morse has received the meals ever since the program began.

"They haven't missed a day — and I'm grateful to the volunteers every day," added Morse. "And the servings are so generous that I can eat the leftovers on weekends. I couldn't do it on my own."

Any resident, regardless of age or income, is eligible to receive the meals. "It's predominantly a matter of health," said Laurie Minniti, who coordinates the non-profit program. "There are residents who are not able to cook or shop or take care of themselves."

Those residents are all benefiting from the efforts of volunteers like Florence Maguire of Wedgemere ave. On Monday morning, Maguire was at Winchester Hospital at 11 a.m. loading hot meals prepared by the hospital staff into her car, along with cardboard boxes containing cold meals.

One hour later, seven elderly residents had received their meals, along with a poinsettia donated by the Winchester Garden Club.

The meals, flowers and Maguire's smile lit up the lives of those residents between 11 a.m. and noon. And Maguire enjoyed it as well.

"I just started doing this last month," she noted. "I have a mother-in-law and a mother who are both elderly, and I've seen what they are going through. It made me realize that I wanted to do something for the elderly."

Maguire's route began on Hancock st. and ended on Irving st. And wherever she went, she was warmly welcomed and thanked.

A Loring ave. woman wanted to talk about her grandchildren. Another elderly resident got some advice on keeping her poinsettia looking fresh, and another was chided for not eating all of her meals when Maguire noticed that her refrigerator was full.

Right before the last stop, Maguire picked up her daughter Catherine from nursery school and brought her along to deliver the last meal.

"They love to see young children," explained Maguire, who is a registered nurse. "They really enjoy it."

And Maguire enjoys delivering "Meals on Wheels" herself. "It makes me want to invite them all for Christmas," she said.

Maguire's route took her little more than an hour, and she only delivers the meals once a month. Yet despite the small time commitment involved, "Meals on Wheels" sometimes has trouble getting enough volunteers.

"They are always needed — but sometimes hard to find because of the timing," Minniti said. "It's hard to get people who work or who have small children — so a lot of volunteers are senior citizens. But we do have a driver who is in her 20s and does it during her lunch break."

According to Minniti, many elderly people just do not realize

Local Teen Volunteers Are Honored At Rehab Night Of Recognition

Teen volunteers from nine communities, who give generously of their free school time to the patients and life at New England Rehabilitation Hospital, Woburn, have just completed their biggest year in total hours and achievement.

Teens, hospital officials and proud parents celebrated their accomplishments at an impressive "Recognition Night," honoring the youth for their dedication, high standards and service.

Probably the greatest tribute comes

Doherty Tenants Celebrate At Christmas Fete

The Tenants Assn. at the John L. Doherty Apartments, on Westley St., held their annual Christmas Party on Dec. 15.

The jovial affair was catered by Jim and Rose of Woburn. Danny Noonan entertained the audience with his wide repertoire of sing-alongs and Christmas Carols. Joe McKee gave several musical renditions.

Betty Walsh and Charlie Moran played Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus, and passed out gifts to all the guests.

Invited guests were Dorothy Shannon, executive director, Ellen Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Heitz and Mr. and Mrs. Albie McDonald.

A wonderful time was had by all and the Christmas spirit prevailed.

from the patients. They have won the hearts of patients by their smiles, cheerfulness and compassion.

Mrs. Jean Silvagni, Director of Volunteers, paid a high tribute to the "wonderful group of teens who come through our doors at 4 p.m. daily."

"We have cut down their number this year. We have established very high standards," she stressed. "This is a hospital. Behavior and service has to be perfect. Responsibilities placed on our volunteer teens are tremendous. We now have seven teams, one for each day of the week. I can say, they have responded tremendously."

"With a greatly reduced force, but higher standards, our teens have given more than 8789 hours during the past year," she said.

The keynote for the evening, Gerald Borgal, vice president of administration, expressed official thanks and pointed out, "we probably don't recognize them enough. Their service is outstanding and unique. I hear many good things about them."

The central theme of all the participants was directed to the parents and said, "you as parents have every right to be proud."

The Teens officers and board described their work and duties. They included Jamie Scanlon of Winchester, assistant secretary.

Other Winchester teens cited were Kristen Hager and Gavin Hager.

their nutritional needs. "They may not know they are hungry and they may just grab a cracker and a cup of tea," she said. "Or they forget to eat entirely."

With "Meals on Wheels," proper nutrition is assured — all the meals are completely balanced nutritionally and prepared in conjunction with the dietary staff at Winchester Hospital.

Special needs such as high protein, low sodium, and diets for diabetics and even vegetarians can be met.

"Meals on Wheels" is financed by gifts from individuals and civic groups such as EnKa, Church Women United, the Rotary Club and Ann Blackham Associates.

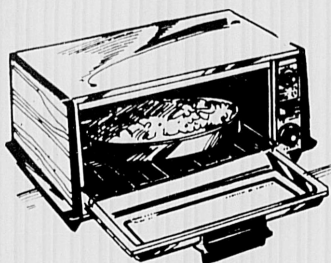

Anyone who wishes to volunteer, or who knows someone who could use the service, should contact Barbara Ciampa at the Jenks Senior Center.

Employment Resources To Aid Youths 16 To 21 Two New Programs Will Help Drop-Outs To Find Jobs

Employment Resources Inc. has announced the funding of two programs designed for area 16 to 21 year olds who have dropped out of high school. Both programs will incorporate training in a skill area, remedial education, work experience, vocational planning and job search components. The goal of both programs is to assist youth in developing skills and competencies necessary to acquire a GED and to find and keep a job.

Just A Start of Cambridge will provide a six-month program in housing rehabilitation, energy conservation and construction. Participants will learn the skills of these fields through training workshops and actual worksite experience. Remedial education through classes, individual study and tutoring will be provided as well as career planning, job search and placement assistance.

Based on Just A Start's past experience, completers of this program can expect to be qualified for entry level placement in the rehab, construction and conservation fields or in fields requiring similar basic skills such as manufacturing, food processing, retail and related businesses.

The second program, designed to train youth in small business operation, will be operated by Worldwide Educational Services. The 16-week program will train participants in the skills necessary to compete for jobs within small businesses. Skill areas include general merchandising, recordkeeping, small business overview, credit and collection, and microcomputer application.

According to Worldwide's vice president, Timothy Shoh, some 50 percent of all private sector jobs in the nation are provided by businesses of 50 or fewer employees. Although the products and services provided vary greatly, certain day-to-day functions of the operation are universal. The skills to perform these functions are the basis of this program.

Individualized instruction in GED areas, employability development, job development and placement assistance are ongoing. Assistance will also be provided in securing part-time work during the course of the program.

Both programs are expected to begin by mid-December, according to ERI's Youth Program Developer, Connie Karpinski. Interested youth should apply now to find out if they are eligible for ERI programs. Intake offices are located at 50 Essex St. in Cambridge, 24 Hancock Ave. in Medford, and 980 Broadway in Chelsea.

Employment Resources Inc. is the local employment and training organization providing services under the Job Training Partnership Act to residents of communities including Arlington, Belmont, and Winchester.

Consider A Gift Of Music

With the holiday gift lists growing and the cost of entertainment soaring, some families are pooling their resources this year for large single-purchase items that everyone can enjoy.

The trend towards group gifts — within extended families or groups of friends — includes hi-fi component systems, video equipment and car stereos.

New or upgraded stereo systems are among the most-wanted home entertainment items. While Mom, Dad and the kids don't usually agree on what kind of music to listen to, everyone appreciates his or her favorites played on a good component system.

Contributions for group purchases can be sufficient to buy an entire system, or simply to upgrade one or two components. Speakers are first on the list of components to be upgraded, since they control the quality of sound from the complete system.

Selecting stereo speakers is as simple as trusting your own ears. Shoppers should expect to pay at least $250 for a pair of well-engineered loudspeakers.

While pre-packaged component systems might seem the easiest to buy, they don't always offer the best value.

It is easy enough to select your own.

•Bring good copies of favorite records to test on a variety of speakers. Have different kinds of music, to be sure that the Philharmonic sounds as real as the rock singer.

•Ask the salesperson to play your records on two different sets of speakers at the same volume.

Peace on Earth... Begins at Home.

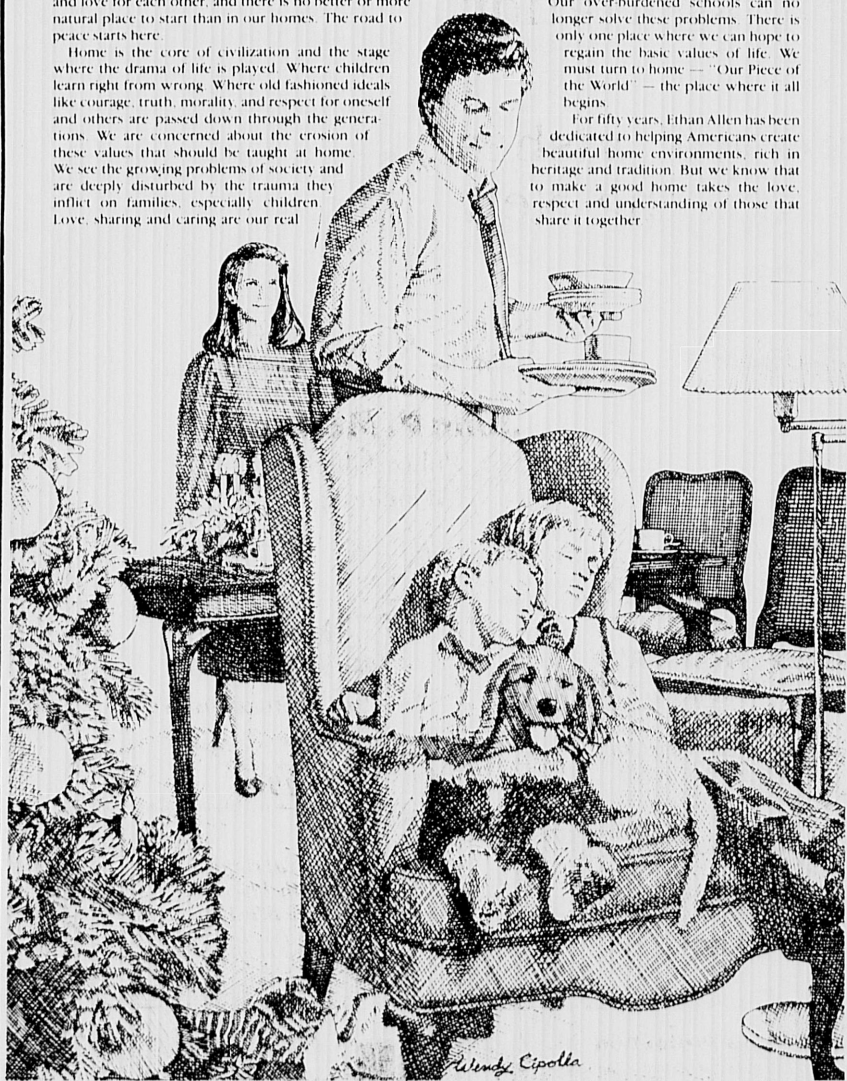

Peace on earth can be a reality when we all learn to live together as individuals and families. We must share respect and love for each other, and there is no better or more natural place to start than in our homes. The road to peace starts here.

Home is the core of civilization and the stage where the drama of life is played. Where children learn right from wrong. Where old fashioned ideals like courage, truth, morality, and respect for oneself and others are passed down through the generations. We are concerned about the erosion of these values that should be taught at home. We see the growing problems of society, and are deeply disturbed by the trauma they inflict on families, especially children. Love, sharing and caring are our real defense against broken homes, crime, drugs and delinquency.

Our overburdened schools can no longer solve these problems. There is only one place where we can hope to regain the basic values of life. We must turn to home — "Our Piece of the World" — the place where it all begins.

For fifty years, Ethan Allen has been dedicated to helping Americans create beautiful home environments, rich in heritage and tradition. But we know that to make a good home takes the love, respect and understanding of those that share it together.

Holiday message from your local Police Chiefs:

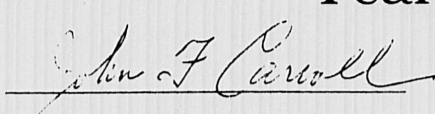

This is the time of year when families and friends meet to share the happiness of the Holiday Season. We gather to reflect upon the past year and look with hope at the New Year ahead.

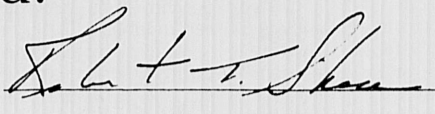

This year, as you meet, we ask that you be careful when it comes to drinking, especially if you must drive.

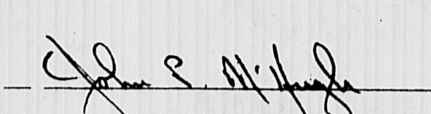

Whether you're driving around the block or a long distance, the effect of even one drink makes you a threat to yourself and everyone else on the road.

This Holiday Season, if you must drink, please use your head. Don't drive. And if a family member or friend has over-imbibed, encourage him to find other transportation home.

Please accept our sincere best wishes for the Holiday Season and the New Year ahead.

Boy Scouts Sell Christmas Wreaths

FUNDRAISING WREATHS — Boy Scouts in Troop 503 raised $1,600 for the troop by selling 820 Christmas wreaths to Winchester residents. The wreath sale, the troop's only method of fundraising, provides money for national registration, new tents and cooking gear, camping site fees and canoe rentals, awards and badges. Adams Keats sold the most wreaths, 66, with Tom Maher coming in second with 60 and Marty Whittemore third with 51. The wreath sale chairmen for the troop were Matt Poflak and Ray Whittemore. Troop Committee Chairman Jim Whittemore and Scoutmaster Larry Keats gave their tanks to the parents who turned out for making the wreath decorations.

Sign Up Time For The Slopes

The time is drawing near — only one week left to register for the Recreation Dept.'s February Vacation Ski Program for boys and girls in Grades 3 to 6. No registrations will be taken after Dec. 28 since confirmation of reservations must be made with the ski area.

The program will be conducted on three consecutive days over the February Vacation Period — Feb. 21, 22, 23. The Recreation Dept. will provide transportation. Bus will leave from the McCall Jr. High Parking Lot at 9 a.m. each morning and will return at approximately 5 p.m.

Wachusett Mt. Ski Area has recently been renovated and has expanded its usage capacity to include 14 trails, 90 acres of Alpine terrain, all of which have snow making, a 24,000 square foot base lodge and three chair lifts (one of which is 4,500 feet in length).

Many of the girls and boys who have already registered have never skied before and are eager to have this opportunity to learn how to ski from the professionally trained staff at the mountain who will instruct one hour per day at all levels of skiing ability. Rental of equipment is available for all.

Three options are available:

A) Open skiing, ski lifts and transportation, $36 for 3 days.

B) Ski lift, lessons open skiing and transportation, $40 for 3 days.

D) Ski lift, lessons, open skiing, transportation and rental, $66 for 3 days.

Frink Is Honored As Soccer Stand-Out At Carnegie-Mellon

Winchester native Neal Frink, a junior defender and team captain of the Carnegie-Mellon University soccer team, was recently named second-team All-New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Delaware by the National Soccer Coaches Assn. of America. He was the only player from the Presidents' Athletic Conference (PAC) selected.

Frink, an All-PAC selection in 1981, '82 and '83 and the Tartan Most-Valuable-Player in '81 and '83, was a defensive stand-out for CMU this past season. Under head coach Nick Gaudioso, Frink helped lead the Tartans to a 9-5 overall record in 1983, their best finish in several seasons.

In addition to playing excellent defense, Frink, a 5 foot 11 inch 155 pounder, scored six goals and assisted on one other CMU score this year. In three seasons at CMU he has scored 10 goals and has dished off nine assists for a total of 29 career points.

Frink is a chemical engineering and engineering and public policy major at CMU. He is the son of Louise Frink of Maxwell rd.

Established in 1974, Concord Lamp & Shade, 21 Walden St., Concord Center has preserved the informal and personal customer-merchant relationship which has typified the New England shopkeepers and their patrons since colonial days.

Owners Paul and Cindy Lambert have an old-fashioned philosophy regarding customer relations. "We feel that the treatment of a customer and the environment in which a customer shops are as important as the products we sell," explains Paul.

"We provide service in a low-key friendly atmosphere and will solve a customer's lighting needs by offering a number of potential solutions to each problem," adds Cindy.

At Concord Lamp & Shade, creative lighting is their business. Both Paul and Cindy agree that lighting is not just functional, but it is also a decorative accessory to the design and mood of a room. As Cindy explains, "Good lighting is essential to a warm, cozy, home environment."

Concord Lamp & Shade is a complete lamp shop. The selection includes table and floor lamps in traditional, contemporary and country styles, as well as wall lamps and chandeliers. Hand-thrown pottery and custom Orientals are also specialties.

Lampshades are available in a variety of shapes and sizes including hand-sewn silks, linens, parchments, cut and pierced wildflowers and shirred muslins.

Also a custom shade service shop, Concord Lamp & Shade's services range from recovering old silks to making a shade from your own fabric.

Paul and Cindy also offer lamp-design service including custom creations, lamp repairs, and antique repairs. Some of Paul's creations include lamps made from antique shoes, trumpets, vases, porcelains, and candlesticks.

They also stock a complete selection of lamp parts.

The selection, service and friendliness at Concord Lamp & Shade attract people from all over Massachusetts. A refreshing anachronism that reflects the atmosphere of the town in which it exists, Concord Lamp & Shade will undoubtedly continue to maintain its admirable record of old-fashioned service and customer satisfaction for many years.

For all your lighting needs and advice, experience the personal and friendly service extended by Paul and Cindy to all their customers. For lamp and shade repair, lamp design or a wide selection of lamps in stock, or for assistance in making your own special lamp, visit Concord Lamp & Shade in Concord or call Paul or Cindy at 369-2597. They are open Monday-Friday, 10-5:30, Thursdays 10-8, and Saturdays 10-5.

Sachemettes Start Out With Win

Two games into the season, the Sachemette basketball team is showing the kind of team effort that wins ballgames.

It certainly won the first game of the season, when the Sachemettes defeated Belmont 43-35 thanks to a real effort on defense and good scoring from six players.

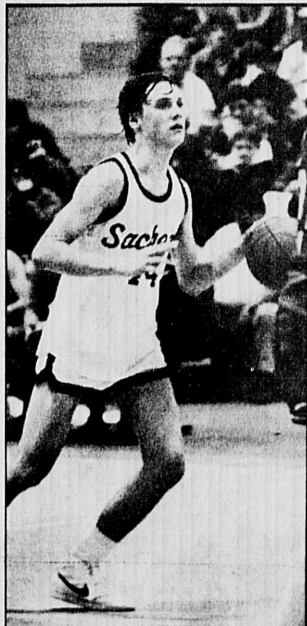

The Sachemette defense held Belmont to a mere 14 points in the first half while the offense collected 21.

But the offense really had to go to work in the second half when Belmont ran off a streak of baskets to tie the game 24-up.

Winchester slowly built up a 32-26 lead during the rest of the third quarter, and then turned the ball over to center Kristen McNamara. McNamara dropped in three baskets, the Sachemettes got another two, and the Winchester girls had the game sewn up.

Every Sachemette contributed to the scoring — McNamara had a dozen points, Barbara Delaney was close behind with nine, Ellen Clavin had seven, Paula Russo six, Camille Ducharme five and Mich

Sachems Blown Out Two Times

About the best thing you can say about the Sachem basketball team's first week is that it's over.

The Sachems were pulverized twice in a row, losing by almost 30 points in the season opener and losing by more than 30 points in their second game of the new season.

It might have been a bad experience, but at least the week was some experience for the young Sachem team.

And that experience did lead to a decent second half in the second game against Wakefield. Winchester kept up with Wakefield in the half, scoring 30 points to the Warriors' 33.

That didn't make up for a miserable first half, when the Sachems didn't score until the last minute of the first quarter. Wakefield's 35-7 trouncing in the first half couldn't be overcome, and the final score ended up 68-37.

Which is about the same as the final score of the Sachems' first contest of the year, when Belmont tore apart the Sachems 60-33.

Top scorer in both contests was center Hank Lynch, who scored nine against Belmont and 14 against Wakefield.

Fast Start

Swimmers Sink Opponents In Middlesex League Carnival

Other Middlesex League boys' swim teams might claim to be strong in certain events — Burlington brags of the butterfly-swimming Wing brothers, and Melrose maintains it is tops in the breast stroke.

But this year's Winchester swim team can claim to be powerful in every event. And to prove that isn't a hollow boast, take a look at the Middlesex League Relay Carnival last week.

In the medley relay, the diving event, the freestyle, the butterfly, the backstroke and the breast stroke, Winchester took first place. In fact, Winchester bested the other five Middlesex League teams in seven of the eight events.

The 276-point victory for Winchester bodes well for the coming season, as Winchester tries to repeat its 1982-83 Middlesex League championship effort.

"It says a lot," commented coach Vin Palumbo of the victory. "I'm really hoping we can repeat this year."

"Overall, I think this year we have more experience than we've ever had," said Palumbo. "Although we lost a couple of good swimmers, we've got a lot of good swimmers back and we gained a couple of good freshmen."

The good swimmers Palumbo has back this year include co-captains Alex Laats and Rodney Green, both of whom looked impressive in the Carnival. Green, in fact, was the dominating swimmer in two of the events.

The veterans have been supplemented by freshmen such as Jim Bowers, Jim Blasi, Greg O'Connor and Guy Pollino. Pollino in particular was a welcome addition to the team, since his diving skills strengthened the Sachems in one of their weakest areas.

In the Carnival, it didn't seem Winchester had any weak areas. In the only event the team didn't win, the 400 individual medley, Palumbo was going with three novice swimmers and one swimmer with only a year of experience.

For the rest of the afternoon, Winchester controlled the pool.

Not that there wasn't stiff competition — Winchester won the first event by only two seconds, faced up to the Burlingtons and the Melroses in their best events, and came from behind to win one race.

But if the other teams could challenge Winchester, they couldn't beat the Sachems.

Winchester scraped by in the first event, the 200 medley, beating out Belmont by two seconds. But their 1:54.0 time was good enough to win for freshman Jim Bowers (backstroke), co-captain Alex Laats (breast stroke), Scott Van Curen (butterfly) and David Benoit (freestyle).

The second race, however, wasn't even close after Rodney Green broke away in the third leg of the relay. Green gave teammates Blasi, Bentley and Bowers a three-quarter-length-of-the-pool lead to work with, and the Sachems won the 500 freestyle in 4:41.31.

The Sachem team of Andy Holt, Sinan Kobu, Guy Pollino and Matt Galvin could only manage a fifth in the 400 IM, but the Sachems quickly got back into the winner's circle thanks to Pollino's performance in the diving event.

Pollino was the first among 14 divers with his 108 points. With the scores of Galvin and Blasi added in, that was enough for a Winchester first place.

Then came a real challenge, the 300 butterfly, Burlington's top event thanks to Red Devil swimmers David and Gary Wing.

Boys' Track Team Loses Only Three Events In First Win

Although the distance events, as usual, will be the strength of the Winchester High boys' track team, the first meet of the season shows the Sachems will be tough to beat anywhere.

The Sachems lost only three events in beating Burlington 54-31 in the first meet, and picked up the important seconds and thirds as well.

Winchester lost the first event, the high hurdles, but came back to sweep the 100-yard dash with Pat Murray winning in 5.4 seconds, Tim Wood taking second and Jose Calero coming in third.

The importance of depth was shown in the next event, the 600. Although Burlington won, the points gained from Tim Haaland's second-place showing and Bob Feldman's third-place effort put Winchester in the lead.

They would never be behind again. Glenn Dorsam won the 300 in 35.7, and then Dave McCall added to the points with a second-place throw in the shot put.

Winchester didn't lose another event, with Mark Herlihy starting off the Sachem rush.

Herlihy won the 1000 in 2:32.5 with Sachem Jim Whitehead only 3.6 seconds behind to take second place.

Bill Derry and Brian Pothier combined for a first and third in the mile, then Barry Sirchis left all the competition well behind, winning the two-mile in 9:16.1.

The wins continued with Kevin Driscoll leaping six feet for a victory in the high jump, and ended up with Murray, Haaland, Herlihy and Derry winning the relay in 3:51.3.

Girl Tracksters Take First By Overwhelming Margin

By LIZ WILLEN

When a team as young and relatively inexperienced as the Winchester High School girls' track team goes out and wins their first meet by a resounding 34 points, their coach is bound to be a bit surprised.

But the surprise Coach Joe Cantillon received at Burlington on Saturday was a pleasant one — in fact, he wouldn't mind being surprised like that all season.

"I must admit I was nervous before the meet," noted Cantillon. "There are so many girls on the team who don't have a lot of experience, and I had no idea how they would do."

The Sachemettes had no idea they would fare as well as they did either. While last year's team boasted a 4-2 record, most of its members have either graduated or not gone out for the team.

The pressure was on the new girls — and they proved that pressure permits performances.

Sophomore Zoe Layden began her season by running one of her best races ever (she was on the team as a freshman) in the 45-yard hurdles — she took first place with a time of 7.1.

And freshman Lyssa Skehan also ran a great race, although she stumbled on one of the hurdles and didn't place.

The Sachemettes were one, two and three in the 45-yard dash — with Jackie Burke (6.1), Michelle Gibson (6.3) and Michelle Sweeney (6.4). Senior Jackie Burke is an exception to the young team — she has been a consistent all-league runner throughout high school.

In the 600-yard dash, Liz Doherty (1:42.2) and Lisa Brown (1:42.3) were first and second for Winchester.

Coming in second for the Sachemettes in the 300-yard dash with a score of 44.4 was soccer star Karen Serieka, who has never run winter track before. Behind her was freshman Lindsey Caulfield.

Janet Weylman came in second in the 1,000-yard run with a score of 3:14.4. She was followed by freshman Leslie Strazullo, with a time of 3:16.8.

Freshman Zoe Layden jumped her way into first place in the high jump (4'10") followed by Julie Conley.

And in the shot-put, an event that requires strength, speed and technique, junior Margaret Mathson won by throwing 32 feet.

Winchester also showed strength in the mile and two mile events. Second and third place in the mile were secured by Laura Weylman (6:04.7) and Jean Cullen (6:14.7), and first and second place in the two mile was taken by Lauren Chabot (13:36.7) and Mary Ann Murray (14:16).

Winchester's 440 relay team of Debbie Doherty, Carolyn Curry, Martha Nolan and Karen Serieka was also victorious.

Cantillon's pre-season jitters have certainly been allayed, although he is still a little bit concerned about some of the longer distances.

"In the past, I was worried about the shorter distances," he admitted. "And this year, that's where we are the strongest. But as long as we win, I don't really care."

But the Sachemettes showed strength all around in their first meet, and if they continue to perform that way, Cantillon shouldn't have a thing to worry about.

Wrestlers Pin Down Saugus With Ease, 65 Points To 4

Winchester High School's wrestling team won their first match against Saugus so convincingly that Coach Larry Tremblay said it almost wasn't a match.

In fact, the Winchester Sachems were so much better than the Saugus Sachems that the battle of the warriors was almost boring for Tremblay. At the same time, he was delighted with the 65-4 non-league victory last week.

"It was good for their egos — but let's face it, it's much more exciting to watch a tough match," Tremblay said.

If the Winchester wrestlers were bored watching their fellow mat-men pin opponent after opponent, they were undoubtedly pleased as well. After all, a total of nine team members won that way.

While they may have made much out of the men from Saugus, Winchester wrestlers were only warming up for their next meet against Lowell on Saturday. They won with a resounding 46-18 victory.

Although Tremblay acknowledges that the victories are a nice way to begin the season, he isn't worried that his wrestlers will become too cocky.

"We've got some tough matches coming up," he predicted, referring to tomorrow night's tournament against Methuen and Lowell. "And they've been working really hard in practice."

The hard work certainly paid off against Saugus. Andy Lowenstein, Alex Puchulu, Jay Rice, Joe Lawrence, Rob Anderson, Tony Fortunati, Don Divicenzo, Steve Cullen and Jim Vancini all racked up pins to their credit. And in the 140-pound category, Charlie Cowen beat his Saugus opponent 36-0, a new record for him.

The Lowell meet was a bit tougher and a lot more exciting for the Sachems, according to Tremblay. In four of the matches, Sachem wrestlers were losing before they turned around and pinned their opponents.

The lighter wrestlers had few problems — At 107, Andy Lowenstein won 21-12, and Sachems Alex Puchulu, Jay Rice and Joe Lawrence all pinned their men, followed by Rob Anderson and Tony Fortunati. The 157-pounder won 12-8.

At 169, Don Divicenzo won by a pin, along with Steve Cullen at 187. Heavyweight Jim Vancini won his match, 3-2.

"Our biggest strength seems to be with the middleweight wrestlers," noted Tremblay. "But because we have only two seniors on the team, I'm not too concerned about it."

One of the reasons Tremblay isn't concerned is because he knows that this year's team is mainly a rebuilding one. And the other reason is that the first two matches have proven that the Sachems may be far stronger than Tremblay is willing to say at the moment.

"We haven't had our first league meet yet," he said. "We'll see what happens."

If the first two meets are any indication of the wrestling season to come, then the rest of the Middlesex League better start thinking about meeting the Sachems on the mat. And they better start worrying.

"The Burlington coach told me at the beginning of the meet that 'This is my race,'" recalled Palumbo. "I said it should be close."

Palumbo was right, the race was close. The Burlington coach was wrong. Like most of the other races, the 300 butterfly was Winchester's, not Burlington's, as the Sachems' Blasi, Van Ummersen, Andy Laats and Andy Holt combined for a 2:57.15 time and a victory.

Winchester had another challenge — Melrose looked to be as strong in the breast stroke as Burlington did in the butterfly.

But again, Winchester looked a little bit stronger. Greg O'Connor, Jim Bowers, Rodney Green and Matt Kennedy won the 300 breast stroke in 3:11.61.

In between the two match races, the Winchester team of Alex Laats, Andy Laats, O'Connor and Kennedy won the 200 freestyle in 1:42.08.

In the final race of the afternoon, Winchester was almost upset. Despite efforts by Bentley, Laats and Kennedy, Winchester had fallen behind in the 400 freestyle.

But Green, rested during the last event, made up all the time and the team won the race handily.

With that kind of finale to that kind of a meet, there can be little doubt the boys' swim team will cruise through the Middlesex League competition this season.

The biggest obstacle to a great season, in fact, will come from the non-league teams Winchester is scheduled to swim against.

Once again this season, the Sachems will be facing Acton-Boxboro, the only team to beat them last season. Brockton, whom the Sachems barely beat last year by winning the final event, will also be back this year.

And if that's not enough, Winchester has a new nemesis, Framingham North, a team Palumbo respects.

So even if you have no doubt about how the season will end, there will be some excitement along the way.

Powers four.

Which is a change from last season, when the Sachemettes had to rely on one shooter and ended up with a mediocre record.

The Sachemettes' record going into the week was only .500, true, but the 53-46 loss to Wakefield in the second game of the season Friday wasn't anything for the Sachemettes to be ashamed of.

Against Wakefield, last year's league champion, the Sachemettes put up stiff resistance. They came out shooting and built up a 16-6 lead by the second quarter. And even after that lead evaporated at the half, they hung tough.

They kept within a half-dozen points for most of the second half, and put on a last-minute rush to pull within four before time ran out.

Winchester's Youth Hockey In-House Teams Play Three Rousing Home Games

Winchester Youth Hockey will take the next two weeks off for the holidays, but approached the holiday break with three rousing games at the USA Rink Friday night.

In the first game, the Blue Knights and the Green Machine battled to a 2-all tie with non-stop up and down the ice action throughout. Both Blue Knight goals coming from Billy Cunningham, a new and welcome addition to the team.

In the second game the Orange Tigers won out over the White Sharks in a game that was tied one apiece for most of the contest. The Orange went ahead 2-1 in the second period and the score remained the same until only five minutes remained in the game, when two Orange goals sealed the victory. The White goal came on an end to end rush by John Geoghegan. The goal scorers for the Green and Orange teams were not made available by press time.

In the senior division, the Greens edged the Blues 8-7 in an exciting high scoring game highlighted by many end-to-end rushes by both teams.

After the holidays, the Seniors will begin home and away contests with Billerica beginning on Jan. 6, when the Blues will entertain a team from Billerica at 7 p.m. at the USA rink. And the Green seniors will travel to Tully Forus Jan. 8 at 6 p.m. to play another team in the Billerica in-house league. They will continue to play home and away games for the rest of the season with three teams from Billerica. Other towns are also being contacted about games.

Winchester Squirt Traveling Team played Saturday afternoon against a fine Arlington squad and lost out 4-1. It was, however, a good solid performance by the boys of both towns.

Come out and support them on Saturday afternoons at the Burlington Ice Palace. They are progressing every week and are very enjoyable to watch and cheer for.

Star Corrections

Last week's report on the Winchester Youth Hockey's in-house league reported the wrong first name for the White Shark's John Geoghegan. John layed a centering pass on Mike McDonough's stick to earn an assist after McDonough scored the Shark's only goal.

The name of a student in the 9th grade on the Honor Roll printed last week should have read Cary Williams.

was the night before Christmas when all through the house...

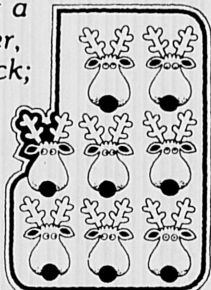

Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse. The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, in hopes that St. Nicholas soon would be there. The children were nestled all snug in their beds, While visions of sugarplums danced in their heads. And Mamma in her kerchief and I in my cap had just settled down for a long winter's nap. When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter, I sprang from my bed to see what was the matter. Away to the window I flew like a flash, tore open the shutters, and threw up the sash. The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow gave a luster of midday to objects below, when, what to my wondering eyes should appear, but a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer, with a little old driver, so lively and quick;

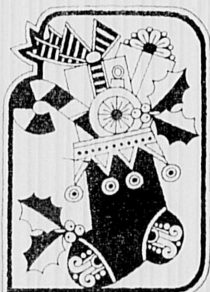

I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick. More rapid than eagles his coursers they came. And he whistled and shouted, and called them by name: "Now, Dasher! Now Dancer! Now Prancer & Vixen! On, Comet! On, Cupid! On Donner and Blitzen! To the top of the porch, to the top of the wall! Now, dash away! Dash away! Dash away all!" As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly, when they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky, so up to the housetop the coursers they flew With a sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas, too. And then in a twinkling, I heard on the roof The prancing and pawing of each little hoof. As I drew in my head, and was turning around, Down the chimney St.

Nicholas came with a bound. He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot, and his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot. A bundle of toys he had flung on his back, and he looked like a peddler just opening his pack. His eyes how they twinkled! His dimples how merry. His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry. His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow, and the beard on his chin was as white as the snow. The stump of a pipe held tight in his teeth, and the smoke, it encircled his head like a wreath. He had a broad face and a little round belly that shook, when he laughed, like a bowl full of jelly. He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf, and I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself. A wink of his eye and a twist of his head soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread. He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work, And filled all the stockings, then turned with a jerk. And laying his finger aside of his nose, and giving a nod, up the chimney he rose. He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle, and away they all flew like the down of a thistle. But I heard him exclaim as he drove out of sight, "Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night." you have a

LEGISLATIVE SALARIES (H 6795): House 121-27, refused to discharge the rules committee from further consideration of a bill limiting the salaries of legislative leaders and committee chairs. The bill would limit the speaker and senate president's salaries to 50 percent above regular members; the floor leaders' and Ways and Means chairs' to 25 percent above and all other committee chairs to $1000 above regular members. Current pay for rank and file members is $31,000.

Some supporters said current leadership salaries are excessive and said the salaries proposed in the bill are reasonable. They urged that the bill be discharged so the full House can vote on it.

Some opponents said the committee needs more time to consider the bill. Others said they were against the salary cuts.

A "Yea" vote is for discharge. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT (H 6320): House gave initial approval 82-68, to a bill creating a special commission to study the death penalty in Massachusetts. Under the bill, the study commission would consider, but not be limited to, whether the penalty should be reimplemented, the procedures and standards by which it should be imposed, and the methods to carry out the sentence.

Supporters said the death penalty is an important issue and that all aspects of it should be examined and re-examined.

Opponents said the study was an attempt to delay and repeal the death penalty.

A "Yea" vote is for the study. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Opponents said the bill is fiscally irresponsible and claimed that continued borrowing will hurt the state's economy.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

CRAVEN REPORT (H 6892): House 96-52, adopted an order reprimanding Rep. James Craven, as recommended by the House Ethics Committee.

Supporters said they supported the committee's recommendation and conclusion that Craven violated a House rule stating that members should make every reasonable effort to avoid activities and transactions which are in substantial conflict with or will substantially impair their independence of judgement. They noted that the State Ethics Commission had ruled that Craven used his position to benefit his immediate family.

Opponents said the case was not all that clear cut and that if there was a conflict of interest, it was very far removed and did not justify a reprimand. They said the procedures of the commission and committee were questionable and claimed the reprimand move was an attempt to damage Craven and defeat him at the next election.

A "Yea" vote is for the reprimand. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

BLUE HILL (S 2266): House 101-45, gave initial approval to a $25 million bond issue authorizing the expenditure of funds for the state to purchase stock in the Blue Hill Regional Development Corporation.

Supporters said the bill was essential to fund the corporation which is designed to revitalize the decaying Blue Hill Avenue region.

Opponents said the state's bonded indebtedness is too high and said the state is setting a bad precedent by funding a specific, untested community project to the tune of $25 million.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A INDIGENT COUNSEL (S 2218): House 146-3, gave final approval and sent to the Senate, a bill establishing a committee for public counsel services. The committee would coordinate a system for the appointment of lawyers for defendants unable to afford one.

Supporters said vital service for the poor in the state.

Opponents said the bill is poorly drafted and sets up a large new state bureaucracy which will cost millions.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

NUTRITION (H 6873): House 124-25, defeated a supplemental budget amendment cutting $1.3 million for funding of nine new nutrition centers.

Amendment supporters said the centers are not necessary and claimed proposed money for a Dept. of Public Health Office of Malnutrition and other programs are sufficient.

Amendment opponents said the malnutrition problem in the state is serious and that the $1.3 million for the centers is a key part of the solution.

A "Yea" vote is against the $1.3 million. A "Nay" vote is for the $1.3 million.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET (H 6873): House 137-6, approved and sent to the Senate a $3.3 million supplemental budget for women, infants, and children's programs.

Supporters said the bill funds vital lead paint programs and food and health programs. They defended the items as essential and fiscally responsible.

Opponents said the package contains items that are not necessary this year and will cost the taxpayers money.

A "Yea" vote is for the package. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

ZONINGS (S 6781): House 77-66, gave final approval and sent to the Senate a bill giving "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

FEES (H 6866): House 83-66, approved a key amendment to a bill extending the Secretary of Administration and Finance's authority to increase various fees for state services and licenses. The bill allows the secretary to set the fees and requires legislative approval only if the fees are being raised by more than 150 percent. The amendment freezes fees for one year and after that requires legislative approval to raise any fees.

Supporters said the legislature, not the secretary, should have the sole authority to raise fees which are in effect hidden taxes. They said fees have increased $200 million in four years and that it must stop.

Opponents said the fee hikes have been reasonable and claimed giving the power to the secretary has worked well and has raised state revenue without the need for a broad based tax increase.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment freezing fees and requiring legislative approval of any hike. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

PENSIONS (S 2161): House 114-37, gave initial approval to a bill requiring the state and local cities and towns to begin to make provisions to pay for their unfunded pension liabilities. The complicated 23-page bill increases the ways communities' pension funds can be invested to allow them to get more interest on their investments. It also establishes a state system which communities can join voluntarily.

Supporters argued a system to set money aside is needed or there will be no money to pay future pensions. They said the bill was not perfect but was a step in the right direction.

Opponents objected to many provisions in the bill. They said elected officials, not appointed three year protection against dimensional changes in zoning. Currently, dimensional changes, go into effect immediately.

Supporters argued individuals should have the security of three years' protection for any plans which conform to existing zoning.

Opponents said the bill is anti-home rule and urged the bill be effective only in communities which accept it. They said the state does not know the needs and nuances of local communities and should not set a statewide standard which some opponents said favors large developers and not individuals.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

TRANSPORTATION (H 6617): House 124-20, gave final approval and sent to the Senate, a conference committee version of a $600 million plus transportation bond package for development and improvement of the state's transportation facilities. Included was $100 million for the Massachusetts Convention Center Authority to renovate and expand the Hynes Auditorium. Supporters defended the package as fiscally responsible and as one that would help the state and cities and towns with transportation improvement.

Opponents said the $100 million for the Hynes is excessive and doesn't even belong in a transportation package. They said the package is also loaded with other wasteful items.

A "Yea" vote is for the package. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

We would like to take this opportunity to wish all our friends and clients all the joy, the hope and wonder of Christmas.

Winchester Stars

MUSIC MAVEN — Oxford st. resident Corie Nichols says that music has always been an exciting part of her life, and she wants it to become part of the lives of others. So she set up the Winchester Music Program to provide lessons for aspiring musicians.

Music Lover

Nichols Works To Bring Joy Of Music To Winchester Aspiring Instrumentalists

By ZOE CARTER

If Corie Nichols had her way, Winchester residents would be dropping their troubles and picking up their instruments all across town.

Nichols is determined to involve the Winchester community in the arts, and especially in music, a quest which comes from a very personal love and belief in the satisfaction that comes from playing music and sharing it with others.

"Playing music is a resource that lasts all your life," Nichols said, with her quick, warm smile. "It adds balance and delight. In college it was a joy to come together and share music. Now I'm helping other people make music."

Three years ago, Nichols' personal passion for music inspired her to cook up plans for a Winchester Music Program — a program that currently boasts 21 teachers and 195 students who range in age from 3 to 60.

In addition to her job as coordinator of the Music Program, Nichols is working hard to put together both a brochure and a resource list on the arts in Winchester.

The brochure will list groups and organizations having to do with the arts — from dance to calligraphy — and everything in between. The list will include names of teachers and professionals in Winchester who are involved in some area of the arts.

"The list will reflect the vitality of the arts in town," she said. "It will create a picture of Winchester as a place where there are many people with a commitment to the arts. It will also bring teachers and students together."

Bringing students and teachers together is Nichols' speciality as participants of the Music Program can testify. Not surprisingly, Nichols' musical mission grew from her own experience as a student singing in the Smith College Chamber Singers conducted by Iva de Hiatt, who, as Nichols puts it, "inspired everyone."

She remembers touring in Europe for eight weeks one summer with the Chamber Singers and calls it a "pivotal experience."

"We were a group of 60 women traveling and performing at places like the Brussels World Fair, the Wales International

About Town

Giuliani Named

Marjorie Giuliani of Winchester has been named Warm Line Coordinator at Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc. according to an announcement by Jayne A. Tapia, MSN, executive director.

The Warm Line is another new service to the community just implemented by the non-profit visiting nurse agency.

Warm Line is a program of continuing, regular contact for discharged home health care patients. It is planned follow-up.

The service is for patients who are discharged but still require a link to the agency in case health care services are again required. Warm Line will provide the needed contact for patients who may possibly have a problem during their recuperation or whose condition may be subject to change.

The Warm Line coordinator at the visiting nurse headquarters calls the patient at home according to schedule. Calls are made from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The coordinator notes patients' responses and reports back to their professional when problems are noted.

Stoddard Performs

Ellen Stoddard, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Stoddard of Mt. Vernon st., performed with the New England Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and Chorus at Lincoln Center in New York City on Dec. 10. Stoddard is a voice student and member of the chorus at New England Conservatory in Boston.

The New England Conservatory Symphony Orchestra and Chorus was invited by the Beethoven Society to present an all-Bethoven program in Alice Tully Hall. The concert included performances of the Overture to "Fidelio" and Symphony No. 2, in C Major, conducted by Lorna Cooke deVaron.

Gittleman Listed

Thomas Gittleman, senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sol Gittleman of Fletcher st., was listed on the Effort Honor Roll for the Fall Term at Proctor Academy. Seventy-one of the 260 students at Proctor were so honored.

Gunby In Who's Who

Susan Gunby of Yale st. was one of 24 Drew University students named to the 1984 edition of "Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges."

The students are selected on the basis of outstanding academic achievement, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

Gunby is a senior majoring in psychology at the Madison, N.J., university.

Costello Participates

WINCHESTER PARTICIPANT — Winchester resident Maura Costello (r), administrative assistant of social service at Norwood Hospital, took part in the annual dinner program for New England health care leaders sponsored by New England Rehabilitation Hospital. She is shown with Sara Jane Greenwood, coordinating continuing care official at the same hospital.

D'Angelo Elected

Lisa Ann D'Angelo of Winchester has been elected to the Student Council of the Katharine Gibbs School, Boston, where she is enrolled in the one-year Secretarial Program-Advanced Section.

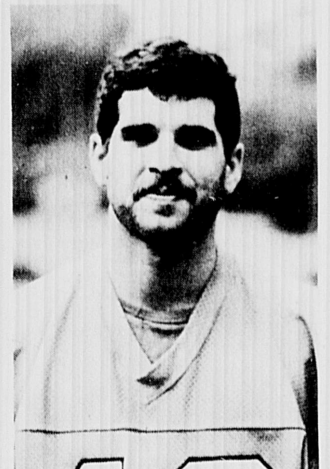

D'Angelo is the daughter of Luca D'Angelo and is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School.

Collella Honored

Winchester resident Patricia Collella was among 40 Choate-Symmes Hospital employees who were honored for collectively accruing more than 24,000 hours of unused sick time.

In recognition of accruing at least 70 days (560 or more hours) of unused sick leave at the Choate Hospital Division in Woburn, Collella who works in the Nursing Dept., was awarded a $100 U.S. savings Bond at a recent Presentism luncheon held at the hospital.

Micciche An All-Star

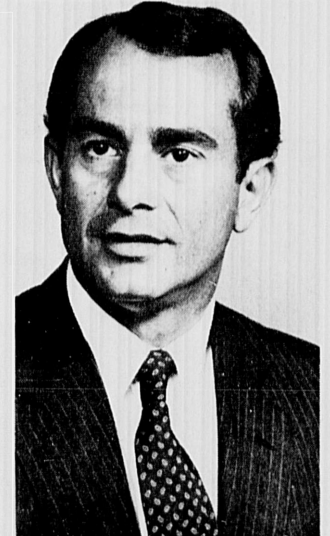

ALL-STAR — Jeff Micciche of Amberwood dr., a junior at Tufts University and a starting defensive tackle on the Jumbos, has been selected as a defensive lineman on the ECAC All-Star Team. Micciche, a 6-foot-2, 195-pounder, has been a two-year starter at defensive tackle after being converted from fullback. This season, he led the Jumbos in tackles with 90, including 18 stops behind the line of scrimmage. He led the team in solo tackles with 50, tied for the team lead in quarterback sacks with four, and batted down four passes this year.

Curtis Nominated

NOMINATED — Air Force Brig. Gen. Lewis G. Curtis, the son of Stella B. Curtis of Main st., was recently nominated by President Ronald Reagan for promotion to major general. Gen. Curtis, a 1951 graduate of Winchester High School, is deputy chief of staff for logistics at Hq. United States Air Forces in Europe at Ramstein AB, West Germany. His military awards and decorations include the Distinguished Service Medal, the Legion of Merit with one oak leaf cluster, the Bronze Star, Meritorious Service Medal with one oak leaf cluster, the Air Force Commendation Medal with one oak leaf cluster, and the Republic of Vietnam Gallantry Cross with palm.

Ciotti Promoted

PROMOTED — Daniel B. Ciotti of Main st. has been promoted to president and chief operating officer of United States Trust in Boston. Before his promotion, he was executive vice president of United States Trust Co., in charge of the commercial banking division, and vice chairman of the board of directors. He is the chairman of the Winchester Finance Committee.

Rainbow Girls Finish Year Of Community Service Projects

During the past year, Winchester Rainbow Girls meeting in Woburn at the Masonic Home, 17 Arlington rd., have had many interesting, informative and community service projects under the direction of Mother Advisor Barbara McSweeney and Worthy Advisor Merri C. Abruzzese.

In June, members and visitors enjoyed a special ethnic dinner featuring foods of the world and an extra special treat, a candy filled Pinata. The young children delighted in taking turns hitting the candy from the Pinata. Tables were decorated with flags of all nations while the buffet table was done in Red, White and Blue. Norwegian bread, lasagna, chinese specialties, knockwurst and a local favorite Boston baked beans were served.

A very successful aluminum drive was conducted. Pumpkins were decorated in October for the Choate Memorial Hospital, where they were well received by young and old alike.

Snoopy, Cindy Wheaton, Pippin, Lauraly Lovering, and Minnie Mouse. Barbara Otis won 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes at our Halloween Spook Costume Party. A favorite event was our spoonless, handless ice cream eating contest. Gales of laughter filled the room as the girls ended up wearing most of the treat on their faces. A drawing was held for an illuminated ceramic pumpkin cleverly designed and made by Jackie Sandmo.

A turkey shoot in November proved challenging. Paper plate turkeys were set up to be shot down by Nerf balls. Several comments overheard were "That's too easy." The targets and balls both being so light no one scored more than three out of 12. The young ladies had fun as well as learning a valuable lesson, that things are not always as they appear.

A 6 a.m. "Mad Breakfast" was held at the Worthy Advisor's home on Nov. 19. This event is a surprise and the young people must come in what they are wearing at the time. One associate from Wamesit Assembly said "they'll never come for me. I live too far." Famous last words.

Abruzzese's latest service project was the Toys for Tots campaign. The girls decided to collect toys and donate them in the memory of a man who loved children, Sgt. Major Frederick Douglas, killed in the Beirut bombing. Many lovely gifts were donated including a beautifully attired boutique doll given by the Grand Deputy Bernice W. Sjostrom of Wakefield Assembly Rainbow Girls.

During the year other festivities included a Pillow Talk Walk, 3-D decoupage demonstration an ice cream smorgasbord, and a drawing on a set of stuffed bears. A tin of imported candy was brought over and donated to Abruzzese by Grahame A. West, Home Sales Director of Vent-Axia Ltd., of Crawley, England. West, a special friend has contributed to the success of many projects.

Abruzzese has enjoyed her terms in office and will vacate her position on Jan. 14.

The New Superintendent

NEW SUPERINTENDENT — Winchester's new school superintendent, Charles Mitsakos, was welcomed to town during a luncheon put on by the School Committee. Mitsakos (second from right) was greeted by (l to r) Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell, Acting Supt. Robert Forest and School Committee Chairman Connie Papas. Mitsakos will take over his new position after Christmas vacation.

D.A.R. Holds Christmas Party

The Winchester Committee on Safety Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held their Christmas History and Mystery meeting on Dec. 12 at the Lakeview rd. home of Mrs. Charles P. Reeves.

Regent Mrs. Ernest A. Phillips Jr. presided and vice regent Mrs. Francis H. Huron presented a historical program of Christmas in other lands.

Refreshments were served and an exchange of mystery presents concluded the meeting.

It's Christmas again and time to say how much it means to have the friendship and good will of folks like you. Accept our sincere thanks and warm wishes for a Happy Holiday Season

Ms. Hayes will sing songs arranged by her father, the noted tenor, Roland Hayes. Admission charged for the performance only.

Oratorical Contest

The American Legion Posts of Mass. are seeking students with oratorical skills enrolled in graded 9-12 in public, private, parochial or military schools to compete in the legion's 47th annual American Legion Oratorical Contest.

High Schools have received complete details relating to the program. The subject of the oration must concern itself with some phase of the Constitution of the United States of America. It must be the original effort of the contestant, and must be delivered in not less than eight minutes and not more than 10. Coaching or prompting is not allowed. The top national awards are: first place, $16,000; second place, $14,000; third place, $12,000; and fourth place $8,000.

The remaining funds, also provided by the American Legion Insurance Trust Fund, will be distributed to the orators competing in sectional and regional contests. Cash awards are also made at the county and state level.

Students seeking further information are asked to contact their high school principal, their local American Legion Post, and if necessary, Dept. Oratorical chairman James W. Conway, 7 Belmont st., Charlestown 02129. Application forms postmarked after Dec. 22, 1983, will not be accepted.

Hospital X-Ray Dept. Gets New Space

Hospital Addition Brings New Comfort, Convenience

Winchester Hospital's Radiology Dept. has always kept pace with changing technology, but comfort and convenience for both patients and staff have often been less than desirable.

The chief problem has been a lack of space, a difficulty resulting from the addition to the department of many new techniques during the past two decades, including arteriography, mammography, ultrasound, tomography, and automatic X-ray-film processing.

But three weeks ago, the Radiology staff received the long-awaited solution to their problems. They relocated to the ground floor of Winchester Hospital's new wing and are now enjoying facilities nearly 80 percent larger than their former quarters in the hospital's old "A" wing.

"It feels very, very good to be here," said William Bray, who has served as chief X-ray technician at the hospital since 1958, experiencing personally the department's growing pains. We almost don't believe it.

With the move into the new addition on Nov. 28, the department now has ample space to house the large and cumbersome technology associated with an up-to-date radiological facility, plenty of room for patient examinations, and work space designed for efficiency, speed and comfort.

In the past 20 years, the volume of procedures handled by the department nearly quadrupled, with outpatient procedures outstripping inpatient procedures to constitute the bulk of the department's workload.

In planning the design for the new facilities, the department's technologists and radiologists took these new trends into account, Bray said. Whereas formerly the department's quarters included only four X-ray rooms and one ultrasound room (ultrasound is a diagnostic procedure commonly used for prenatal examinations, as well as for the detection of such conditions as gynecological disorders and gallstones), the new facilities have eight treatment rooms: six for radiography and two for ultrasound.

Of the six designated for radiography, three rooms have been set aside for general X-rays, one for tomography (X-ray of tissue by section to differentiate tumors and cysts from surrounding tissue), one for chest X-rays, and one for mammography (X-ray examination of breast tissue for abnormalities).

The increased specialization of the facilities constitutes a major improvement for patients, according to Bray. Chest examinations make up the bulk of all exams performed by the department, the chief X-ray technician noted, as most patients being admitted to the hospital are required to undergo this procedure. In recent years, however, the most marked growth in radiological procedures in his department has occurred in the number of ultrasound and mammography examinations.

In addition to an increase in the number of patient examination rooms, the new department has been computerized, improving accessibility to X-ray information. The new layout has been enhanced to allow for a supervisor to observe procedures while they are being performed in the examination rooms, and the file system has been expanded to provide for the storage of three and one-half year's worth of patient X-rays on site. A third X-ray reading room has been added to the department, as well.

Outpatients will now have private changing booths, Bray noted, "so that they won't have to sit in the hall after changing into hospital gowns." As an added comfort feature, each X-ray room has a large window in the control booth so that patients undergoing an examination won't feel closed in by their surroundings.

"If patients can view the technician," Bray said, "we've found that they're more at ease, more comfortable, and have more confidence."

NEW ROOM — To make patients feel more comfortable while undergoing an X-ray examination, each X-ray room in Winchester Hospital's new wing has a large window which allows the patient to see the X-ray technician.

Several events to raise $50,000 will be staged by the Massachusetts Grand Lodge of the Order of Sons of Italy in America to benefit the United Cerebral Palsy's "Weekend with the Stars" telethon on WCVB-TV (Channel 5) on Jan. 14-15.

Events will be held at Quincy, Watertown and Woburn Sons of Italy lodges during that weekend.

The Quincy Lodge plans a gigantic cake and crafts sale on Jan. 15, 1-5 p.m. Admission is free.

The Watertown and Woburn lodges will each hold a brunch on Jan. 15 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The menu includes scrambled eggs, sausage, home fries, ham, coffee and toast. Tickets are available at the door.

The Sons of Italy Massachusetts Grand Lodge raised $35,000 during last year's cerebral palsy effort. They have set this year's goal at $50,000.

More than 700,000 children and adults throughout the United States are disabled by cerebral palsy and 10,000 children are born with the condition each year.

Focus On The Family

Beginning Jan. 6, and continuing for seven consecutive Friday nights at 7:30, Grace Chapel in Lexington will present the James Dobson film series "Focus on the family."

Dr. Dobson is one of the day's foremost authorities on marriage and the family. It is free for all who wish to attend. Donations will be accepted to help defray the expenses.

For further information, please call Grace Chapel Office.

Student Aid Hot-Line

The Massachusetts Assn. of Student Financial Aid Administrators Inc. (MASFAA) will offer its seventh annual toll-free student financial aid hot-line service this January.

Declared by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis as "Financial Aid Awareness Month In Massachusetts," MASFAA's telephone counseling service will operate weeknights, 5 to 9 p.m., from Jan. 3 to Jan. 31. Call 1-800-462-1197 to get expert advice from MASFAA volunteers on college financial aid application and eligibility requirements.

MASFAA members answered over 2500 questions on last year's hot-line. As the only statewide financial aid counseling service in Massachusetts, MASFAA expects to assist even more students and parents on the 1984 hot-line.

State and federal financial aid is available to both graduate and undergraduate students.

Fellowship Program

The New England regional fellowship program, administered by the Boston Film/Video Foundation, will award $30,000 in production funds to independent film and video artists residing in New England.

Designed to encourage emerging artists, the fellowship program will award individual grants of up to $5,000 to complete works-in-progress or proposed new works by Dec. 31, 1984. Projects will be selected on the basis of artistic merit.

Now in its third year, the New England regional fellowship program is one of seven regional media arts fellowship programs in the country funded by the National Endowment for the Arts and the American Film Institute. Additional support is received from the Conn. Commission on the Arts and the Vt. Council on the Arts.

For applications and further information, please contact the Boston Film/Video Foundation, 1126 Boylston St., Boston, 02215.

Application deadline is March 1, 1984. Full-time students are not eligible, and projects associated with a degree program will not be considered.

Free Film

On Feb. 5, at 3 p.m. the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington will show two films - "Meet Mr. Lincoln," a 29-minute documentary, which uses still photographs and drawings of the period to depict presidency of Lincoln and "Doorway to the Past," a 29-minute documentary on Colonial Williamsburg, film which explains historical archaeology in general terms, discusses a "dig," artifacts unearthed, and a restored 18th-century tavern. Museum admission and both films are free.

Lincoln Play

On Feb. 12, from 2:30 - 4 p.m., the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington will hold a Lincoln's Birthday Program in honor of Abraham Lincoln's 175th birthday. Actor Bart McCarthy will perform "Lincoln Play," a magnificent portrayal of Lincoln the president and the man. Visitors may meet "Mr. Lincoln" in the gallery housing the exhibit, "The Controversial Mr. Lincoln," after the performance. Admission charge for the performance only, museum admission is free.

Rainbow Girls Finish Year Of Community Service Projects

During the past year, Winchester Rainbow Girls meeting in Woburn at the Masonic Home, 17 Arlington rd., have had many interesting, informative and community service projects under the direction of Mother Advisor Barbara McSweeney and Worthy Advisor Merri C. Abruzzese.

In June, members and visitors enjoyed a special ethnic dinner featuring foods of the world and an extra special treat, a candy filled Pinata. The young children delighted in taking turns hitting the candy from the Pinata. Tables were decorated with flags of all nations while the buffet table was done in Red, White and Blue. Norwegian bread, lasagna, chinese specialties, knockwurst and a local favorite Boston baked beans were served.

A very successful aluminum drive was conducted.

Pumpkins were decorated in October for the Choate Memorial Hospital, where they were well received by young and old alike.

Snoopy, Cindy Wheaton, Pippin, Laura Loring, and Minnie Mouse, Barbara Otis won 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes at our Halloween Spook Costume Party. A favorite event was our spoonless, handless ice cream eating contest. Gales of laughter filled the room as the girls ended up wearing most of the treat on their faces. A drawing was held for an illuminated ceramic pumpkin cleverly designed and made by Jackie Sandmo.

A turkey shoot in November proved challenging. Paper plate turkeys were set up to be shot down by Nerf balls. Several comments overheard were "That's too easy." The targets and balls both being so light no one scored more than three out of 12. The young ladies had fun as well as learning a valuable lesson, that things are not always as they appear.

A 6 a.m. "Mad Breakfast" was held at the Worthy Advisor's home on Nov. 19. This event is a surprise and the young people must come in what they are wearing at the time. One associate from Wamesit Assembly said "they'll never come for me, I live too far." Famous last words.

Abruzzese's latest service project was the Toys for Tots campaign. The girls decided to collect toys and donate them in the memory of a man who loved children, Sgt. Major Frederick Douglas, killed in the Beirut bombing. Many lovely gifts were donated including a beautifully attired boutique doll given by the Grand Deputy Bernice W. Sjostrom of Wakefield Assembly Rainbow Girls.

During the year other festivities included a Pillow Talk Walk, 3-D decoupage demonstration an ice cream smorgasbord, and a drawing on a set of stuffed bears. A tin of imported candy was brought over and donated to Abruzzese by Grahame A. West, Home Sales Director of Vent-Axia Ltd., of Crawley, England. West, a special friend has contributed to the success of many projects.

Abruzzese has enjoyed her terms in office and will vacate her position on Jan. 14.

D.A.R. Holds Christmas Party

The Winchester Committee on Safety Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held their Christmas History and Mystery meeting on Dec. 12 at the Lakeview rd. home of Mrs. Charles P. Reeves.

Regent Mrs. Ernest A. Phillips Jr. presided and vice regent Mrs. Francis H. Huron presented a historical program of Christmas in other lands.

Refreshments were served and an exchange of mystery presents concluded the meeting.

The New Superintendent

NEW SUPERINTENDENT — Winchester's new school superintendent, Charles Mitsakos, was welcomed to town during a luncheon put on by the School Committee. Mitsakos (second from right) was greeted by (l to r) Selectmen Chairman Edward O'Connell, Acting Supt. Robert Forest and School Committee Chairman Connie Papas. Mitsakos will take over his new position after Christmas vacation.

It's Christmas again and time to say how much it means to have the friendship and good will of folks like you. Accept our sincere thanks and warm wishes

Also on Feb. 20, at 2 p.m., "George Washington: The Courage That Made a Nation," 30-minute documentary film, will be shown. Both museum admission and the film are free.

Black History Month
On Feb. 26, at 3 p.m., the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington will present "Music of Two Worlds' Black Classical Composers," with Fredericka King, pianist and Afrika Hayes, soprano. The program includes classical works, spirituals and folk music by R. Nathaniel Dett, William Grant Still, George Walker, and John W. Work. Ms. Hayes will sing songs arranged by her father, the noted tenor, Roland Hayes. Admission charged for the performance only.

Oratorical Contest
The American Legion Posts of Mass. are seeking students with oratorical skills enrolled in graded 9-12 in public, private, parochial or military schools to compete in the legion's 47th annual American Legion Oratorical Contest.

High Schools have received complete details relating to the program. The subject of the oration must concern itself with some phase of the Constitution of the United States of America. It must be the original effort of the contestant, and must be delivered in not less than eight minutes and not more than 10. Coaching or prompting is not allowed. The top national awards are: first place, $16,000; second place, $14,000; third place, $12,000; and fourth place $8,000.

The remaining funds, also provided by the American Legion Insurance Trust Fund, will be distributed to the orators competing in sectional and regional contests. Cash awards are also made at the county and state level.

Students seeking further information are asked to contact their high school principal, their local American Legion Post, and if necessary, Dept. oratorical chairman James W. Conway, 7 Belmont st., Charlestown 02129. Application forms postmarked after Dec. 22, 1983, will not be accepted.

Focus On The Family

Beginning Jan. 6, and continuing for seven consecutive Friday nights at 7:30, Grace Chapel in Lexington will present the James Dobson film series "Focus on the family."

Dr. Dobson is one of the day's foremost authorities on marriage and the family. It is free for all who wish to attend. Donations will be accepted to help defray the expenses.

For further information, please call Grace Chapel Office.

Student Aid Hot-Line

The Massachusetts Assn. of Student Financial Aid Administrators Inc. (MASFAA) will offer its seventh annual toll-free student financial aid hot-line service this January.

Declared by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis as "Financial Aid Awareness Month In Massachusetts," MASFAA's telephone counseling service will operate weeknights, 5 to 9 p.m., from Jan. 3 to Jan. 31. Call 1-800-462-1197 to get expert advice from MASFAA volunteers on college financial aid application and eligibility requirements.

MASFAA members answered over 2500 questions on last year's hot-line. As the only statewide financial aid counseling service in Massachusetts, MASFAA expects to assist even more students and parents on the 1984 hot-line.

State and federal financial aid is available to both graduate and undergraduate students.

Free Film

On Feb. 5, at 3 p.m. the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington will show two films - "Meet Mr. Lincoln," a 29-minute documentary, which uses still photographs and drawings of the period to depict presidency of Lincoln and "Doorway to the Past," a 29-minute documentary on Colonial Williamsburg, film which explains historical archaeology in general terms, discusses a "dig," artifacts unearthed, and a restored 18th-century tavern. Museum admission and both films are free.

Lincoln Play

On Feb. 12, from 2:30 - 4 p.m., the Museum of Our National Heritage, 33 Marrett rd., Lexington will hold a Lincoln's Birthday Program in honor of Abraham Lincoln's 175th birthday. Actor Bart McCarthy will perform "Lincoln Play," a magnificent portrayal of Lincoln the president and the man. Visitors may meet "Mr. Lincoln" in the gallery housing the exhibit. "The Controversial Mr. Lincoln," after the performance. Admission charge for the performance only, museum admission is free.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 38 caliber muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 12 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We encourage all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over - from Maine to Rhode Island to New York - but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borgeon at 1-833-3102 for further information.

OLD RIFLES wanted. Early cartridge guns made before 1888 such as 45-70 (rampader) Springfield, Remington rolling block single shots, certain lever action Winchester and old muzzleloaders wanted. Especially want short barreled guns. Fair market price paid depending on condition. Call Mr. Jorgensen, publisher, Century Publications Inc., to arrange appraisal. 729-8100.

Books Purchased

WE BUY quality books. Collections, children's books, and rare literature especially wanted. Echo Books, 1173A Mass. Ave., Arlington, 643-3369.

Markey Urges Residents To Send Cards To Captured Man

Seventh District Cong. Edward J. Markey has joined with a bipartisan group of senators and U.S. representatives in an appeal to the American people to send Christmas cards and letters to Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., the Navy airman recently shot down and captured by Syrian forces.

Goodman's mother, Marilyn Goodman of Queens, N.Y., said, "I know Robert would be happy to hear from everyone. He said in a telegram to his wife to pray for peace. I hope each card everyone sends will represent a prayer for peace."

A 27-year-old New England native, Goodman is the first U.S. military prisoner to be captured during armed conflict since the Vietnam war. His wife, Terry Lynn, and two children live in Virginia Beach, Va. Goodman grew up in Portsmouth, N.H.

Arrangements will be made to deliver the cards and letters to Goodman during the holiday season. Mail should be sent prior to Christmas and may be addressed to: Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., in care of United States Congress, Washington, D.C. 20515.

The congressional sponsors of the appeal said they also planned to send a letter to Syrian President Hafez el-Assad requesting the release of Goodman as a humanitarian gesture.

Christmas Concert

WHS ORCHESTRA ON TOUR — The 35-member Winchester High School Orchestra, directed by Mark M. Jacobs, recently gave a midday concert for hotel guests and luncheon dinners in the festive atrium of the Hyatt Regency inn Cambridge. Selections performed were "Youth Overture" by E.L. Diemer, "Concertina in G" by G.B. Sammartini, "Marche Slav" and "The Nutcracker Ballet" by Tchaikovsky and selected Christmas carols.

Poetry Critic Discusses The Nature Of Poetry

Sixty Winchester and Lexington teachers listened to an exciting discussion on the nature of poetry given by Dr. Helen Vendler, recognized as one of the outstanding critics in this country today.

The meeting was the first of enrichment sessions to be provided for Winchester and Lexington teachers.

Winchester was the first school and prepared a luncheon for Dr. Vendler and Lexington teachers which was served prior to the poetry session.

Vendler is a professor of English at Boston University and continuing visiting professor of English at Harvard University.

Dr. Vendler's books include "Part Of Nature, Part Of Us: The Poetry Of George Herbert," "On Extended Wings," and her latest, "The Odes Of John Keats." William H. Pritchard in The New Republic called her the best poetry reviewer in America for her work in "Part Of Nature, Part Of Us," a book for which she won the National Critics' Circle Award for Criticism. I.A. Richards in the "Times Supplement" said of her work on George Herbert that "When you feel she has said excellently all that can usefully be said, her next paragraph displays to your unalert eyes ranges of considerations even more relevant." And of her "On Extended Wings," for which Dr. Vendler received the James Russell Lowell Prize as well as the Explicator Prize, called her one of the best close readers of poetry we now have and commented that in this book she has produced badly needed readings of Wallace Stevens' longer poems unlikely to be surpassed.

Her "Odes of John Keats" is just reaching the book stores. Robert Taylor in The Boston Globe observed that "Page after page brims with the excitement of the poet's intellectual and artistic discoveries." As noted in the review on the jacket of the book, this book is "a conjectural reconstruction of the odes as they are invented, imagined, put in sequence, and revised."

Dr. Vendler has imagined a Keats more intellectually intent than we have yet seen. Furthermore, Dr. Vendler's prose, as Taylor noted, "Brilliantly illumines the mind and art of Keats without recourse to the jargon of fashionable academic theory." This indeed is a book that itself is a work of art.

St. Eulalia's Cadets Beat St. Mary's, 60-28 To Even Record

St. Eulalia's cadet basketball team evened its seasonal record at 1-1 with a 60-28 victory over St. Mary's of Winchester. St. Eulalia's, paced by Dan Nahas with 21 points and Bill Looney with 16, dominated the game from the outset. Also contributing a fine effort to the victory were Drew Marochello, Kevin Phelan, Greg Paroyan, Ken Duffett, and Timmy Carr.

The team will resume its 18-game schedule on Jan. 6 at St. Joseph's of Somerville.

Obituaries

Arthur S. Govoni

Arthur S. Govoni of Myopia rd. died at the age of 51 on Dec. 15.

Mr. Govoni was president and founder of Arthur S. Govoni Assoc. and also Doram Corp. He was also an advisor to the American Security Council.

Mr. Govoni was active in many organizations in the Boston area. In Winchester, he was president and a long-time member of the Winchester Art Assn.

He was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Charles River Yacht Club and the Dante Alighieri Society of Boston.

He was on the Board of Trustees at Austin Preparatory School in Reading from 1972 to 1975, and an active booster for Nazareth Academy in Wakefield from 1973 to 1977.

He headed the committee to build St. Thomas Church in Wilmington, and was an active volunteer for the Heart Assn. and the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

Mr. Govoni is survived by his wife, Pauline Rose (Carbone) Govoni; three children, Arthur Govoni Jr., Monica Govoni and Joseph Govoni; his mother, Clara Govoni of Somerville, and many aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews.

Memorial donations may be made to the Heart Assn. or the Muscular Dystrophy Assn.

Richard P. Goddard

Funeral services will be held today for Winchester native and former town employee Richard P. Goddard, 71, of Plymouth.

Mr. Goddard died Dec. 20 at the University Hospital in Boston as the result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile in Plymouth Monday.

The services will be held in the Second Congregational Church of Plymouth, State rd., Manomet, at 1 p.m. The Rev. John Martin of the Second Congregational Church will officiate.

Burial will be in the Manomet Cemetery.

Mr. Goddard was a retired employee of the Winchester Park Dept. After retiring, he moved to Plymouth in 1973.

He was born in Winchester on June 14, 1912, the son of the late Henry A. Goddard and Amy L. (Hamlet) Goddard.

He is survived by two sisters, Barbara C. Little of Duxbury and Janet G. Burbank of Manomet; as well as several nieces and nephews.

Richard Davis Funeral Home, Plymouth, is in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Franklin Perkins School, Lancaster.

John T. Horn

John T. Horn of Hemingway st., a retired town employee, died on Friday at Winchester Hospital after a long illness. He was 68.

Mr. Horn lived in Winchester all of his life. He graduated from Winchester schools and was employed by the town for 43 years as a maintenance foreman for the Dept. of Public Works.

From 1950 to 1955, he was a constable for the town. Mr. Horn was also a member of Town Meeting for many years.

A World War II Navy veteran, Mr. Horn was active in veterans' affairs in town. He was past commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Aberjona Post 3719 in 1962 and 1963. He was also a member of the Winchester American Legion Post 97 and the Winchester Lodge of Elks. For many years, he was responsible for maintaining the deceased veterans' war memorial.

For the past 37 years, Horn served as marshal for the Veterans Day and Memorial Day parades. He was also associated for many years with the Queensman Drum and Bugle Corps of the Immaculate Conception Church. Mr. Horn was also a call fireman in Winchester.

He is survived by his wife, Louise Dawn (Murphy) Horn; a son, John T. Jr. of Danvers; and three daughters, Louise Dawn Farrow of Florida, Judith A. Walsh of Woburn and Debbie Carol of Winchester.

He is survived by three brothers; Creighton L. Competition and Foutainbleu," she said. "We were representing American music and American youth. We performed so frequently that summer, we had a real sense of ensemble."

Music has continued to be an important part of Nichols' life and she speaks proudly of her two children — who play clarinet and trombone — and husband — the family's second trombonist.

"In my family, music is an interest that brings us together," Nichols said. "I'm glad that my husband has music as a resource and that my son would like to go on in music."

"The various experiences in our family make me realize that music can be for your own enjoyment or you can be more serious about it. It can be either a professional or a recreational interest."

Nichols recognizes that choosing music as a career can be financially precarious. "People who might try being a professional musician often have to modify their ambitions," she added. "It can be hard to make a living."

But, according to Nichols, that is no reason not to have music play a part in your life. And this conviction has led Nichols on a crusade to bring music into the lives of both children and adults in the Winchester community.

Nichols saw the need for a music program when she realized that group instruction for instrumentals was only offered up

'We (the Winchester Music Program) have one 60-year-old banjo player and several 3½-year-olds playing cello and Suzuki violin.'

—Corie Nichols

to grade six. After that, students could participate in bands, orchestra and chorus, but there was no way to continue taking individual lessons.

"We started planning in the summer of 1980," she recalled. "We spent several months talking to people in Winchester to get a picture of the need for a program like this. The Music Dept. has been very supportive. The instrumental teachers were our first contact in Winchester."

"Then we spoke to the principal of the junior high, Mr. Robert Fitzgerald, and asked him how he would feel about using the junior high as a place for lessons. Because he felt it would be a good thing for the kids, he said he would support it. Mr. John Cahill

(the current principal) has continued that support."

Because Nichols and her fellow worker on the project, Sandy Thompson, were new at the music program business, they contacted an old hand, Ellen Powers, the director of the Belmont Music School.

"We asked Ellen Powers if she would be willing to help us start this program," Nichols said. "She's helped us with her expertise. She saw the need in Winchester and it was a way of expanding her own musical mission."

"She was concerned that we give adequate support to the teachers," Nichols explained. "Our teachers are hired from Belmont and Powers is responsible for hiring the faculty. Many of the music teachers teach in both Winchester and Belmont."

The teaching began in February 1981 with 30 students and three instructors teaching flute, percussion and trombone. As the program began to expand, Nichols was concerned that the program reflect the specific needs of the community.

"After that first spring, we did a lot of publicity to find out what people wanted to learn. By the next fall we had 14 teachers and 130 students. We're always wanting the program to respond to the imagination and need of the community rather than program it ourselves."

"We put together a steering committee in order to get input from the community and help in thinking through our goals. We looked for people with an interest in music and with a variety of different backgrounds."

Nichols also gets help with book-keeping and scheduling from Lucille Leland and Nancy Goodwin, while she and Thompson continue to do the planning and the correspondence with the teachers and students.

The program is still stationed at McCall Junior High four afternoons a week between 2:30 and 7. Nichols is pleased with the location because "the trumpets don't bother the violins."

"Students register, send their fee and tell us their instrument preference," Nichols said. "We arrange with the high school when the student can come for lessons. We usually work around soccer practices and paper routes."

Nichols stresses, however, that registration doesn't have to happen at the beginning of a semester. Any time there is space available, students can be added. She also says she would like to see more adults get involved with the program.

Nichols explains that music is a way of crossing barriers of age and language.

"We have one 60-year-old banjo player and several 3½-year-olds playing cello and Suzuki violin. We also have two Japanese students who didn't speak English this fall when they enrolled. They've learned a lot and we've noticed how families from other cultures are particularly interested in music as a way of breaking through cultural language barriers."

Nichols is enthusiastic about having three special needs students in the program this year. Howie Tarnower, who teaches guitar, banjo and mandolin, is particularly interested in teaching special needs children. Tarnower has a degree in expressive therapies from Lesley College.

"What I find happens with our teachers is that their particular skills become a resource," Nichols said. "These young professional teachers develop a one-to-one rapport with their students. It's important for the students to be with a skilled and interested adult."

"There is an open house at the end of each semester. This gives the teachers a chance to show how they work with students, and parents, teachers and students can all meet each other."

Those who are interested in attending an open house, signing up for lessons (Nichols says there is a big demand for oboe and bassoon right now in the school ensembles), or adding their name to the resource list or brochure (applications are available in the library and the deadline is Feb. 28), should contact Corie Nichols at 10 Oxford St.

Partial scholarships are available to students. "We want people to have the lessons available to them if it's important to them," according to Nichols.

"The Music Program is a very happy place to be," Nichols said. And, as Nichols has learned through her own involvement with music and through involving others, playing music can make you very happy.

Family Needs Help

Trust Set Up For Schuurmans

To help care for the six children of Joanne Schuurman, who died in a tragic accident Dec. 17, a fund has been established at the Winchester Cooperative Bank.

Schuurman, a 41-year-old widow from Myrtle terr., died after she fell from a moving van in Woburn and struck her head on the sidewalk.

Contributions to the fund will be received in care of the Schuurman Family Trust to provide for the six children's immediate needs.

Donations should be sent to the trust, care of the Winchester Cooperative Bank, 19 Church st. Any donations would be greatly appreciated.

Out With The Old, In With The New

Staff Made Forest's Stint A Pleasure

BY LIZ WILLEN

When Acting Supt. Robert Forest reflects on his six-month period as the leader of the Winchester school system, the first thing he talks about is the other people who run it.

It's not that Forest isn't willing to talk about his own experience — he will gladly admit that he truly enjoyed the interim period in which he took the place of former Supt. William MacDonald while a nationwide search was conducted for a new superintendent of schools.

It's just that Forest is more convinced than ever that Winchester's schools are teeming with a core of dedicated educators, secretaries and administrators who really set the system apart from others.

Forest, who will begin a six-month leave of absence from the school system next week to work in the field of educational publishing, says that was the most important discovery he made.

"Working with the central office staff and teachers in a different light was truly enlightening," he said recently. "I saw an enormous amount of talent and dedication in the entire school system. I knew that these people were there — but up close I saw how capable they were and how much they were all doing their part to make the system run smoothly."

To Forest, who has worked in Winchester's school system for 17 years, "people" are the most important aspect of a superintendent's job. And that includes staff, parents, and students.

"It also meant a lot of personal visits. "If I had the chance to choose between a phone call and a personal visit, I made the visit whenever I could," said Forest, who tried to spend as much time as possible with the children in the system.

On the Friday before Christmas vacation, Forest was reading "The Night Before Christmas" to a third grade class at the Lynch School. He seemed to be enjoying himself as much the children.

"Our business is children," he noted. "And one of the best things about being superintendent is having the office located at the Lynch School. It's unusual, and it's just great — in many other schools, the superintendent is located far away from the children."

At any rate, Forest believes it is important for a superintendent to make the time to be with children. And that isn't always easy to do in a day filled with curriculum questions, decision making, proposal

Mitsakos Readies To Take Over Schools

By DAVE LEECO

When he takes over as Winchester's superintendent next week, Dr. Charles Mitsakos will have quite a bit to handle right off.

He must face cutting next year's budget by $300,000, negotiating next year's contract with all of the major school employee groups, and sorting out the workload at a Central Office staffed by acting personnel.

Yet Mitsakos says his priority during his first months on the job will be to earn the respect, trust and friendship of the people who make up the Winchester school system.

"The big thing for me in the first few months will be developing relationships," explained Mitsakos, who is coming to his new job after five years as Andover's assistant superintendent. "If I don't build relationships with the people working in the schools, I'm not going to be effective at all."

Winchester's new superintendent intends to build those bonds with his staff, his students and their parents, and the taxpayers of the town through tours of the schools, meetings with civic groups and cracker-barrel sessions with teachers.

"How to find out what the school system is like is the big question," said Mitsakos. "Since we're in business to serve the students, you have to go to them. I want to go to school at the beginning of the day, and attend all six or seven classes. I'll go to the gym, the cafeteria."

"I want to get to the staff that way, too," continued Mitsakos. "I want to continue the cracker-barrel meetings (in Andover, Mitsakos held weekly gab sessions with teachers, using a small cracker barrel as a prop). I want to begin relating to them as they work on various projects, not as names on paper."

"And I want to meet the school parents, the civic and community groups," added Mitsakos. "They're the ones we'll have to be bringing the message to about the schools."

By showing what kind of person he is, by showing he is interested in the schools and the town, Mitsakos hopes to get support for the tasks ahead.

"The way I deal with day-to-day things will make a difference when it comes time to make the hard decisions," said Mitsakos. "If they feel this person (the superintendent) makes decisions in a positive way, has a handle on what's going on, then they will say he's made a ra-

MDC Blasts Medford For Causing Problem

Ice Closes South Border Road

A sheet of ice on South Border rd., caused by water flowing from a Medford manhole, forced the closing of the main access rd. into Winchester Tuesday.

The Metropolitan District Commission, which controls South Border rd., shut off the lower part of the road after repeated calls to Medford failed to solve the problem.

"We've been calling Medford since last week to fix the manhole, but we've had much difficulty getting them to do anything," said the MDC's Steve Burgay. "So we're closing down the road."

The MDC blocked off the road from Roosevelt Circle (the rotary over Route 93) to Governor's ave. (the road leading to Lawrence Memorial Hospital). To get around the detour, travelers heading to Winchester will have to go into Medford Center, then up Governor's ave.

Water has been flowing from a manhole on Massachusetts ave. in Med-

'It's at the point where we can no longer wait for Medford to do something. We've got to close the road.'

-MDC's Dottie O'Malley

ford for more than a week, covering the final stretch of the east-bound end of the road with ice.

Calls to the Medford Public Works Dept. showed that although employees know about the problem, they all say it is someone else's headache.

Water Dept. supervisor Jim Higgins said the problem was a leaking drain, and responsibility for fixing it lays with the Highway Dept. A Highway Dept. employee said, no, it was a broken water pipe and the Water Dept. had to fix it. When called back, Higgins insisted that "We don't have a water pipe problem. It's a drain leak, and that would be Highway."

The MDC has been getting the same run-around for more than a week, according to officials, and that's why they took the drastic step of closing the road.

The MDC's director of community affairs, Dottie O'Malley, lives in Winchester and first noticed the problem driving to work with her husband.

"My husband's a lawyer, and he said to me, 'Hey, you folks could be sued for that, you're liable,'" she recalled Tuesday before the closing.

"We had our (MDC) crews out there daily, chopping the ice off the road and sanding to try and prevent an accident."

Average Subscriber To Pay 16% More

Continental Cable Hikes Rates

Continental Cablevision subscribers in Winchester will start paying in February for expenses the cable company has run up over the last two years.

In February, Continental will raise its rates by 20 percent for the basic service and by 7.9 to 12.5 percent for added channels such as Home Box Office and Cinemax.

The company needs to increase its rates to help pay the bills run up for the installation of Winchester's cable system, as well as to meet costs driven up by inflation.

Basic service — getting everything but HBO, Cinemax and Showtime — will rise from $8.75 per month to $10.50. Getting HBO will cost $1 more, with the price rising from $7.95 to $8.75. Cinemax will go from $6.75 to $7.25.

The price for getting the basic service plus all three pay channels will go from $22.20 to $23.95, an increase of about 7.4 percent.

And prices for extras like an additional hookup, FM service and a remote control

Basic service will rise from $8.75 per month to $10.50. The price for basic service plus all three pay channels will go from $22.20 to $23.95 will also rise. The cost for having a second television hooked up to cable will go from $3 to $3.50. FM service will cost $3 rather than $2.50, and a remote control device will cost $2.95 to rent rather than $1.95.

The only decrease will be in the cost of Showtime, which will drop from $10 to $8.95, to make the price competitive with HBO.

After looking at which of those many services their customers get, Continental Cablevision systems manager William Powell estimated the "average" cable viewer will see a 16 percent increase.

The increased rates will help Continental pay off the costs of setting up the cable operation during the last two years, when rates were frozen by the company's licensing agreement with the town.

"The rate increase is not so much to cover (expenses of) what we are going to do, as to cover what we have done," explained Powell.

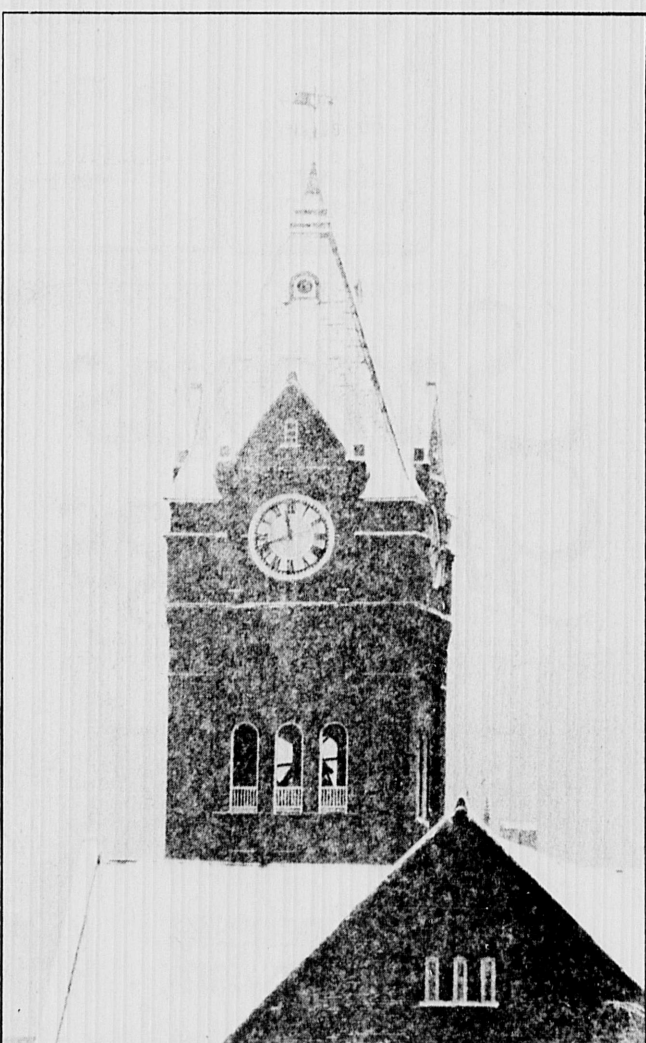

Powell said that the company had to pay unusually high interest rates on the money it borrowed to build Winchester's cable system, which reaches 3,600 households in town.

The cable company's costs have also risen in the nearly three years Continental has been operating in town, and changes in regulations have pushed up the costs of purchasing programs, Powell said.

But while Continental's costs have risen, its charges have stayed the same Carol E. Ludemann Is Bride Of John Joseph Barcus Jr.

Carol Elizabeth Ludemann, daughter of Carl and Sigrid Ludemann of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was married on Nov. 6 to John Joseph Barcus Jr., son of John and Aileen Barcus of Town Way.

The Rev. Joseph Combs, assisted by Donald Ludemann, the brother of the bride, performed the 4:30 p.m., double-ring ceremony at the St. Jacobi Lutheran Church in Brooklyn, N.Y.

The bride wore a chiffon gown with pearly Venice lace framing the Queen Anne neckline and accenting the fitted bodice. The long, sheer, full sleeves were appliqued with motifs of Alencon and Venice laces and the A-line skirt extended from a raised waistline and fell into a court-length train. Her mantilla of illusion edged with Venice lace was made by her mother.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid.

The maid of honor was Lisa Ludemann of Garden City, N.Y., the bride's cousin. She wore a burgundy Qiana gown with a pleated skirt that extended from a raised waistline, and a lace shawl over a fitted bodice of a V-neck and spaghetti straps.

Bridesmaids were Denise Brewington of Knoxville, Tenn., and Lisa Ball of Murfreesboro, Tenn. They wore burnt-rose Qiana gowns with straight-line skirts falling from raised waistlines, and high-necked jackets (accented with lace) over fitted bodices with V-necklines and spaghetti straps.

The bride's attendants carried bouquets of pink miniature carnations, pink baby roses and baby's breath.

The best man was Don DiRocco of Winchester. Ushers were Ted Harris of Winchester and Carlos Salib of Brookline.

The reception was held at the Officers' Club at Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, N.Y. Marv Barcus of Winchester, the bridegroom's sister, was in charge of the guest book.

After a honeymoon drive through Pennsylvania and along the Skyline Drive in Virginia, the couple have settled in Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The bride graduated from Northwestern University with a degree in psychology, and is employed with the Oak Ridge schools as a teacher's aide for the gifted education program.

The bridegroom attended Northwestern University and is continuing his education at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville. He is the assistant soccer coach at Oak Ridge High.

WHS Grads To

Tell Tales Of College On Jan. 4

Winchester High School graduates will tell about their experiences since graduation during the mini-college program on Wednesday, Jan. 4, when the Winchester High School Guidance Dept. will hold a special holiday program.

Graduates from the Class of 1983 have been invited to share ideas, information and experiences since graduation with the present high school students.

Every Wednesday after school at 2:15 p.m., in the cafeteria of the high school, the Guidance Office conducts the mini-college program, to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Jan. 4, admissions representatives from Hesser College (N.H.), University of New Hampshire, Stonehill College and the U.S. Army plan to attend.

Chilly Scenes Of Winter

SNOW SCENES — Last week's snowstorm covered the town with white stuff perfect for snowman making, so Corinne Imperatore, 6, of Ravine rd. and Andrea White, 5, of Norwood st. tried their hand at making a snowman behind McCall Jr. High School. They had their share of problems — when they got all three pieces rolled up, they couldn't lift one on top of the other. So they just played King Of The Hill with the giant snowballs. Tip Leads To Arrest In Neighbors' Burglary

A Main st. man was charged with receiving stolen property on Thursday after police received information that a missing camera, a home computer and some jewelry might be in his apartment.

After a search warrant was issued, Insp. William Nash and Lt. Joseph Peritano searched Gregory Falconi's Main st. apartment, where they located both Falconi and the missing items.

A Main st. couple living in the same building recently reported that their apartment was broken into as they were packing cardboard boxes to move a month ago. When they were unpacked they realized they were missing property.

Police Log

Thursday, Dec. 22

• Similar footprints were found outside two Washington st. homes which were targets for break-ins, but police were unable to find the intruders.

• A Washington st. couple reported that their house was broken into when an intruder pried open the front door and ransacked several rooms. A Walkman, a radio, some jewelry and a camera were stolen.

• Windows in the back of a second Washington st. home were broken by an intruder who did not manage to get inside. Footprints in the snow led from the front of the house to the rear — but not to the intruder, who has not been found.

• A Brantwood rd. couple reported that someone tried to enter their home through the rear by breaking the window on the back door. Entrance was not gained.

• A Horn Pond Brook resident reported that telephone wires were cut and a set of snow tires removed from her AMC Spirit some time during the night.

• An Eaton st. girl was struck by a snowball and injured on the corner of Main st. and Mystic Valley pkwy. She was treated at Mass. Eye and Ear Infirmary. No charges were filed against the snowball-thrower.

Friday, Dec. 23

• Two Waltham drivers collided head-on on Cambridge rd. after their cars skidded on the snow-covered pavement. A 13-year-old passenger in one of the cars was slightly injured.

• A Wildwood st. man reported that two bags of wrapped Christmas presents worth over $150 were stolen from his Buick station wagon as it was parked outside of the St. Eulalia Church in the early evening Saturday, Dec. 26

• A Lloyd st. resident reported that youths were vandalizing and trespassing on her property.

Monday, Dec. 26

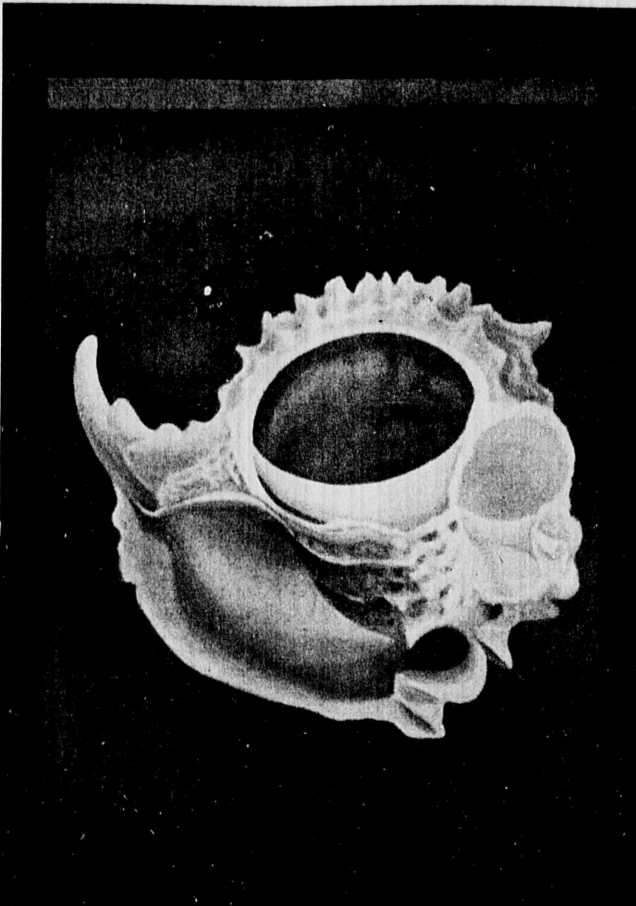

• Two Woburn youths were charged in connection with a break-in at Colonial Manufacturing on Cross st. According to police reports, the pair was charged with receiving stolen property and possession of burglary tools after Wilmington police found the suspects with two new tool boxes bearing the name Colonial Manufacturing. An investigation revealed that the tools were missing.

Finnegan Graduates

Terence Finnegan of 69 Grove st., graduated recently from GTE Sylvania Technical School in Waltham. Finnegan completed the Computer Electronics Program in eight months.

While at GTE Sylvania Tech he completed the five phases of the program that combine theory and practical hands-on training so essential for entry-level jobs in the high tech industry.

Fennell Awarded

Bowdoin College sophomore quarterback Rich Fennell of Sargent rd. was awarded the Winslow Robinson Howland Memorial Trophy as "the member of the varsity (football) team who has made the most marked improvement on the field of play and who best exemplifies the qualities of aggressiveness, cooperation and enthusiasm for the game and fine sportsmanship."

Fennell, who did not throw a pass as a freshman, started four games at quarterback, completing 38 of his 86 passes for 600 yards, two touchdowns and seven interceptions. His best game came against Wesleyan when he completed 15 of 26 passes for 193 yards.

Hallisey On Stage

Robert M. Hallisey Jr., son of Capt. and Mrs. Robert M. Hallisey of Summit ave., participated in the Vassar College Department of Drama production of "The Ponder Heart" by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov. The play, which is an adaptation of the novel by Eudora Welty, was presented in early December under the direction of William Rothwell, professor of drama at Vassar.

Hallisey, now a senior at Vassar, is a graduate of Winchester High School.

UNH Grads

Three students from Winchester were among 1,000 degree candidates honored at the University of New Hampshire winter commencement ceremonies Dec. 18.

Timothy E. Johnson, son of F. Robert and Carol Johnson of Woodside rd., earned a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Edward N. Harris, son of Charles P. and Mabel S. Harris of Stevens st. was awarded a bachelor's degree in business administration.

David J. Scanlon, son of John M. and Helen M. Scanlon of Glengarry rd. earned a bachelor's degree in plant science.

Guarnotta A Star

Sophomore wing Brian Guarnotta, a Myopia rd. resident, has been named to the Colby-Bates-Bowdoin Conference all-star soccer team.

Guarnotta was one of five all-stars chosen from Colby, this year's CBB Conference champions.

O'Donnell Lectures

Dr. Joseph P. O'Donnell, a Winchester dentist, chief of pediatric dentistry at New England Medical Center and assistant clinical professor at Tufts, will lecture on pediatric dentistry at the Ninth Annual Yankee Dental Congress, Jan. 12-15, at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel-Hynes Auditorium Complex in Boston.

Nearly 14,000 dental professionals, including 4,800 dentists from through the New England area and beyond, are expected to attend the meeting which is sponsored by the Massachusetts Dental Society.

About Town

Kraus Speaks Out On Chapt. 90

Sen. Richard Kraus was the only Democratic State Senator to speak out on the floor of the Senate against removing Chapter 90 funds for road construction and reconstruction work from the Transportation Bond Bill. The majority of the senators voted with the Senate leadership to delete these funds completely.

"Loss of this funding would have been disastrous for local communities in maintaining their roads," said Kraus. "Local road construction and repair monies would have been cut in half."

"I'm glad I was able to support this much needed funding for local communities. Working with the Massachusetts Municipal Assn. I'm proud to have been a part of the successful effort to restore these funds to the Transportation Bond legislation."

In a letter to Senator Kraus dated Dec. 12, Jim Segel, executive director said in part, "The Municipal Assn. would like to offer its thanks to you for your strong and consistent support for continuation of the Chapter 90 road construction and reconstruction program."

"Your support of an initiative to restore these funds to the transportation bond legislation was a strong indication of your sensitivity to the importance of this funding source for towns and cities. We appreciate your help and your understanding of local conditions and look forward to working with you in the next session on items of similar importance to local government."

"Since the adoption of Proposition 2½, most communities rely heavily on this 75-year old program. Local infrastructure maintenance would be jeopardized considerably with the loss of Chapter 90 monies," Senator Kraus noted.

FROM HOOP TO NET — Robert S. Bigelow of Church st., who played basketball for the Kansas City Kings, Boston Celtics and San Diego Clippers, has gone from basketball nets to Ad Net USA, a national advertising agency which franchises local ad agencies the way Century 21 franchises real estate agencies. Bigelow, who received a master's degree in business management in June, is congratulated by O.J. Mulkey, president of the Quincy-based firm. Bigelow will handle the Winchester-Woburn area for the agency.

Paulson Completes

Marjorie J. Paulson of Forest st. recently completed the Entree Program at the Katherine Gibbs School, Boston. Entree is a special program for college graduates designed to give them an introduction to business and business skills.

Show Me!

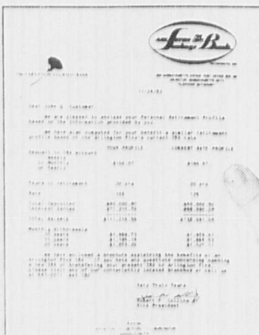

See how much you can save for retirement with an IRA Plan from Arlington 5.

You have until April 15, 1984 to make a contribution into your IRA account that you can claim as a deduction for the 1983 calendar year.

Even if you can't make the total allowable contribution (up to $2000 per year or $2250, jointly) you should consider how much you can save for yourself if you can manage only a small contribution each week into your E-Z Retirement Account at Arlington 5.

See what you save.

- Before you decide how much to invest, call the IRA Fact Line at the Arlington 5. Tell us how much you want to deposit into your IRA account. Weekly. Monthly. Or yearly. Then also let us know how many years you have until retirement.
- We'll send you a computer answer that will calculate exactly how much money you'll have in your account on retirement. All yours with the high rate of an E-Z Retirement Account at Arlington 5.
- Call the IRA Fact Line at Arlington 5 today. 643-0011. Learn how small savings now can mean big savings for retirement later. Nice and E-Z!

We'll Show You! Call Arlington 5 today for the IRA Facts on easy retirement with an E-Z Retirement Plan.

Holiday message from your local Police Chief:

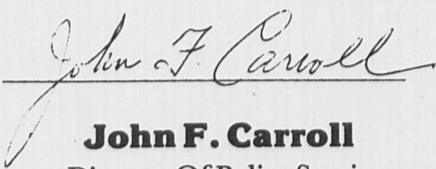

This is the time of year when families and friends meet to share the happiness of the Holiday Season. We gather to reflect upon the past year and look with hope at the New Year ahead.

This year, as you meet, we ask that you be careful when it comes to drinking, especially if you must drive.

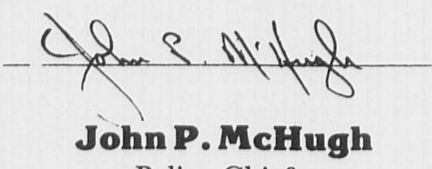

Whether you're driving around the block or a long distance, the effect of even one drink makes you a threat to yourself and everyone else on the road.

This Holiday Season, if you must drink, please use your head. Don't drive. And if a family member or friend has over-imbibed, encourage him to find other transportation home.

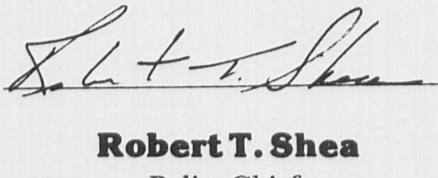

Please accept our sincere best wishes for the Holiday Season and the New Year ahead.

Lapsing On Traditions

By TERRY MAROTTA

There are dozens of time-honored customs lived out at this season; this year, I'm letting a few of them lapse, I've decided.

When I was little, for example, we always decorated the Christmas tree with the kind of tinsel known as icicles; we always cooked a turkey on the Big Day; and we always stayed up until midnight New Year's Eve to watch the ball drop in Times Square.

Let's take the tree-trimming matter first. We've been using those rope-y garlands of tinsel on the tree in recent years, or else I've tied two thousand red gingham bows to its poor young branches in hopes that it would resemble some of the professional jobs you see in the department stores. But I got the notion this year that it was time to return to the tinsel of my youth, those icicles that take hours to put on properly, a strand at a time, each one artfully draped along the fragrant fir boughs. In memory, these early trees were gigantic things, shimmering things in their silver petticoats, things that seemed to breathe and twinkle with the lazy currents of air moving about in the room.

It was in the name of this memory that I tried icicles again this year. Somehow though, the three or four hours needed to place them properly are harder to find now, and the job fell chiefly to the children. Gobs of icicles bedecked the lower branches. Very few made it to the tree's upper altitudes. And none hung vertically. They swirled in circles and cowlicks, lay tangled in ratted webs or rested laterally along the branches as if a terrific wind had been blowing in the living room.

Within a day, the entire house was carpeted in icicle droppings; it was infested with a civilization, an actual plague, of icicles when I found a strand inside my underwear. I knew I'd come to the end of my rope. Two days before Christmas, I removed every shred of the stuff from the tree and called in professional cleaners to exterminate the house.

So much for one Yuletide tradition.

The next to go was the Christmas turkey.

'Within a day, the house was carpeted in icicle droppings; it was infested with a civilization, when I found one inside my underwear, I knew I'd come to the end of my rope.'

Now Thanksgiving was only a minute ago, as all of us know; Christmas arrived some 10 days early this year, it seems. Well, we get a bird, each Thanksgiving, as most people do. Not a plump little hen, but a big bruiser of a Tom, a bird probably bursting with steroids, one made so huge with hormones that he weighs as much as your average preschooler, a creature of such out-sized dimensions that my old oven can scarcely hold him. I have to push the whole kitchen set up against the stove door, in fact, to keep it closed.

It occurred to me a month ago now that the traditional turkey dinner was losing its charm for me. I thought this the night before Thanksgiving as I mucked around in his cavernous insides, like Jonah beneath the rib-rafters of his whale. I thought it as I hacked off his obscene little tail and sorted through the vein-ends and bits of organ goo still clinging to his vertebrae. I thought it at four in the morning as I slid him into an oven I could barely focus on for sleepiness. And I thought it for the three weeks that followed, as we ate turkey relentlessly and without enjoyment, the way spouse-killers in detective stories eat their mate-meat to destroy the evidence.

So this Christmas we served beef.

The final tradition of this trilogy looms before me now. As New Year's Eve approaches, I find myself asking, should I stay up past midnight for yet another year?

Should I? Probably not. Will I? Probably so. And Why?

Because, like most customs, this one has a good solid base in folk-wisdom.

I can't say why we festoon a tree with plastic ice, or roast Big Bird to express our thanks. But I do know why we stay up late on New Year's Eve.

We do it out of curiosity, so we can watch as we turn the corner into a brand-new year that's never been used.

We do it out of hope, so we can silently wish that this year will be cleaner than some of the others, and more serene.

We do it because it's traditional. This year, I guess that's still good enough for me.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

The House and Senate have been meeting only in informal sessions in which no controversial legislation is considered. Tentative plans are for the legislature to reconvene once more before the 1983 session officially ends at midnight on Jan. 3.

A key matter likely to surface in the formal session is that of fees for licenses and services in the state. The law giving the Secretary of Administration and Finance (appointed by the Governor) the power to set the costs of hundreds of fees for state services and licenses, expires on Dec. 31. According to Rep. William Robinson, a strong opponent of extending the secretary's power, if no bill is passed, all current fees for hundreds of licenses and services will expire on Jan. 1 and there will be no fees for drivers' licenses, auto registration and other fees that bring in millions of dollars in annual revenue to the state. Robinson said elimination of the fees is a selective tax cut that will benefit the taxpayer.

The House recently approved an amended version of a bill freezing fees for one year and then extending the power of the Secretary of Administration and Finance to set the fees until June 1985, but requiring public hearings and legislative approval before any fee hike goes into effect. The bill also exempts anyone over 65 from any of the hikes. The original bill required public hearings, but required legislative approval only if the proposed fee was 150 percent more than the existing fee.

The amendment requiring legislative approval for any hike was hailed by supporters as a major victory for the taxpayer. They said it puts the power to set fees back with the legislature where it belongs. They claimed that without requiring legislative approval, the bill simply gives the secretary the power to raise these hidden taxes. Opponents said the power has worked well and has resulted in increased state revenue without the need for a broad-based tax increase. They also claimed the legislature can repeal any of the fee hikes by the secretary at any time.

The House bill then went to the Senate which on a voice vote approved its own version of the bill. The Senate version does not freeze fees for one year and simply extends until June 1985, the power of the secretary to set fees without a public hearing or legislative approval. It also does not exempt people over 65. The Senate version now goes to the House which can accept it or reject it. If it is rejected, a conference committee could be formed to hammer out another version of the bill.

In the meantime, Rep. Robinson is still suing the secretary in Suffolk Superior Court claiming the fee hikes have resulted in fees exceeding the actual cost of the service. He claims this makes several fees a tax which can only be imposed by the legislature. No date for the trial has been set.

This week's report records local representatives' votes on key roll calls dealing with the fee bill during the 1982 and 1983 session. There were no roll calls in the Senate on the bill. Readers have an opportunity to call their legislators to let them know how they feel on this important matter.

1983 FEE AMENDMENT (H 6866) - On Dec. 10, 1983, the House approved 83-66, the key amendment requiring legislative approval of any hike in fees and freezing all fees for one year. A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

1982 LEGISLATIVE APPROVAL (H 6782) - In December 1982, the House 70-63, rejected an amendment requiring legislative approval of any hikes in fees proposed by the Secretary of Administration and Finance. A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

1983 FEE BILL (H 6866) - On Dec. 10, 1983, the House approved 108-42, the entire bill giving the secretary the power to set fees, but freezing all fees for one year and requiring public hearings and legislative approval of any hike. The bill also exempts persons over 65 from any hike. A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

1982 FEE BILL (H 6782) - In December 1982, the House 85-54, approved a bill extending for one year the power of the secretary to set the fees. The bill did not require public hearings or legislative approval of any hikes and did not exempt anyone over 65 from the fees. A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

1982 PUBLIC HEARINGS (H 6782) - In December 1982, the House 70-64, rejected an amendment requiring a public hearing before any fee can be increased. A public hearing is required in the version passed by the House this year. A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

1982 COST OF FEE (H 6782) - In December 1982, the House 98-36, rejected an amendment providing that the fee and any fee increase shall not exceed the cost of administering the licenses for which the fee is paid. A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Letters To The Editor

A Word of Praise to Superintendent

(Editor's note: The following letter to acting Supt. Robert Forest, who is stepping down after six months on the job, was sent by former School Committee member John Duffy for publication in The Star.)

Dr. Forest:

As you leave your duties as acting superintendent, allow me to express my admiration and gratitude for the work you have done during the past six months.

You have focused your energies on matters of importance and helped immensely to improve the morale of the staff. While you have not had to lead the school system for a time sufficient to weather many changes of School Committee and community opinion, you have shown that it is possible to lead the system.

I admire the way you have used the staff, particularly the stronger members, exercising their skills and allowing them to exercise the strengths of their abilities.

During this past year, when countless forests were sacrificed to the publication of reports and recommendations concerning the public schools, Winchester has managed to keep a perspective on longer-term goals. Much of the credit for this, of course, goes to your colleagues, such as Dr. Ackerman. But it is your credit, too.

Working with school committees and yearly budgets can be a frustrating process, but the constraints can force more effective solutions (to a point). The ability to focus on important issues is the first step. Because you have taken that step, the next superintendent will, for good or ill, have to step into your shoes. You have made a mark in this position, just as you have at Ambrose.

As a citizen of this town and a parent of school children, I thank you.

With best wishes for the new year, I am

Sincerely yours,
John Duffy

Barlow's Beguiling Book New Equipment At Hospital To Reduce Radiation Exposure

English Prof.
Writes Tales Of The Heart
For Readers
Of Romance

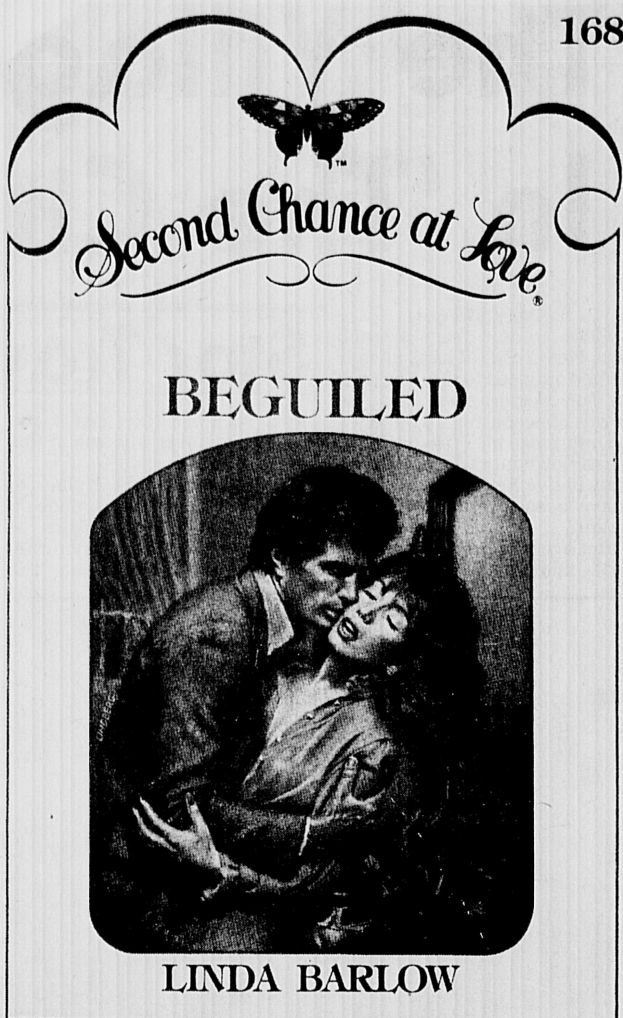

Linda Barlow, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Robert Barlow of 11 Arlington st., has written a Romance novel titled "Beguiled" which is now on the bookshelves of stores from coast to coast. "Beguiled" is published by Berkley-Jove, Inc. in their "Second Chance at Love" line of romantic novels.

Linda graduated from Winchester High School in 1966 and was awarded her bachelor of arts degree from Wheaton College, Norton, where she majored in English and was editor of "The Wheaton News." She did her post graduate work at Boston College, where she received her master of arts degree.

During the last few years, while a lecturer in English at Boston College, Linda has been pursuing her Ph.D. in English literature. Her main field of interest has been the romantic poets and writers of the late 18th and early 19th century with her thesis subject being Charlotte Bronte, an early romanticist.

While teaching at B.C. Linda, who has been writing since her teenage years, was working on an historical novel, which entailed a great deal of time and research. She has put that aside for the time being to write for Berkley-Jove Publications. Her second book, entitled "Flights of Fancy" is in production and will be released in April '84. She is now writing her third novel.

Linda and her husband, Dr. Haluk Ozkaynak, live in Acton with their 3 1/2 year old daughter, Dilek Elizabeth.

PUBLISHED — Linda Barlow, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barlow of Arlington st., authored the romance paperback "Beguiled."

With the introduction of the most up-to-date mammography equipment into its new radiology Department, Winchester Hospital offers women safer breast examinations than ever before, according to Dr. John B. MacDonald, chairman of the hospital's Radiology Department.

The new diagnostic technology will reduce patient exposure to radiation by more than 80 percent, the radiologist said. Mammography, a radiographic procedure, is a key technique for the diagnosis of breast disease, primarily cancer. Breast cancer, which strikes one out of every 11 American women at some time during their lives, is the most common form of cancer among women, and claimed 37,000 lives in the United States last year.

In recent years, the number of mammography procedures performed at Winchester Hospital has soared, MacDonald noted, necessitating the designation of a special mammography room in the department's new facilities. In 1983, more than 1,000 women underwent mammography exams at the hospital, an increase of 17 percent over the previous year, he said. This pattern of growth is expected to continue, the radiologist noted.

While these findings in no way diminish the importance of monthly breast self-examinations by women over age 20, MacDonald said, they do highlight the importance of mammography. And because mammography now poses less risk to the patient, the American College of Radiology and the American Cancer Society now recommend that women between the ages of 35 and 40 receive a "baseline" mammogram to be kept for reference in the event of future breast disease. The two organizations have also recommended a follow-up mammogram every two to three years after the original baseline mammogram until the age of 50, and a mammogram every year after that.

To increase early detection of breast cancer, the American Cancer Society also recommends that women 20 to 40 have their physicians examine their breasts manually every three years, and that women over 40 undergo such an examination once a year. Women with a personal or family history of breast cancer should consult their physicians about the need for more frequent examinations.

Mammography is stressed particularly for women over age 50 because of the increased incidence of breast cancer in older women, MacDonald noted. Other important risk factors include a personal or family history of breast cancer, childlessness, or having one's first child after age 30.

Several factors account for the increase in mammography exams, MacDonald said. Among them are a heightened public awareness of the importance of monitoring for breast cancer and a recommendation this past year by the American College of Radiology and the American Cancer Society that women receive a mammogram at an earlier age than previously advised.

Previously, the American Cancer Society had advised only that women under 50 consult their physicians regarding the need for breast X-rays, and have a mammogram every year beginning at age 50. The recommendations were revised, however, in light of a new research and improvements in diagnostic technique. The research, based on a nationwide study, indicated that one-third of breast cancers occur in women between the ages of 35 and 49, and that a mammogram is able to detect such tumors up to two years earlier than a breast self-examination can.

Washington Square in the Village is a haven for people watchers and bizzare people.

Greenwich Village Attracts All Kinds

'The Village' In 'The City'

By Amy Sweeney

Since I come from a small town, New York City has always seemed ominous to me. The traffic, the skyscrapers, and the crowds of people both frightened and impressed me. The few times I have flown into "The City," as many native New Yorkers call it, I have been awe struck by the skyline.

But over the past few years, I got to know many people from

Star Travel

New York and I decided it was time to get over my fear of this magnificent city.

But I had to pick a place to start. New York City is made up of a mind-boggling series of neighborhoods, each having its own flavor and reputation. The Bronx always seems to be full of people with a "Rocky" accent. Manhattan is Fifth ave. and expensive stores. But the neighborhood that piqued my curiosity the most is Greenwich

★ Village

Village. Greenwich Village conjured up in my mind a bohemia: the violinist playing in the street; an artist with easel; and the writer diligently laboring over a manuscript in a cold, lonely studio. As with all stereotypes, I found some of these images to be true, some false.

Greenwich Village stretches from Houston st. north to 14th st. and lies between Bowery st. and the Hudson River. It is mainly a residential area; hotels are scarce. The old brick apartments surrounded by iron fences are well-kept and beautiful (and for $500 and more per bedroom they ought to be.) Because the apartments are small, people go out rather than stay cramped at home.

A common outing, of course, is going out to eat. There are many bars, cafes and restaurants to choose from. Indian and Mexican cuisine are very popular in the village. For a small group of my friends, their favorite is the Caramba Restaurant — a relaxing Mexican restaurant with excellent food on the corner of 4th st. and Broadway. At $8 an entree, the prices are inexpensive for New York. Be prepared to spend more anywhere else.

Garvins, on 19 Waverly pl., is a very exquisite restaurant with live but quiet piano music playing in the background. Large European tapestries hang from the wall and a dinner for two can be very romantic. However, if the looks of Garvins does not appeal to you once you see it, there is a lovely Thai restaurant, The Star of Siam next door.

Aside from food, the attraction of Greenwich Village is the variety and uniqueness of its stores, cafes, nightlife and people.

On a recent visit, I wandered in and out of shops, browsing and buying. You can buy almost anything in Greenwich Village — from antiques and old clothes to the wares at the Pink Pussycat Boutique.

French Country Antiques on 5th ave. and East 10th st. has beautiful and very expensive antiques. Wonderful to look at, even if it is out of your league. The Good Old Days on Bleeker st. and 7th ave. has beautifully kept old clothes, and the Pink Pussycat Boutique on West 4th st. makes Frederick's of Hollywood seem tame.

Bleeker st. has many Italian stores and small cafes where a fresh cup of espresso or cappuccino with a pastry is a nice break after shopping. Mouth-watering, fancy pastries can be found at Balducci's on the Avenue of the Americas and 9th st. along with its famous specialty foods.

Nightlife in Greenwich Village ranges from all-night discos at The Ritz Ballroom to The Lone Star Cafe. If you are a jazz lover, the village has the world famous Village Vanguard at 178 7th ave. south and The Blue Note on 131

West 3rd st. and Lush Life on Bleeker and Thompson sts.

Washington Square is a haven for people watchers. And bizarre people. The square is the center of the Village and New York University surrounds it. It once was a tobacco plantation owned by a Dutch Governor in the 1620's. The English name, Greenwich, came with the conquest of New York by the British in 1664. The tobacco is long gone, replaced that day by N.Y.U. film students busily taping, drunks sleeping in the grass, the jobless spending some time out of the house, a group of dancers practicing, a roller skater putting on a show and bowing as if he were being called for an encore, a business man eating lunch and a tourist staring at the odd assortment of people and activities. But they all co-exist. There is a freedom in Washington Square and the Village that allows for creativity and for people to be comfortable doing as they see fit. Maybe it is this freedom that has drawn such luminaries to the Village as ee cummings, Walt Whitman, Edgar Allen Poe, Winslow Homer, Eugene O'Neill, Edna St. Vincent Millay, James Fenimore Cooper, and Washington Irving, and will probably continue to draw thinkers, poets, artists, musicians and others in the future.

There are many easy means of transportation available to get to New York and Greenwich Village.

Amtrack leaves from South

Station in Boston and arrives in Penn Station. It is a very quiet, prompt and relaxing 5-hour ride for $45 round trip. People's Express Airline offers a one-way trip for $35 during peak hours and $23 during the off peak hours to Newark Airport. It is a $4 bus trip to the Port Authority, in New York City. Eastern has a shuttle that runs every hour on the hour from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays. The one-way trip is $57 and on weekends it is $29.

★ Mitsakos

tional decision in a humanistic way." Mitsakos is aware he will have to make a number of decisions, soon.

The school budget must be submitted to the Finance Committee by February, and it must be $298,000 lower than the current year's $10.3 million budget.

Contracts will have to be negotiated with the teachers, the food service workers and the school clerical workers, hopefully by Spring Town Meeting in May and at least by the time the contracts expire in June.

And finally, the Central Office which Mitsakos will head needs reorganization. The former assistant superintendent for business, Jack Fallon, took a leave of absence this year. The personnel director, Robert Fitzgerald, is only acting as personnel director until a replacement for Alexander Tennant, who quit this fall, can be found. The only person still in the Central Office from former Supt. William McDonald's administration is curriculum director David Ackerman.

Mitsakos has already started to look at the budget — in the month-and-a-half since he was chosen as Winchester's superintendent, he has made several visits to the Central Office to familiarize himself with his job and the budget.

In putting together this year's budget, Mitsakos feels, the Central Office personnel "were cognizant of the importance of reducing the budget, but at the same time they have a real commitment to keeping the things that have made Winchester education over the years."

As for the contract negotiations, Mitsakos said he feels comfortable at the bargaining table, a job he has done as assistant superintendent at Andover. And being familiar with bargaining, he realistically expects to come up with "a settlement no one will like, but everyone can live with."

But although he said he wants to take an "active, positive" role in the negotiations, he doesn't want to be the point man for the contract talks.

"There's a lot of posturing that goes on at the table — some of which is real, and some of which is for effect," he said. "I don't think I should be in the position of making those statements. I see my role as being there to assist both sides."

Once the budget and negotiations are out of the way, Mitsakos said he will begin looking at the Central Office reorganization, a job he hopes to finish by September.

"In this situation, where there are a lot of acting people, it would be good to get a handle on it quickly so we can start the next school year off with everything settled," he said. "In terms of the number of people in the Central Office, it will depend on what kinds of strengths and qualifications the people have."

But in talking about his plans for the first months on the job, the conversation keeps getting back to the budget.

Mitsakos is no stranger to what he terms "the juggling act" of easing a town's financial problems while maintaining a quality educational program. During his tenure in Andover, the town went through two school closings and has only begun to recover. (Mitsakos noted his last official act was to recommend reopening one of the schools.)

The key to making budget decisions, he said, is to make sure that by cutting back on a program today, you aren't affecting the school system for years to come.

"The tendency is to eliminate programs to save money immediately, and not look at the long-term effects," said Mitsakos. "Say you decide to eliminate soccer one year. Then you also lose the coach, the feeder system, the enthusiasm for the sport. Then, a few years later, if you decide to put it back in, it's not so easy to get all that back. And you've then lost something valuable. All because you had to come up with $20,000 one year."

Eventually, Mitsakos recognizes, "you are faced with making choices, hard choices." But, he added, if making a choice means losing something valuable, the entire community should be aware of what it is losing.

"It may come to the point where the community must decide whether budget limitations are too great," said Mitsakos. "The community must decide."

Which, for Mitsakos, comes right back around to the importance of building a relationship with the people in the community.

"The community must be aware of what they have in the schools," said Mitsakos. "If you asked the parents of the soccer team the value of the program, you can pretty much guess what they're reaction will be. You have to broaden that kind of personal stake in the school programs to people who don't have the personal contact."

Mitsakos said that in talking to residents, he senses that in Winchester, he can appeal to the townspeople to support the schools.

"You can't talk to people and not sense a great deal of pride in the town," said Mitsakos. "There seems to be a very positive attitude about the town, and we can build on that."

The comments of residents, and of the staff members that he has met, has convinced Mitsakos he made the right choice in applying for the superintendent's job, and thankful he was chosen out of 166 applicants and four finalists in November.

"The school district doesn't have 20,000 students and 1,500 staff to deal with — for a people person, which I am, it is a do-able environment," he said. "You can meet people, affect what they do, make changes if needed, and not be overwhelmed by the numbers."

"My role is to help the people (in the schools) directly or indirectly, to affect what goes on in the classroom," continued Mitsakos. "To be the chief executive officer of the school system, to be able to serve the needs of the system, is very exciting."

★ Forest

writing, budget-related matters, meetings and long-range planning.

Forest said his job as principal of the Ambrose School was the best preparation he could have had for the job of superintendent. Because of that training, Forest said the job "wasn't overwhelming."

"I had been in a leadership role before," he said. "And that helped. But this whole period has been a tremendous time of learning for me."

One of the most important lessons Forest said he learned concerned the importance of decision making. As superintendent, certain final decisions, such as when to close the schools in snowy weather, belonged to him.

He dealt with those decisions by taking certain factors into consideration each time he had to make them — like listening.

"An administrator has to be a listener — someone who processes what they hear by thinking about the implications of each decision and the reaction it will provide," he noted.

To do that, Forest stressed the importance of recruiting the talent pool of other administrators, as well as the people on whom the decision would have the most effect.

"The decisions can have so much impact — it can be a real ripple effect," he said, pointing out all the changes that took place in the central office staff this summer and fall.

"There were major moves in both the business office and personnel," Forest recalled. "It was a real shake-up. But again, I have to stress how well the central staff compensated for the changes — they really did a fantastic job."

Forest had high praise for Shirley Potts, who moved up to the position of Supervisor of Budget and Accounting when Asst. Supt. Jack Fallon took a year's leave-of-absence last fall.

"Budget work is extremely detailed and the business staff has been terrific in teaching me all about it when I really needed the knowledge," he said. "It can be a frustrating, arduous, time-consuming task, but again, it's something that requires many opinions and a lot of input."

Forest said that dealing with the budget will be even more difficult in the years to come as the system begins to feel fiscal restraints and the effects of declining enrollment.

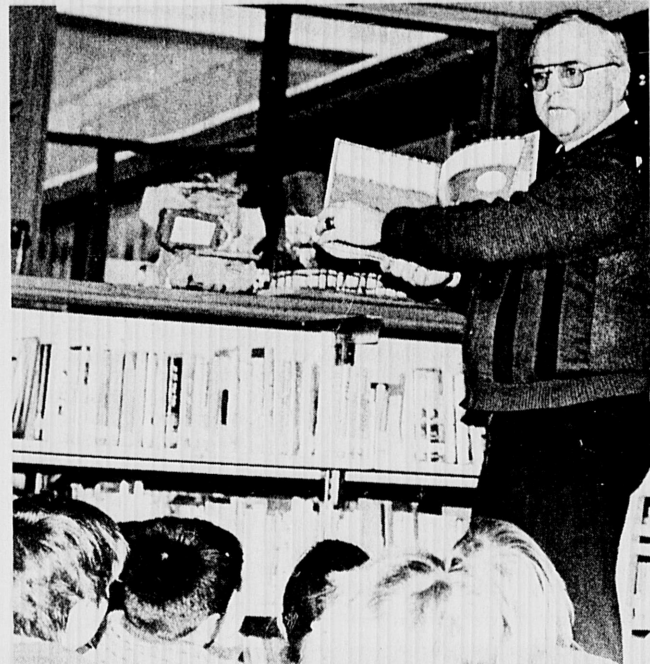

Cutting back on staff is another difficult area that Forest foresees when he looks ahead at the school system.

But he is also confident that "morale is high" among faculty members, and that any "RIFing" (reduction in force) that has to be done will be accomplished in the most fair and humane way possible.

"Acting Personnel Director Robert Fitzgerald really cares about people and their feelings," he said. "And that's just one example of the approach that would be taken in our system when it comes to making cuts. I think the most important thing is to build up trust and communication."

Forest believes that Dr. Charles Mit-

AT HIS BEST — Acting Supt. Robert Forest, who is stepping down after six months on the job, said he didn't want just a picture of him at his desk. "I'm not a desk man," he commented, adding he was more likely to be working with children before heading off to read to pupils at the Lynch School.

sakos, who will step into Forest's shoes in less than a week, will be stepping into a school system that's not only "second to none" but where the support among faculty and administrators for the school's leader has been "exemplary."

In addition, Forest believes that "the talent of the staff here, along with the course offerings, can be matched against any private school's."

As Forest leaves the office he held for such a short time, he is feeling a variety of emotions — nostalgia and a little bit of sadness for the people he enjoyed working with so much, and some excitement about his new opportunity at Curriculum Associates in Wellesley, where he will remain until Aug. 19 when he returns as principal of the Ambrose School.

And he is pleased at the progress he has made towards furthering three systemwide goals he announced he would be working towards this fall. Those goals included establishing a committee of 10 which has been studying reports such as "The Nation At Risk," to see how Winchester fares and trying to define excellence in the Winchester Schools.

Other goals have included long-range planning for the school system in areas such as computers, special education and purchasing equipment and facilities.

Finally, Forest has worked towards establishing a professional development center that he would like to see become incorporated into one of the buildings.

"Teachers should have a place where they can work together, take courses and bring guests," he said. "It's something that we would all like to see happening."

Forest said he is only "a phone call away" if there is anything he can help Mitsakos with. (The two have already met several times to discuss the transition that will take place.) And Forest will also use the knowledge and experience he acquired during his time as acting superintendent to benefit his own career in education.

"I probably will seek a superintendency at some point," he admits. "It had never been in my goal structure, but I have really enjoyed it — I was surprised how much."

Forest also wants to continue teaching, perhaps on the college level.

In the meantime, he said he will always be grateful that he had the opportunity to gain the "wider knowledge" that he thinks will make him "a better administrator."

"It's been six of the best months I've ever spent in education," Forest added. "I'm really glad I did it."

Judging from the response Forest got from faculty, School Committee members and students, he's not the only one who is glad.

★ Cable

for two years because selectmen negotiated a two-year rate freeze with Continental when it was choosing a cable company in 1979.

When Continental proposed those rates in 1979, Powell noted, the company kept them low to win the cable franchise in Winchester. "Because competition was very high, I think they kept the rates low," he said.

Per their agreement with the selectmen, Continental kept those lower rates for two years, despite a tight financial situation.

"We decided we had to raise the rates three years ago," said Powell. But the two-year freeze didn't end until September.

After absorbing the high interest rates and increased costs to keep the charges low for two years, "it'll be awhile before we're in the black," according to Powell. And while the company is working to get into the black, it can't spend a lot of money on new technology.

"We have to put priorities on where our revenues go," said Powell. "First we have to pay off our construction costs and our operating costs, and until we produce surpluses we're reluctant to put money toward improvements — upgrading the system and keeping pace with technology."

Once Continental has some money to work with, Powell said, it can start experimenting with services such as home banking, and upgrading equipment like the converters attached to each cable home's television set.

★ Closing

continued O'Malley. "But it's at the point where we can no longer wait for Medford to do something. We've got to close the road."

The road will not be reopened, the MDC officials said, until the leaking manhole is fixed.

PRACTICAL PHILOSOPHY

Designed for thoughtful men and women who seek an understanding of the nature of man and the world in which we live, this introductory course of 12 weekly lectures shows how great philosophic ideas of the past and present may be put to effective practical use in daily life. The course inquires into the meaning of human existence, the levels of consciousness, natural law, thought, feeling and action, and our function and possibilities.

You may join an introductory series of 12 weekly lectures. Classes begin at 7 pm and finish at approximately 9:15 pm. Tuition for the course is $40. Register by mail, or from 6:30 pm on the first night of attendance. For more information, or a brochure, call 665-6665.

Winter term begins: Jan. 4th & 5th in three locations.

Pioneer Of Peace

STILL ACTIVE AND AN ACTIVIST — At 80, Robinson cir. resident Ruth Terzaghi is still fighting for a cause she has worked at for more than 30 years, world peace. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

At 80, Terzaghi Is Still Fighting For 20-Year Cause

BY LIZ WILLEN

Despite her 80 years, her long list of professional accomplishments and her vast store of memories that include being arrested three times for protesting the Vietnam War in the 1960s, Dr. Ruth Terzaghi is hardly ready to sit back and relax.

The Robinson cir. geologist is still fighting for world peace — a cause she has worked unceasingly towards since the death of her husband Karl (a noted geologist often referred to as "the father of soil mechanics") in 1963.

The agile, blue-eyed grandmother of six remains intensely committed to that goal — although she is aware that it has become even more elusive with the conflicts in the Middle East and Latin America, and the increasing development of nuclear weapons.

Yet Terzaghi won't give up — she has strong opinions and beliefs on the best way to resolve these crises and says she wouldn't be able to live with herself if she wasn't still actively working towards their resolution.

"Things would be a lot worse if the peace activists hadn't been working all those years," she says, shaking her head to emphasize the necessity of that work.

Terzaghi, who gained prominence in her field as an engineering geologist, consultant and professor (she received one of the first teaching appointments to be awarded to a woman by Harvard University in the early 1950s) is bitter about many of the present administration's policies, which she sees as a deterrent to her work towards world peace.

But the bitterness only spurs her on to work harder to achieve goals of negotiation instead of fighting, reductions in the arms build-up and a nuclear freeze.

Terzaghi writes letters to congressmen and senators, participates in demonstrations whenever possible, and is helping to research and write a study on national security for the League of Women Voters.

She canvasses her Winchester neighbors for signatures in support of the Nuclear Freeze movement, constantly reads up on all of the issues she is concerned about and discusses them freely.

Aside from her bristling passions and the persistence she has directed towards attaining peace, Terzaghi is clearly comfortable with her present lifestyle and surroundings. Her spacious, airy Bauhaus-style home, designed by her husband in 1940, is dotted with artifacts from France, Africa and Yugoslavia and has a panoramic view of the Mystic Lake.

"I look out at the lake every day and I feel lucky," says Terzaghi, who keeps warm by sitting near a wood burning stove with a huge, soft cat on her lap. "I never realized that being 80 would be so much fun."

At 80, Terzaghi piles wood and shovels coal for that stove, swims, goes for long walks and works in her yard and garden, which grows in the front of her home. She still travels quite a bit to attend geology seminars and ceremonies in honor of her husband, whose 100th birthday would have been in October.

In June, Terzaghi journeyed to British Columbia, after the Canadian government invited her to participate in an official celebration of her husband's centenary. She traveled to remote sections to visit the 15 dam sites he designed there.

Terzaghi often worked closely with her husband during the 33 years they were married. The two scientists met in the late 1920s, at a meeting of the Boston Geological Society. A graduate student at Harvard at the time, she realized that Karl (a visiting lecturer at MIT and a soil mechanics consultant) had done research in the same area she was writing about for her doctorate.

"I heard his paper at the meeting," she recalls, smiling. "And I realized that this man had the means of solving my lime mud problem."

Still smiling, Terzaghi admits that he did solve it — and the two geologists fell in love in the process. After Terzaghi completed her doctorate, the couple left for Austria where they lived for eight years.

"We were in Austria during Hitler's rise to power," notes Terzaghi. "The government of Austria was a dictatorship, but what was going on really hadn't sunk in yet."

Because her husband was on the faculty of the Austrian Technical University, the pair was allowed to leave the country legally in 1938. Shortly afterwards, they built their Winchester home.

But Terzaghi's experience in Austria deeply affected her thinking during the next few years, as she continued to balance her own career and family life while accompanying her husband on his various expeditions.

But it wasn't until 1962 that she began to fully develop her political opinions and translate them into activism.

Getting involved in the senatorial campaign of Stuart Hughes, who ran as an Independent, was Terzaghi's first step. "I met a lot of people whose views I agreed with," she recalls. "We developed a campaign based on civil rights and concerned with abolishing the Jim Crow laws, along with fighting nuclear weapons."

Although Hughes lost to Sen. Edward Kennedy, Terzaghi and others who worked on the campaign kept many of the issues of the campaign alive. They also founded a grass-roots political organization known as MassPax.

"We simply realized how important the issues were," says Terzaghi. "And the campaign was an educational one to raise consciousness. It meant a lot to me to know that others shared my views and wanted to do something about it."

Soon, Terzaghi had another burning issue to become involved in — the escalation of America's involvement in Vietnam.

"I went to all the demonstrations and I was busted three times," she recalls, not without pride. "One of those times was at the army base in South Boston. We notified the police that we would demonstrate as a group and we all sat down. Then we were loaded in police buses and were transported to cells."

Terzaghi remained undaunted. "I've met some of my best friends in jail," she laughs. "Through demonstration and non-violent direct action we protested the war — it was the only thing we could."

'I went to all the (Vietnam War) demonstrations and I was busted three times. Through demonstration and non-violent action we protested the war.'

-Ruth Terzaghi

Terzaghi also served as a George McGovern delegate to the Democratic convention of 1972.

Today, Terzaghi is still a registered Democrat, outwardly outspoken against many of President Reagan's policies, and sometimes out of place living in a town whose views she considers for the most part to be "a combination of apathy and conservatism."

"Sure, I'd like to convince people of my views," she admits. "But it's not possible — so I really don't give a damn if my neighbors disagree. It's just like my vegetable garden — people think it should be in the back of a house and mine is in the front."

Clearly, Terzaghi is not worried about the location of her garden or the opposition she may get to her views. Even more clearly, she is interested in getting those views heard.

"I get burned up about the arms build-up," she says forcefully, pulling out carefully drawn charts that compare the Soviet Union's progress to that of the United States.

"It's a blatant lie to say that they (the Russians) have a monopoly. The superpowers could all destroy one another if they wanted to. We're so nearly matched that it doesn't matter. And we should begin negotiating on a sensible level."

To do that, Terzaghi believes the leaders of those countries should stop "distorting the figures" they have on weapons. She herself has studied those figures carefully, and is preparing a study for the League of Women Voters on the arms build-up race.

She would like to see the United States get out of the Middle East and El Salvador. "We have no business in Beirut and we shouldn't be fighting on the side of a conservative regime," she acknowledges. "We're in effect taking part in one side of a civil war, and I don't understand how Reagan can give himself this power."

Terzaghi thinks something can be done about that. She is hoping that Congress will rescind the War Powers Act so that Reagan's decisions are not necessarily final in these areas.

Terzaghi hopes that others will join her to work towards goals of peace — by writing letters, demonstrating and beginning to realize just how important it is to begin making serious strides towards reconciliation of some of the world's most volatile issues.

For Terzaghi, those issues will continue to guide her thoughts, words and actions.

West Medford Wicker Shop

If it's anything to do with wicker you can probably find it at the West Medford Wicker Shop, located at 18-20 Harvard St., West Medford. Owner/proprietor Eleanor Kellett carries a wide range of wicker furniture and accessories for your bedroom, bathroom, patio, den, or any other room in your house.

Kellett stocks a wide variety of wicker lamps, furniture, and accent pieces ranging from the very delicate to the extremely sturdy. Wicker tissue boxes, baskets, soap dishes, picnic baskets, wine racks, and hand mirrors are some of the more delicate accent pieces. More durable are some of the settees, rocking chairs, headboards, chairs and tables.

In addition to the extensive inventory Kellett stocks, she can obtain virtually anything a customer wants in wicker. Orders can be filled for any of the many wicker objects pictured in two wicker catalogues Kellett has available.

"We try to maintain competitive prices and have something here to fit any budget and any room in the house," explains Kellett. "We will also offer free advice on decorating to help our customers select the right pieces for their needs."

Another attraction at The Wicker Shop is its service. "We offer personal service to all our customers who want to maintain a country atmosphere within city surroundings," Kellett explains.

With pieces from the Philippines, Mexico, Europe, the Orient and the United States, Kellett probably has whatever you need in wicker. And, as she explains, wicker can be used in any room in your home.

Also available at the West Medford Wicker Shop are silk flower arrangements and scented candles. Kellett also does some wicker repair. She honors Master Charge and VISA and offers gift certificates.

For all your wicker needs, The Wicker Shop is open Tuesday and Wednesday, 9-5:30, Thursday and Friday, 9-8, and Saturday, 9-5.

Balancing Act

Hoop Happenings

Sachemettes Can't Play David To League's Goliaths

Yes, the Sachemette girls basketball team is getting better with playing time. But they aren't getting any bigger, and a lack of size ruined them last week.

Lexington's 5'11" All-Scholastic Sharon Hayes hit up the Sachemettes for 24 points — 10 in the crucial third quarter to lead the Minutemaid to a 49-37 victory over the Sachemettes.

Then Watertown's 5'11" Eileen Lee wiped out a Sachem lead in another equally crucial second half by throwing in 19 of her 25 points during the 42-37 Watertown victory.

With the Sachemette's biggest player being 5'8" center Kristen McNamara, all that height was too much to take. And it set the Sachemettes back to a 1-3 record for the season.

Coach Joe DiSarcina hopes that record will improve as the team improves with practice. "I think we'll do better with both teams the second time around," he commented.

There have been promising signs — guards Mich Powers, Barbara Delaney and Ellen Clavin have been pretty much shutting down anyone who doesn't reach into the rafters, and have been working the press well. Delaney also poured in 17 points against Watertown, and leading scorer McNamara picked up 19 against Lexington.

Getting someone else beside McNamara to score has been the biggest problem for the Sachemettes this season. Defenses are starting to key on her, and she only had five points in the Watertown loss.

"We have to get more forwards scoring outside of Kristen, to take the pressure off her," said DiSarcina. "If the take Kristen away from us, the other forwards have to be able to shoot and score, it's the only way to clear it up."

Winchester's three main forwards — Patty Taylor, Paula Russo and Theresa Ducharme — only picked up 11 points between them in the Watertown game, and five points (all Russo's) in the Lexington contest.

"I think it's a case of the forwards having no varsity experience, not one single minute," said DiSarcina. "They just have to become comfortable, they are getting better. We were working on that during vacation."

Winchester will get a chance to see if that work paid off during two back-to-back games against Somerville this week.

Sachems Capture First Victory By Beating Everett

They had to get away from the Middlesex League to do it, but the Winchester boys basketball team won their first game of the year Monday.

And they didn't get that first win by looking outside the league for a patsy either.

The Sachems got the win by beating Everett, last year's Greater Boston League champ, and by holding out in the face of a fourth-quarter onslaught that cut the Sachem lead from 20 points to eight.

But the Sachems were still on top, 56-48 when the final buzzer sounded.

The Sachems got scoring from outside (guard Alan Adler was the game high scorer with 21 points), inside (center Hank Lynch followed with 13), and the backcourt (the guards chipped in for 37 points).

The only time the Sachems let Everett get close was in the first quarter, when Everett tied it at 10 apiece.

But Adler put the Sachems ahead 12-10, and then the Sachems put in a 12-4 streak, led by Adler and Lynch in the second quarter to give the team a 31-31 lead at the half.

The teams swapped baskets in the third quarter, with Everett catching up a bit, before the Sachems put themselves way back on top 47-31.

And even the fourth quarter onslaught couldn't overcome that lead.

Unfortunately for the Sachems, other teams have been overcoming them all season, and the victory against Everett only pushed their record for the season to 1-4.

Earlier in the week, against Watertown, Friday, the Sachems got dumped on by a 63-36 score.

It didn't look like it would get that bad in the first half.

Midway through the first quarter, Winchester started to roll against Watertown, scoring 16 points to the Red Raiders' seven to come within two, 20-18.

But that was the only surge the Sachems could manage. Watertown moved out to a 36-24 lead by the half, and then dominated in the second half.

Alan Adler was top scorer for the Sachems, as he was against Everett, throwing in 12 points.

The Sachems didn't fare much better against Lexington, losing 68-29 despite starting out strong.

The Sachems kept to within four of the Minutemen, trailing 13-9 at the end of the quarter.

But then the Minutemen shut out the Sachems completely, giving up a sole Dave Della Grotte basket in the second quarter, while scoring 24 themselves.

Della Grotte ended up as the Sachems' leading scorer with seven points, with Peter Mulvaney coming off the bench to get six.

WRESTLING — Ann Murray had to fight to keep possession of the ball in the Winchester-Lexington contest last week.
(Craig Bonnell photo)

Hockey Team May Have Lost, But They're Not Discouraged

Even though they lost their first two games of the season, Coach Mike Whyte says his hockey players are not discouraged.

After all, they are a young, inexperienced and physically small team. And they did come up against one of the best teams in the league in their opener — Watertown.

"They were really ready for us," admitted Whyte. "We were at their rink, they were a lot bigger and they just didn't slow down."

Although the 8-1 margin by which they lost was certainly larger than the Sachems would have hoped, Whyte still believes that his players played a good game.

"Watertown's goals came in bunches," he noted. "First it was 3-1, then they got three more and in the last quarter, they got two more. We kind of let down in the end."

Winchester's lone goal was scored by Brian Griffin on a breakaway in the third quarter. Whyte called it "a nice, low, corner shot." Unfortunately for the Sachems,

'We're learning something in every game that we play. Other teams will have to watch out for us in a little while.'

-Coach Mike Whyte

that was it — it wasn't until two days later that a Winchester player netted the puck.

In fact, four Sachem shots sailed into a goal-tender's net last Friday — but again, it just wasn't enough. The Sachems lost to Lexington 10-4, a score that Whyte insisted did not indicate the game.

"We outshot them," he said. "We really did. It's just that we didn't put it away when we had to."

Lexington scored three times in the third period, after Winchester had moved up on Lexington's early lead to bring the score to 5-4.

Goals by Bobbie Collins, who scored twice, Scott Binding and Bobbie Paine, all front line players, helped make the Sachems look a lot better than they did against Watertown.

But they just weren't enough to bring the score any closer once Lexington began to capitalize on Sachem mistakes.

"It would have been a different game if we scored as often as we took shots," lamented Whyte. Even if Winchester scored a quarter of the 30 shots they took they would have been all set.

If those shots landed in the net. They didn't — but Whyte believes that there will be a lot more scoring as the season gets older.

"We're learning something in every game that we play," he said. "We're skating better, we're learning to play together and in different ways. Other teams will have to watch out for us in a little while."

Reading will be "watching out" for the Sachems on Friday night.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association.

A 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 38 call-rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 12 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over from Maine to Rhode Island to New York - but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Bjorkson at 1-833-3102 for further information.

BUYING AN OLDER HOME

People buy old homes for many reasons. Median prices of older homes are 10-15% less than the price of new homes, such homes are in established neighborhoods, they tend to be more spacious, the landscaping is mature, and the taxes are apt to be lower. Also there are a lot more older homes on the market for sale than new ones which gives you a larger field to choose from. (Last year, three times as many older homes were sold than new ones.)

Here are a few older-home hunting tips. First determine what kind of neighborhood you want to live in. What kind of house does your family want. How many rooms — one story, split level, etc. Are you willing to do any renovation if the house needs it? How much can you make as a down payment? What kind of monthly payment can you afford?

Now find a Realtor who serves the area you're interested in. He or she has house listings at his fingertips. He'll show you listings of the homes that meet your standards and then make appointments to visit them.

TOWN OF WINCHESTER
Middlesex County, MassachusettsBOARD OF APPEAL
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING, on WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1984 at 7:00 P.M. in the BOARD OF HEALTH CLINIC ROOM at the TOWN HALL on the following matters:

1. PETITION NO. 2621 - That of PAUL S. KENNEDY concerning a property, at LOT 16A BIRCHMOUNT STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Section 10 Chapter 40A of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct a single family dwelling on a lot that does not have the required frontage or area requirements. The property is located within the RG (General Residence) zoning district and contains 6,000 square feet.

2. PETITION NO. 2623 - That of MARY R. KNOX by her ATTORNEY, NORMAN E. SHERMAN concerning the property at 1 WESTGATE ROAD, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner is seeking an appeal in accordance with the Massachusetts General Law Section 8 and Section 8.4 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law from the decision of the Building Commissioner Zoning Enforcement Officer that she is illegally operating a Home Occupation (Dress Shop) upon residentially zoned property in violation of Section 4.4 (Table of Use Regulations) of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law and the order to cease the business operation. The property is located within the RDA (Single Family) zoning district and contains 21,100 square feet.

3. PETITION NO. 2626 - That of R.A. JOHNSON REALTY INC. concerning the property at SWINBOSING LANE, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Section 10 Chapter 40A of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct a single family dwelling that would be located too close to the front property line. The property is located within the RDA (Single Family) zoning district and contains 21,100 square feet.

ESP Lecture

Arthur Myers, noted journalist and author of eight books, will explore the results of his extensive research into the occult at a meeting of the Greater Boston Chapter of Psi Sigma Upsilon at the Follen Unitarian-Universalist Church, 755 Mass. Ave., Lexington, on Jan. 5, at 7:45 p.m.

His talk will cover recent scientific experiments regarding life after death, and will feature a tape on which voices of the dead are reportedly in conversation with the living.

Psi Sigma Upsilon is a national affiliated organization in the Unitarian-Universalist Assn., and is open to all who are interested in ESP, (extra-sensory perception), expanded consciousness, wholistic living, and increased spirituality.

Myers has published "The Ghost Hunters" and other non-fiction books for young people as well as adults, based on research in various fields. He has also written hundreds of newspaper and magazine articles on a wide variety of subjects, many the result of interviews with spiritual leaders in the Boston area.

Meet 9 to 5
Learn how 9 to 5 can help you to win rights and respect in your office.

Join the officer workers' organization on Jan. 9, at 5:45 p.m. for our New Years' open house, at the Paulist Center, right around the corner from the Park St. T stop. It's free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served. For more information call 965 at 37 Temple place in Boston.

Charles F. Deroo

Funeral services will be held today for Charles F. Deroo of Lebanon St., who worked his way up from machinist to company president. He died Dec. 25 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness. He was 53.

The service will be held in the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church today at 11 a.m. Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

Mr. Deroo was employed by C.E. Clarke and Co. in Everett for 35 years, beginning as a machinist and rising to president, a job he held since 1967.

The life-long Winchester resident attended Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School.

Mr. Deroo served with the U.S. Army during the Korean War and was a member of the Aberjona Post Veterans of Foreign Wars in Winchester.

He was also a member of the Massachusetts Charitable Foundation, past president of the Everett Rotary Club, past master of the Mystic Valley A.F. & A.M., past grand patron of the Mass. Order of Eastern Star in 1977, and a member of the Aletheon Chapter in Woburn.

He is survived by his wife, Phyllis P. Deroo; and five children, Charles F. Deroo of Houston, Texas, George F. Deroo II of Winchester, Nancy B. Barnaby of Wilmington, Elizabeth M. Deroo of Baltimore, Md., and Helen Thurber of Winchester.

Mr. Deroo is also survived by his father, George F. Deroo of Winchester; a sister, Elizabeth M. Knight of Winchester; and a brother, Robert C. Deroo of Stoneham; and four grandchildren.

Charles F. Deroo

He was the son of the late Madora Deroo.

Alma C. Fontaine

A funeral mass was celebrated yesterday for Alma Clair (Wakeham) Fontaine of Winchester who died of a heart attack Dec. 24 at age 65.

Mrs. Fontaine was the widow of Frank Fontaine, the comedian who played the role of Crazy Guggenheim on the Jackie Gleason television show. He died in 1978.

The couple had 11 children: Frank J. Jr. of Lowell, Irene Valentine of Melrose, Robert W. of Tampa, Peter R. of New York City, Alma Naviskas of Everett, Larry of Winchester, Christopher of Boston, Eugene of Arlington, Frederick and John of Winchester and Paul of Oceanside, Calif.

Mrs. Fontaine is also survived by 11 grandchildren and brothers and sisters, Chester of Lynn, Frederick of Weymouth, William of Medford, Jessie Conlon of Wilbraham and Gladys Coyne of Florida.

Funeral mass was celebrated at St. Joseph's Church in Medford where Mrs. Fontaine lived for many years. Gaffey Funeral Home handled arrangements.

Chester H. Barksdale

Chester Howard Barksdale, son of Oliver and Sarah Barksdale formerly of 14 Chester St., in Winchester, MA., died on Monday Oct. 17, after a brief stay at the VA Hospital in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Barksdale, after leaving Winchester in 1922, went to the Nation's Capital and accepted employment at the British Embassy in the days when "an invitation to the British Embassy was more sought after than an invitation to the White House."

He was soon looked upon as "an absolute tower of strength" at the Embassy in whose employ he remained for 43 years, never missing a day's work because of illness or for any other reason. At his retirement party it was noted that "Chester has seen through worn out and outlasted eleven British Ambassadors and eighteen Foreign Secretaries."

Mr. Barksdale rendered such faithful and diligent service that the Central Chancery of the Orders of Knighthood at St. James Palace, London bestowed upon him on June 9, 1939, the Royal Victorian Medal. This signal award was presented to him by no less personages than King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England upon the occasion of their visit to America in 1939.

In 1951 he received yet further recognition from Queen Elizabeth II for his "exemplary performance." Upon retirement in June 1966 he was awarded the British Empire Medal for "length of service with devotion."
